

Gossip About Famous Folk.

JAMES BUTLER.

AFTER making millions in the grocery trade, having established more than a hundred retail stores in New York city, James Butler has struck another gold mine in the Empire racing track at the outskirts of that city. This track was built by the late William H. Clark, the site having been discovered by Mr. Butler in 1897. At that time Mr. Butler was president of the Driving Club of New York. Always an enthusiastic horseman, he conceived the idea of a track for driving and trotting meets.

Mr. Clark had more ready money than Mr. Butler at the time and he built the track. The plant cost about $750,000. After Mr. Clark's death it was sold under foreclosure proceedings and was bought in by Mr. Butler and an associate for about half what it cost. The remarkable success of the August meet this year is said to have doubled the value of the property. Much of this success was due to the closing of the pool rooms in the metropolises by District Attorney Jerome. Those who wanted to bet on the races were compelled to go to the track, which swelled the attendance far beyond expectation.

Mr. Butler is said to be one of those men whose touch seems to transmute everything into gold.

Booth Tarkington of Indiana has been abroad for some time and has returned with a new play and the manuscripts of two new novels.

The play he calls "The Man From Home," and it was written in collaboration with Harry L. Wilson, author of "The Spenders."

The play is a comedy satire on the American abroad, and it will receive its initial performance in Indiana.

Mr. Tarkington will return to France after his play has been staged. The author gives the following hint of his latest dramatic work:

"The play deals with the adventures of an Indiana lawyer who goes to Europe in reference to the contemplated marriage of his ward to an Englishman of title. He is just the average well-to-do, untraveled citizen you might meet on an accommodation train between Logansport and Kokomo."

Booth Tarkington and James Whitcomb Riley are old friends, and the former tells how he used in his younger days to delight to trail about at the heels of the Hoosier poet, at all hours of the day and night, listening to his "moonings." The strolls usually ended in the small hours of the morning by a lunch of pie, watermelon, strong coffee, Welsh rabbit. This was probably where Tarkington learned to take his breakfast at noon and do his writing by an oil lamp. Mr. Tarkington is exceedingly companionable and is entirely without self-consciousness and egotism. He is a ready and entertaining talker, tells a story as well as he writes it and has a keen sense for the humorous.

Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, who is now recognized as one of the candidates for the Republican presidential nomination in 1908, is swinging around the Chautauqua circuit, on which he is quite popular. The senator's great speech on the railroad rate bill had the distinction of being the longest speech of the congress during which it was delivered. But unfortunately for him it did not get before the country under auspicious circumstances. The speech contained 95,000 words, and about three days were consumed in its delivery. But as the San Francisco earthquake happened about that time the papers were full of this catastrophe to the exclusion of almost all other news. Senator La Follette's experience was somewhat similar to that of his former colleague, Senator Spooner, on one occasion. Four years ago Senator Spooner was scheduled to make the great speech of his life defending the Philippine policy of the administration. He made the speech, and it was a great one, but there never was a line of it printed in the newspapers or anywhere else outside the Record. On the day he made the speech the telegraph wires leading out of Washington all went down because of a sleet storm, and not a word was telegraphed from the city. Spooner might just as well not have spoken, so far as the effect of his speech on the country was concerned.

Pearl Wight, whom President Roosevelt has appointed United States commissioner of internal revenue, to take office next December, is by business a ship chandler in New Orleans.

He was appointed by Chairman Cortelyou to fill the Louisiana vacancy on the Republican national committee.

Mr. Wight belongs to the ship chandlery firm of Woodward, Wight & Co. It is understood that Mr. Wight is now practically the firm.

Mr. Woodward having been made postmaster of New Orleans. In his line of business, which touches the lumber trade intimately, Mr. Wight has figured in various contracts for supplying lumber materials for the Panama canal, for lighthouses and other government works.

The new appointee is said also to be the head of the Lily White organization in Louisiana, a political body which opposes the too active participation of negroes in public affairs.

D. H. Morris, ex-president of the Automobile Club of America, was describing in New York the success of a certain wily automobile cop.

"The man's cleverness is wonderful," Mr. Morris ended. "In some ways it reminds me of the cleverness of old John Jates."

"I thought you said you were going to bring a friend home to dinner with you this evening?" snapped Mrs. Jates as they seated themselves at the beautifully appointed table.

"He couldn't come," John answered calmly.

"And then, with no little enjoyment, the clever fellow fell to upon the first decent meal he had sat down to for some weeks."

William S. Taylor, former governor of Kentucky, who has been living in Indianapolis since his indictment for alleged complicity in the murder of Governor Goebel more than seven years ago, has been offered by Governor Beckham of Kentucky immunity from arrest if he will return to the state and testify in the forthcoming fifth trial of Caleb Powers, who is indicted on a charge practically identical with that which drove ex-Governor Taylor from his native state.

Mr. Taylor is practicing law in Indianapolis. During the past seven years the governor of Kentucky has requested of the successive governors of Indiana the requisition of Taylor, but the Indiana governors have refused to honor the request.

