

The Racket.

We have on sale in our lining department HEATHER-BLOOM TAFFETA for use in place of silk for under slips, drop skirts, waist linings etc. It does not cut or crack, has silk lustre and "Swish," is 36 inches wide and only 35 cents a yard.

We also have a line of black Petticoats made of Heathers-bloom Taffeta at $2.00, $2.50 and $2.75. They are better than silk because they outwear the dress.

You can do better at the Racket they sell for cash.

Rev. Snyder preached an elegant sermon in the St. Paul's church on Sunday evening to a large audience. There will be services again on the 27th of this month in the morning. Rev. Haas will have services in the Bethesda this Sunday morning 20th.

The St. Paul's Sunday school contemplate having an entertainment sometime in June.

The Spayd's Gap scribe in last week's issue of the Journal had practically nothing in her items but nonsense about the Green's Gap scribe. It is alright to write a joke sometimes, but after she goes as far as she did in last week's issue then she deserves a severe rebuke; she only displayed a good bit of littleness that is all, and if the readers of that paper read it do not think that those statements are true. A person that is equipped with jealousy, littleness and smartness is indeed a reckless person.

RUNVILLE.

THE STAFF OF LIFE.

Bread Properly Made is Our Best Staple Article of Diet.

The enormous waste of bread that takes place daily plainly shows in what contempt this article of diet is held by the community. It is flung into garbage boxes by the rich and on to the pavements by the poor. It has, in fact, little or no place on the tables of the well to do.

Bread, made under proper conditions from the proper elements, is our best staple article of diet. By "staple" is meant a chief constituent of the food fuel that our bodies, whether young or old, must take in to supply their needful growth and energy and to repair the waste which is going on hourly.

Good bread contains all the food elements in digestible form. There is nitrogenous matter, which is considered the chief of them all and for the supply of which we are in the habit of looking to meat, but some of which, not all, we can certainly derive from bread. Then it would be difficult to say how far we depend on bread for our supply of phosphates, matters of no little moment, especially in connection with bone and muscle formation.

This supply of phosphates is especially important in the case of growing children, and as the waste of phosphates is continuous the supply must be persistent. Last, but by no means least, we have the carbonaceous principle of bread. It is to such bodies we must look for our physical energy, for there is evidence to show that they are oxidized in the muscle to supply the necessary force for the contraction of that muscle.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Story the Moon Told

"I'll tell you a good one," said the moon to little Bill, as he looked in through his window one night after Bill had been tucked snugly into bed. "Wish you would," cried Bill eagerly. "Well," began the moon, with the usual manner of one about to tell a good story, "I was shining my brightest on the snow, which was as white as your sheets and more sparkling, doing my best to make a good night for the skaters on the pond and the lovers

GOT FROZEN FAST.

In the sleighing parties, when whom should I see but old Miss Specklepot and Mr. Shanghai sitting on the top rail of the fence around the ten acre lot. They were as close to one another as they could get without taking off their coats, and I noticed that he had his arm around her. "Arm?" interrogated Bill. "Didn't I suppose I should say wing," said the moon, smiling. "And," he continued, "I heard him say to her: 'Oh, Miss Speckle, you are my tootsey wootsey! Tuk, tuk, tuk-aw.'" "And she replied: 'How sweet of you! Tuk, tuk, tuk-aw-say-so.'" "Didn't you laugh?" asked Bill. "Well, rather," said the moon, "for he said, 'I hope, dear, that your house-keeping bill will be as sweet and as small as your own when you present it to me.'" "But," said the moon, laughing, "they sat so long with their beaks together that they got frozen fast to one another, and when I set they were still on the rail. It doesn't pay to be too spunky. Good night."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

AILMENTS OF CHILDREN.

For the Simpler Ones Warm Baths Are Often Very Effective.

The value of warm baths and their effect upon nervous or fretful children, whether in sickness or health, cannot be overestimated. Every infant, unless there is some good reason, on the contrary, should have two baths a day—one a tub bath in the morning, the other a warm sponge bath when put to bed. The morning bath is conducive to healthfulness and cleanliness; the sponge bath at night is most useful on account of its quieting and soothing effect. Neither bath should be above or below 98 degrees temperature. At this temperature there can be no danger from cold.

The morning bath removes such deposits as have been excreted by the skin during the night, leaving the pores open and not, as many people suppose, making the child more sensitive to cold. It cleanses the millions of little pores, allowing them to exude certain oils which lubricate the skin and keep it soft and fine, at the same time throwing off refuse which accumulates in the circulation.—Marianna Wheeler in Harper's Bazar.

MONEYBAK

(TRADE MARK)

Patented Selvage Silks.

SATISFACTION OR MONEY BACK.

Moneybak the Guarantee of Quality.

Raw silk differs in quality and strength. The best comes from China, Japan and Italy.

Much of this silk may be dyed with the purest materials and yet give unsatisfactory wear.

All depends on the purpose and skill of the manufacturer. If it is desired to make a cheap silk or one without an identifying trade mark the inferior quality of silk is used. This is weighted to give it body and lustre.

Not so, however, with MONEYBAK black silks.

In addition to using selected pure dyed silk threads these threads are woven on scientific lines which preserve the original strength of the silk fibers and the result is long wear.

To enable you to identify these silks the trade mark MONEYBAK is woven in a patented detachable selvage, which is the makers' guarantee of SATISFACTORY WEAR OR MONEY BACK.

Visit our silk counter and ask to be shown these dependable silks.
