

FRANCIS SPEER'S

Breezy "That" Column

THAT the man in Bellefonte who lives right shouldn't worry about how he is going to die. He'll die all right.

THAT because a lady in Bellefonte wears a gown in her skirt doesn't necessarily say that her husband bought it with blood money.

THAT the girl in Bellefonte who gads about, and delights to roll on the sofa every night with some dude of a young fellow, will certainly come to a bad end.

THAT there is a woman in Bellefonte who has a mind of her own, and she is not stinky with it. She is always very anxious to give other people a piece of it.

THAT on the 1st of January quite a number of young fellows in Bellefonte climbed on the water wagon. That's dead easy, but the trick consists in staying there.

THAT what do you think of a barber in Bellefonte who is so absent minded as to pin a newspaper around his customer's neck and give him a towel to read. Hold up, now! We didn't say it was Johnny Nighthart.

THAT "Jay" Wallace, of Bellefonte, says it's never too late to kiss a pretty girl good night once again. He must have learned that from his good friend John Rankin, because he has been out among 'em a good bit.

THAT it is stated that a certain woman on Bishopstreet, Bellefonte, doesn't speak to her husband. The difficulty is that the other morning while washing the breakfast dishes she was singing, "I want to be an angel" and he applauded.

THAT we are next to it all right, and a certain young man in Bellefonte should not console himself with the idea that we are going through the world on a snail's pace. It is only a question of time when the young man, in question, will be found in his back yard walking on the air.

THAT a good many people in Bellefonte act as though they were nothing in this life but beer and skittles. Some of the women are just as bad as the men. They will wake up one of these days and find that all these years they have been dining on nothing but wind pudding.

THAT some people in Bellefonte had better try and keep cool in this world for in the next they will have a great deal of hot weather to contend with. It matters very little how big a profession they make, or how much style they put on. This is the naked truth or a cold fact, just as you choose to take it.

THAT if you would make a thorough canvass of Bellefonte and inquire of the wives about their husbands you would not be able to find a bad man in the town. That's how the men hoodwink their dear companions. If the truth was known one-third of the married men in the town would not be able to look their wives in the eye.

THAT the automobilists, of Bellefonte, all came home from Philadelphia Thursday, right side up with care. They didn't look as though the jolting of the cars had any effect on their physiques. They say that the new filtering plant down at the Quaker city works like a charm. Thus they found it unnecessary to resort to drinking milk.

THAT a boy went home from one of the Bellefonte churches last Sunday and inquired why a certain well-to-do man in the North Ward only put a penny on the collection plate. The question sort of puzzled the parent, but if he had thought for one minute he might have eased the boy's mind by telling him it was because he had no smaller coin. That would have been the truth.

RINEHART'S HUMOR.

J. B. F. Rinehart, political boss of Greene county and cashier of the defunct Farmers' and Drovers' National Bank, appears to have a fine sense of humor as well as a faculty for breaking banks by loaning funds on worthless security to politicians and others.

According to a confession made by a confederate, when Rinehart last Fall undertook to buy the nomination of a candidate for judge they were paid for by check and these checks by Rinehart's direction were marked "in payment for hogs". This could hardly be expected in sardonic facetiousness.

It is declared by those who profess to have the evidence, that $40,000 was expended in this judicial contest at the primaries. A single individual, Henry Miller, of Whitley township in checks ranging from twenty dollars to $150, paid $6,000, each check being marked in payment for hogs.

Miller, who was a depositor in Rinehart's bank, admits that he drew these checks under Rinehart's instructions with the assurance that they should not be charged against his account. Very much to his surprise he finds now that instead of being a creditor of the bank to the amount of $5,000 he owed the bank when it failed $1,100, which he has been forced to make good.

No more flagrant instance of political banking and political corruption has been brought to light in many a day than that charge, by the failure of the Farmers' and Drovers' National Bank, of Waynesburg.

The penitentiary would seem to be the only proper place for a man of such accomplishments as former cashier J. B. F. Rinehart.

Notice to Sportsmen.

In view of a proposed law to license all sportsmen in the state, a meeting of protest was held in the gun store of H. A. Stevenson, at Lock Haven, Tuesday 15, to which all sportsmen in the city and county were invited. The law if passed would rob the poor man of his privilege in many instances, and is in the interest of hunters in general that this meeting is called. The sentiment of hunters, fishermen and other citizens is largely against any further fooling with the game laws, unless it be to eliminate some of the present absurd provisions.

