The parents publicly express their heartfelt gratitude for the kindness and sympathy manifested toward them in the hour of their sad bereavement.

On Tuesday the roof of Miss Nannie Fisher's stable caught fire. It is presumed to have taken fire from the sparks of a locomotive, the stable standing quite close to the railroad tracks. It had gained some headway when it was discovered by Miss Nannie who at once gave the alarm and it wasn't long before quite a number of men and women were on hand, all of whom worked like Turks, the women pumping and carrying water, while the men, with the aid of a couple of ladders, doused it on the flames and actually succeeded in saving the building, after the roof was almost entirely burned. Andy Rowan kept his cow in the stable and had his winter's hay ruined by fire and water. No insurance.

My automobile out of order—will see you next week Galer and Howard.
