

OUR Breezy "THAT" Column

Spley, Speedy and Sparkling Items, both of an important and humorous character, dished up in the most fascinating style by the Associate Editor. His Poignant Observations were:

THAT talk is cheap, but it has cost the reputation of some women in Bellefonte, all right.

THAT some men in Bellefonte can't show their hospitality until they have about three or four good drinks in them.

THAT one of the interesting things in life is to see a Bellefonte woman tie a horse to a hitching post. In some instances the horse is more liable to get away when tied than if let loose.

THAT the young fellow in Bellefonte who is frequently seen standing at the Rhoads' corner, on West Linn street, late at nights, is being carefully watched. They say that there is a woman in it.

THAT Charles Brachbill and William Brouse, of Bellefonte, were in clover up to their knees on Friday evening. They were with a pretty bunch of female love liness and, of course, they were in their element.

THAT John Bryan, of Bellefonte, who carries the mail to the depot, has a patent way of going down High street. His invention beats John Lyon's automobile all hollow. John is sort of a genius and he gets there every time.

THAT the young man in Bellefonte or vicinity who is looking for a good, first-class wife, she can be found up in the vicinity of Martha or Port Matilda. They are pretty, as well as tasty housekeepers. They passed in review at the Williams reunion.

THAT recently Dr. Joseph Brockerhoff, of Bellefonte, had very pretty decorations around at his house on Bishop street, but it was noticeable that in his patriotic zeal he had gotten the American flag upside down. Wouldn't he make a dandy color bearer?

THAT the other night a very pleasant young lady in Bellefonte and a gentleman friend were swinging in a swing when all at once the ropes gave way and both were thrown out in a bunch on the floor of the porch. It is said the accident was caused by too many "spoons."

THAT you might ask Willard Hall, of Bellefonte, when he turned to be a Quaker. His conversation recently indicated that he was going to accept the faith. Dealing in photographs, however, may knock out his application, as it is too much talk for that kind of religion.

THAT there are men in Bellefonte who are actually selling their souls in order that they may grasp the almighty dollar and hold on to it until the eagle screams or does something infinitely worse. The only people who will get any fun out of this measly way of living are the heirs.

THAT a young lady in Bellefonte is judged by the young man in whose company she is frequently found. If his reputation and character is not just what it should be the young man should be careful, as good prohibitionists in Bellefonte are not supposed to know anything about eye-openers, night caps and "sich."

THAT when some fellows in Bellefonte get loaded the first thing they do is to shoot off their mouths.

THAT the minister in Bellefonte who preaches on "Economy" should be shrewd enough to take up the collection before he begins.

THAT there is a man in Bellefonte who is such a confirmed liar that people are beginning to turn from him as they would a man with small-pox or leprosy.

THAT Wagner Geiss, of Bellefonte, is getting to be an expert chicken raiser and he says that the hen with nothing to peck at is generally in a peck of trouble.

THAT it is enough to make a fellow feel jealous to have a certain young student in Bellefonte brag how the girls are stuck on him. To hear him talk he is the only "pebble on the beach."

THAT there is a young lady in Bellefonte who has been working hard for the last year to get her beau to propose. If he does, it will be construed that he is making a try for the Carnegie hero prize.

THAT Bellefonte has in it a young lady who goes around begging money, and if she doesn't get it she becomes impudent. Some day somebody will strike her over the mouth and it will require a dentist to make the repairs.

THAT if the Centre county court should make it obligatory on a man in Bellefonte to kiss his wife on his return home the majority of the married men would be munching cloves or taking peppermint for their general health.

THAT there is a young lady in Bellefonte who should use hose supporters, especially when she is on the street. Excuse our indiscretion, if such it may be called, but the young lady in question would avoid a large amount of unfavorable comment if she will take this advice.

THAT they say Bellefonte has a woman who when she goes to Philadelphia or Atlantic City is as spry and gay as a mouse or kitten, but when at home she acts like a clam. If what is said is true every time she goes away, especially to the seashore, her husband ought to have a string to her.