1000 Pies For a Sale.

An enterprising farmer in Dover twp., York county, advertises that he will give away free 1,000 pumpkin pies to the persons who attend a public sale of his farming implements and stock, which takes place soon. He has also secured the service of a brass band for the entertainment of his intending purchasers.

THAT Bellefonte has in it a number of young men with great possibilities and small probabilities. These fellows ought to get out and hustle.

THAT there is a young lady in Bellefonte who is awfully conceited. She brags about making a fool of a certain young man who was never known to be anything else.

THAT when a young lady, of Bellefonte, will yank up the guy ropes of her corset until she squeezes her immortal soul out of place it's strong evidence she wants a man and that P. D. Q.

THAT when Doc Locke, of Bellefonte, gets out in the country with that auto, he may not realize that it's a long lane that has no turn, but that it's a mighty long lane to a blacksmith shop.

THAT a certain young man in Bellefonte stated to a friend that if a young lady in town didn't marry him he was going to commence drinking. He will have a chance to tone up, all right.

THAT Dr. Sidney Krumrine, of Bellefonte, may know how to manufacture Vintena, administer a hypodermic, or roll pills, but when he presumes that he didn't know what we were talking about he has another guess coming.

THAT Jacob Marks, of Bellefonte, says after a bachelor passes the age of forty it's up to him to marry a widow if he marries at all. He needs a wife who knows beforehand how cranky men are. Jake's got that question down fine.

THAT Ed. Haupt, of Bellefonte, says that since he is married he must begin to lay up something for a rainy day. He can commence by buying an umbrella. He will find out as he goes along, he will need something for a cloudless day.

THAT Hazzel Montgomery, of Bellefonte, who figured more or less in society and whose judgment is as sound as Uncle Sam's dollar, says that grammatically speaking a kiss is a noun; technically speaking it's a conjunction, and generally speaking it's a first class article.

THAT a fashion note says that the new extra-short walking skirt is simply a stunner. The great trouble is that some of our girls in Bellefonte will be ashamed to wear them on account of their thin shanks? If these dresses are shorter than they were last year it will take more than two policemen to clear the street corners on a rainy day.

THAT Rabbit Hill is a new suburb of Bellefonte, and now is the chance for dealers in real estate to double their money. Apply to "Waxie" Straub, Ray Strunk, who is one of the boomers, says that he killed rabbits up there, some of which were as large as Mart Garman's bull dogs. Ray never "bles" unless it's in bed, and so his story must be o. k.

THAT the A. B. C. Club, of Spring Mills, is composed of some of the brightest, prettiest and best young ladies to be found in this neck of the woods. We should imagine that the young man who is tossed too and fro on the sea of matrimony could not do better than steer his ship toward that landing and anchor there. Of course no "skinflint" need to apply—nothing but preachers and editors.

THAT the next time a certain young man in Bellefonte goes to an automobile show in Philadelphia he ought to tie his watch and pocket book around his neck with a log chain and thus he will be certain not to have his pockets picked right before his very eyes. It could not then become a question whether he would have to send for more money or walk home. We have received from the gentleman in question a great big bribe not to mention any names so we will have to stick to our word.

HOME-MADE CATARRH CURE

Any one can mix right at home the best remedy of its kind known. The name "Cyclone" is given to the following prescription, it is supposed, because of its promptness in driving from the blood and system every vestige of catarrh, relieving this foul and dread disease, no matter where located. To prepare the mixture: Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Karg and three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This is a harmless, inexpensive mixture, which has a peculiar action upon the eliminative tissue of the kidneys assisting them to filter and strain from the blood and system all catarrhal poisons, which, if not eradicated, are absorbed by the mucous membrane and an open sore or catarrh is the result.

Prepare some and try it, as it is the prescription of an eminent catarrh specialist of national reputation. (2)

A. C. Thompson, of Philipsburg, who several weeks ago underwent an operation in the German hospital, Philadelphia, recovered sufficiently as to be able to return home, last Thursday night.