The fugitive declares that he is innocent and that there is a political conspiracy in Kentucky to murder him. He has been out of Indiana but once since his flight. That was when he attended the Republican national convention at Philadelphia in 1900. A plan to kidnap him and carry him to Kentucky was foiled by his friends. The wife of the ex-governor has died during the family's exile.

Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, whose husband has instituted suit for divorce on the ground of desertion, is a daughter of the late General John A. Logan. She was educated at a convent in Georgetown, D. C. Shortly after leaving this institution she married William E. Tucker, who is now a paymaster in the United States army with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Some time ago Mrs. Tucker and her mother, Mrs. John A. Logan, fled charges against Colonel Tucker with the war department. Colonel Tucker was accused of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman. It was alleged that he had not conducted himself properly in the Philippines, the name of a soldier's widow being coupled with his. Mrs. Tucker and her mother sought to have Colonel Tucker reduced or removed from the army, but after investigation the complaint was dismissed. The husband then began divorce action in Chicago.

It is understood that Secretary Taft of the war department, who is bound for the Philippines, will make some further investigation of the stories relating to the army officer. Brigadier General Garlington of the inspector general's department has already spent considerable time on the Tucker case and will soon report.

Billy Muldoon And His Farm

ELIHU ROOT, secretary of state, American prime minister, has been recuperating at Muldoon's for several weeks and expects to continue there several weeks longer until his health is thoroughly built up. Muldoon is in New York state, about two miles from White Plains. Professor William Muldoon builds up rundown men. That is his profession. He has his own peculiar methods, which do not seem peculiar at all, but rather sane and simple. The Muldoon method of treatment may be called a course in regularity. It eliminates all dissipations, either in drinking, eating or working, and cures by making the patient live naturally.

Mr. Muldoon was a cavalry officer during the civil war. He first observed the effects of regular living when, shortly after the war, the United States was trying to recruit the regular army and found that as a rule everybody save the unfortunates who were half starved had had enough of war and would not enlist. The broken down creatures who enlisted to stave off starvation were sent to Muldoon to be worked into shape for service. He put them through a course of regular food, regular work and regular exercise and turned them into fine soldiers.

Later Muldoon became and remained for many years the champion Greco-Roman wrestler of the world. He won bouts and gave exhibitions in all lands. His name was at the head of the list until he voluntarily gave up the title and retired, something less than twenty years ago, to a fine farm which he owned near White Plains.

The ex-wrestler for a generation had been formulating a theory as to the best means for restoring physical efficiency to those who, through misfortune or fault, were broken down. He observed the world more or less crowded with men in the prime of life who appeared to be physical wrecks, though in most instances they were going about their business in a half hearted manner.

Muldoon opened a sort of sanitarium where he began taking patients, just a few men at a time. As a rule, these were well to do New York professional or business men. Some were millionaires. Some had led the high life for years. Others had plucked along at business until their physical selves were stagnated. Still others had overworked themselves mentally, so that they were in the vortex of nervous prostration.

When they got to Muldoon's they had a boss. The boss was Muldoon, "the professor." He told them what to eat and when to eat it. Moreover, he ate along with them. He told them when to go to bed and how long to sleep. If one of the patients could not sleep the nine hours prescribed, from 9 to 6 o'clock, Muldoon fired that patient the next day so that he couldn't help but sleep. He gave the patient extra work that made sleep welcome and necessary.

Work in a considerable degree is the secret of the Muldoon treatment. His patients box, they pitch balls, they walk miles, they ride, they labor at gardening until the sweat drips. One form of work is called passing the medicine balls. Big balls of varying size and weights are thrown from one man to another until a fine perspiration is brought out. Baths and rubbing of course follow.

John L. Sullivan used to train at Muldoon's. The professor was about the only man on earth who could whip the big mass of pugilistic flesh into shape for a fight. The enforced regularity, the prohibition from dissipation, were just what John L. required. Muldoon got the "big fellow" in condition for his fight with Jake Kilrain.

Secretary Root, it is said, was a sick man when he went to Muldoon's about the beginning of August. Perhaps he had worked too hard. Now it is understood that he "feels like a new man."

Muldoon once saw three boys walking along smoking cigarettes.

"There," he remarked, "are three boys who will make scrawny men if they live. Keep the boys away from cigarettes and from beer and liquor, and that's half the battle for physical efficiency."

SHUMAKER AND HUSTON.

Men Mentioned in Connection With Pennsylvania's Capitol Scandal.

Criminal prosecutions are expected shortly in Pennsylvania in connection with the great graft scandal in relation to the building of the new state capitol. The investigating committee which probed the affair has made its report. Following this report James M. Shumaker, who as superintendent of public buildings and grounds was conspicuous in the construction of the capitol, makes a statement in which he promises to spring a sensation.

Shumaker declares that he is innocent of wrongdoing, but that he knows a great deal about the big graft and will go on the witness stand and tell everything. A certain man high in official life at Harrisburg, he says, is doing a bad job. He is not doing his duty. He is not doing his duty. He is not doing his duty. He is not doing his duty.
