Perry Wollage and Mrs. Laura Hanscom Simson were hitched up in double harness to trot through life, by chief justice, Riley Pratt, at his residence, on last Friday evening, and an hour later our ears were greeted with the sweetest strains of delightful music emanating from tin horns, old pans, cow bells, etc., in the hands of the "thupians" and an evening, last week, a couple of fellows driving through upper Dix Run, conceived the idea to frighten the citizens at the midnight hour; they stopped at Lemour Lindemuth's, called him out of bed, and when he came to the door they said "good night, we'll see you later." They then went to Jesse Irvin's, and also called him up and after that gentleman discovered that they were only "foolin'"; he advised them to skido, and he went back to get his bowtizer. The next place they struck was Thos. Ingram's. To be roused out of bed at that hour of the night, was something unusual, and Tom came down, went to the door in his nighties in a huff—but when he saw there were two big men in an open buggy, he became frightened and called to his wife in a soto voice, "Mariah, bring down my revolver real quick"; but one of the fellows heard it and started off in double quick and said, as they left, "we'll see you again."

With all Phillipsburg bragadocio, about that place being such a great business place, it can't even up with Bellefonte. The former pays $962 mercantile tax, while Bellefonte pays $1039—there now.

As long as the aristocratic citizens of Bellefonte can endure the awful condition of the diamond, the pavement in front of the soldiers monument and some of the streets, the humble citizens of Unionville have no cause to kick on account of their streets and pavements. Strangers coming to Bellefonte might imagine they were in some of the rural villages in "Old Virginia."

A very interesting game of base ball was pulled off in Fisher's meadow, on Saturday afternoon, between our home team and one made up of Bellefonte and Milesburg players. Unionville sat down on the Bellefonte team, 8 to 1. Incidents of the game: Bellefonte had first inning and scored 7. Unionville in their first inning scored 5. The balance of the game was closely contested. Brown, pitcher for B., out of 8 strikes only hit the ball once and struck a foul. Blair Holtzworth, star pitcher for the U's, did it with slick curves. Howard Peters must have had his hands greasy with lubricating oil, at any rate a sky scraper slipped through his hands just as easy, and the fellow made 2nd base. Harold Fisher, after batting the ball, stopped to see if short stop would catch it—he didn't; then he started for 1st base, but as "Sterney" used to say, "he didn't made it." Charley Holt tried to stop a creeper—it wouldn't stop—2nd base for B. Masters Boyd Irvin, George Grist, Laird Morrison and a score of other small boys did the shouting. Bruce Yarnell did some fancy coaching for the U's. Sade Emrick and Squire in Pratt witnessed the play. Prof. J. S. Fox umpired the game, and he's a dandy. Chesney Morrison used a bat with a big hole in it. Take it all in all, it was a splendid game.

Catherine Hess, who was left alone in the house with her baby sister, is supposed to have attempted to start a fire in the stove with coal oil. There was an explosion and when Mrs. entered the kitchen it was in flames. She was burned in trying to rescue the children.