THAT when Gabriel shall blow his last trumpet there will be a large number of ladies in Bellefonte who will not know what it is, and will be frightened out of their shoes. A little card playing is all right, but when they crowd out the better things of life then it is going too far. Life is entirely too short to be taken up entirely by a pack of cards.

THAT it is said that a good temperance lady in Bellefonte says that Homer Castle's first speech is going to be an eye-opener. This she should be careful, as good prohibitionists in Bellefonte are not supposed to know anything about eye-openers, night caps and "sich."

EAST AURORA PHILOSOPHY.

New Thought Convention at Elbert Hubbard's Roycroft Shop.

The Roycroft shop at East Aurora, N. Y., was the meeting place a short time ago of what was called a "new thought convention." The Roycroft is a child of the brain of Elbert Hubbard, editor of the Philistine, author of "Little Journeys to the Homes of Great Men" and often known as "Fra Elbertus." He is poet, philosopher, author, bookmaker and lecturer, and the Roycroft shop is one of the most original institutions of the kind in America. It looks more like a church than a shop, which is appropriate in that the Roycrofters aim to pursue their work in a religious spirit and to take delight in making beautiful things. The theory is that love lightens labor and that under such conditions the almighty dollar is not always kept in such plain sight as a motive for work.

Fra Elbertus went to college in his youth but got most of his education from the "university of hard knocks."

ROYCROFT SHOP, EAST AURORA. At the new thought convention he discoursed on socialism, remarking that he was himself a working man and also an employer of labor and asked no better food, bed, shelter or clothes than were enjoyed by his helpers.

"I am a socialist," said Mr. Hubbard. "The only way my socialism differs from that of Mr. Debs and Mr. Sinclair is in matter of methods. Eugene Debs, Upton Sinclair and Jack London represent Marxian socialism. They hold with Karl Marx that when 51 per cent of the voters cast their ballots for socialism the 51 per cent of the voters will then step in and oust the men who have built up and now operate the so called monopolies, confiscate the property and put in men who will manage the business not for themselves, but for good of all.

"This will be a revolution, and so in all the letters written by Mr. Sinclair and Jack London they sign themselves 'Yours For the Revolution.'

"I sign myself 'Yours For the Evolution.' I am a Fabian socialist and am willing to take a biscuit when I cannot get a loaf, as opposed to the Marxian Socialist, who demands the whole loaf or nothing."

We may as well own up to the truth that the conventional abuse of our climate and our weather has been greatly overdone. When we are inclined to envy countries whose meteorological conditions have less of the element of "glorious uncertainty" than our own, we are much too ready to overlook the immense advantage we possess in our almost absolute freedom from violent extremes.—London World.

Ducal Morality.

One never hears of a duke going wrong. Every one bearing any other title in the peerage may be perhaps subjected to the temptations of "the world, the flesh and the devil," but a duke never! Indeed, the old Scotsman's verdict that dukes are "verra, verra respectable people" seems one about which there can be no doubt.—London Pall Mall Gazette.

Woman and Love.

Tell a woman day after day, if she requires it of you, that you do love her and make her believe it, and then you can rob her, neglect her, and she will still cling to you and fight for you—in words in polite society, or words and deeds in impolite—against all the world.—London Pall Mall Gazette.

HE TELLS THE TRUTH.

A Pennsylvania editor who loves the truth says: "Willie Shortlike and Betty Bloomers were married last evening. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and potted plants, borrowed promiscuously, all over town from people who didn't want to lend them. The decoration was done under protest by some of the members of the church who were asked to do so by the bride and couldn't well refuse. The ladies are of the opinion that if the couple were so bent on having a stylish wedding they should have been willing to have paid some one to chase all over town for a day getting flowers together and then taking them home again."

She wore a handsome Silverstein gown, made at home; the groom was decked in a $10 hand-me-down suit. The ushers wore cutaway coats borrowed for the occasion. Sallie Potts was maid of honor, the consensus of opinion was that she was 2 or 3 better looking than the bride. The young couple took the morning train for Pittsburg, where they will spend more money in a few days than Willie can earn in three months.