Tonsiline Cures Sore Throat

The throat is one of the most delicate parts of the body. It is also one of the most important, and should be given the best possible care. The throat is the gateway to the body. The air we breathe, the food we eat, the liquids we drink, all pass through it. It is very easily affected by cold, strain, exposure, etc., and Sore Throat is therefore one of our most common ailments. Strangely enough, it is also one of the most neglected.

Sore Throat is a very serious matter, for the whole system is in danger in consequence of it. Every Sore Throat patient is a candidate for Tonsillitis, Quinsy, Diphtheria and other serious or fatal diseases, all of which can positively be prevented by the timely cure of the Sore Throat by the use of TONSILINE. It taken in time a dose or two will do it.

TONSILINE is made to cure throat diseases and nothing else. It is the one remedy for this purpose sold largely in the United States. Every user endorses it; every physician, knowing its virtues, commends it.

The one most important thing to remember about TONSILINE is the fact that it really does cure Sore Throat.

All druggists, 25c and 50c bottles. The Tonsiline Co., Canton, Ohio.

Pennsylvania's New President

James McCrea, Who Succeeds the Late A. J. Cassatt, a Big Man Mentally and Physically—Great Tasks Confronting Him.

BIG men are needed for big tasks. The Pennsylvania railroad has a big task in hand in the improvement and extension of its facilities in New York and vicinity, and its new president, James McCrea, is big enough in every way to cope with problems that would exhaust many men of no small endurance and ability. He stands six feet two inches in his stocking feet and weighs over 200 pounds, and his mental equipment is on a par with his physical.

The work of the Pennsylvania Railroad company in tunneling both the North and East rivers and in establishing between them an immense underground terminal system, together with the most magnificent railway station in the world, constitutes the most gigantic and interesting enterprise of the kind ever undertaken. It required in those who undertook the responsibility for it the utmost foresight and courage. It was during President Cassatt's regime that the Pennsylvania secured control of the Long Island railroad and extended its system to the west and south by the acquisition of subsidiary lines so as to create a system stretching its steel bands from Montauk Point to the Mississippi valley and the confines of the Virginia. It was a singular coincidence that President Cassatt passed away just as the work to which he had given the best efforts of his life was reaching fruition. But his successor as the head of the Pennsylvania has had a strong hand in what has already been done. He is considered a very able financier, and it was he, not Mr. Cassatt, who managed the great loans that were floated in connection with the terminal undertakings of the company.

Philadelphia is President McCrea's birthplace, and he is fifty-eight years of age. He attended the private school of the Rev. John W. Fairies and later went to the Pennsylvania Polytechnic school. Then he started out as a rodman and assistant engineer to make a name for himself in the railroad world. His first service was with the Connellys and Southern Pennsylvania road, with which he remained from 1885 to 1897, when he became rodman on construction of the Wilmington and Reading. Later he was with other roads. It was in 1871 that he entered the service of the Pennsylvania. Twenty years from the time he began work with this corporation he was first vice president of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg and practically president of this part of the system. In his present position as head of the company he draws a salary of $50,000.

Mr. McCrea has for some years made Pittsburg his home, and his family have been prominent in the society of that city. Mrs. McCrea was a Miss Montgomery. The eldest son, James A. McCrea, is married and lives in New York. Another son, Archibald Montgomery, lives at home, and there is a daughter who is an exceedingly attractive and well educated girl. Mr. McCrea himself is genial and fond of good company, but is too busy a man to devote much time to society. He is a member of the Pittsburg Country club and spends all the time he can spare from business on its golf links, for he is an enthusiastic golfer and relies much on outdoor exercise for the preservation of his health and vigor.

President McCrea gave an illustration of the kind of man he is shortly after he had entered the employ of the Pennsylvania. There had been a freight wreck, and before he arrived at the part of the system where it occurred things were pretty well cleared up. "Anything I can do?" he asked of the foreman.

"No, I guess not," was the reply. "What! Nothing?" exclaimed the young engineer.

"Well, everything has been fixed except removing those ties in the ditch over there."

Forthwith young McCrea strode over to where the ties lay, and shouldering one after another, carried them up the embankment until all were in the proper place. The wrecking crew gave him the name "Cross Tie Jim," which stuck to him for years afterward.

There are people who could help more by giving less advice.