"Willie says now that he's married he's going to settle up. Some of our merchants think it would have been better if he had settled down first. The groom gets a salary of $27 a month, which is about the allowance Bettie has been used to for pin money.

"We wish for Willie's sake that old saying, it takes no more to support two than one, wasn't a lie.

"The bride sent up a shoe-box full of a conglomeration of supposed to be cake. If this is a sample of Bettie's cake we feel sorry for Willie. Our janitor's dog fell heir to the cake and is lying in the cold, cold ground. But this wedding is none of our funeral. If Willie and Bettie are satisfied we've got no kick coming."

The Man With the Overalls.

The man in overalls with his spade working on the section may be poor, as far as his bank account is concerned, but he is doing his best to support a good wife and happy children, rather than to see her wash for food and raiment. Such a man is worth a regiment of those good-for-nothing nonentities who do nothing but sit around and polish the caboose of their pants, while their father, "the old man," foots the bill. When the righteous judgment of a merciful God passes sentence upon mankind, we believe that the man who "does something" will find favor in heaven's court regardless of sect or creed, over the useless carcass of humanity that has never learned the first principle of that eternal edict that followed man's expulsion from the garden of Eden.—Ex.

The Hays Run Fire Brick company is shipping two car loads of fire brick to Manila. This company is running its plant to full capacity making and selling 30,000 bricks per day. Twelve kilns are now in operation and two more are being built. It is proposed to put up two additional kilns, so as to have 16 altogether. This will afford an output of from 40,000 to 50,000 bricks per day. The Hays Run company has been fortunate in establishing a good trade for its products, which are pronounced the best on the market.

Letter to John Noll, Pleasant Gap.

Dear Sir: We shall feel obliged if you write us how you came-out on your first few jobs Devoe, as to gallons expected and used.

Take Job A. You made your price, expecting to use 25 gallons Devoe, and used 15. Job B. You expected to use 15 and used 10. And tell us what paint you had used before. Of course, you judge Devoe by what you have used before.

Here's how a few came-out. M A Thomas, painter, Lynchburg, Va., writes: My first job with Devoe, I estimated 37 gallons; it took 25. Since then I have used nothing else.

C B Edwards, Raleigh, N C had used 30 gallons paste paint on his house, and bought 30 gallons Devoe; A E Glenn, his painter, said it wouldn't be enough. Had 16 gallons left.

Mayor W W Carroll, Monticello, Florida, writes: Painter estimated 35 gallons for my house; took 20 gallons Devoe.

Gilmore & Davis Co. contractors and painters, Tallahassee, Florida, say 2 gallons Devoe spreads as far as 3 of any other paint they know, and covers better.

S A Bullard, painter, Sanford, Florida, estimated 50 gallons for his house 10 Devoe, and Masonic Halls; they took 20 Devoe, Jones & Rogers, Merkel, Texas, estimated 10 gallons Devoe for Mr. Pratt's house and bought 5 gallons for first coat; it painted two coats.

Erb-Springall Co, San Antonio, Texas, painted two houses same size for D J Woodward, one lead-and-oil, the other Devoe. Devoe cost $12 less for paint and labor.

Tom Masey's painter, Walnut Springs, Texas, estimated for his house 10 gallons Devoe; he had 4 left.

You see how it goes. Even the best painters can't guess little enough at first. Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & CO New York.

A woman brought a snake story to the Johnstown Tribune office and wanted to know if it was true. It's probably as true as it's new. Here is the story with-out alteration: There was a man went to the woods one day and sat down on a log, and there was a rattlesnake under it and he pitied the snake; so he lifted the log and left the snake out from under the log. And when he started to go home he looked around and the snake was following him, and when he got home the snake was there, and when he was eating his supper the snake got up on the table beside him. And when he went to bed the snake went too, and slept at the foot end. So one morning when the man got up he looked for the snake, and it was gone, so he began to hunt for it, and he found it down stairs, and there was a burglar in the house and the snake was holding him by its mouth and had its tail out the window rattling it for the police to come."

If there is no way for a bank examiner to detect a crooked bank, what is the use of bank examiners? The straight bank does not need any.

A man feels most put out when he is taken in.
