

Singer Building, Skyscraper King.

There is a query going the rounds about the already famous Singer building in New York. It goes like this: "Did you know they were going to take four stories off the Singer building?" The one who "bites" replies: "No, How is that?" And the answer comes, "To let the moon pass."

Any one who has stood on Broadway in front of the now completed steel framework of the tallest of New York's skyscrapers can appreciate the point. It seems as if it were in very truth scrapping the sky and in danger of impeding the progress of the stars. The busy rushing throng on Broadway at the noon and luncheon season now has a new diversion. It is watching the steeplejacks who climb the flagpole at the top of the Singer tower, either to perform some errand in connection with the work of construction or merely to show how agile and careless of their movements they can be in doing "stunts" at a height of 700 feet above terra firma, for the ball at the top of the flagpole, which was placed there by a nervous steeplejack one noon while the throng below strained necks in watching the performance, is 708 feet above the street. When the steeplejack, Ernest Capelle, was at his work on the staff, painting the ball at its top a golden hue, while the wind at that height was blowing a gale, he looked like a mere midget, hardly more than a speck against the sky. He lashed himself to the pole and by means of a bo'sun's chair and stirrup worked himself up to the top, chewing tobacco vigorously and taking occasional snapshots with a camera he carried of the fine view or of the buildings and crowd below when tired of laying on the gold paint. He was about two hours on his lofty perch.

The Singer building is the tallest building in downtown New York, wresting the honors that have been held for several years by the Park Row building, hitherto spoken of as the loftiest of New York's skyscrap-

AN EDITOR'S ROMANCE.

Charles Emory Smith's Marriage to Miss Henrietta Nichols. A recent marriage of national interest was that of Charles Emory Smith to Miss Henrietta Nichols. Mr. Smith is famed in politics, diplomacy, journalism and literature. Born in Mansfield, Conn., in 1842, he graduated from Union college just as the civil war began and engaged in the work of raising regiments for the Union army. On the conclusion of the war he became connected with the Albany Express and subsequently was editor of the Albany Journal. He has been editor of the Philadelphia Press since 1880. President Harrison made him

CHARLES EMORY SMITH AND BRIDE.

United States minister to Russia, and when Mr. McKinley became president he invited him into his cabinet as postmaster general, a post in which he served until 1902. He is a contributor to magazines and is well known on the lecture platform and has received the honorary degree of LL. D. from Union, Lafayette, Knox and Wesleyan. His bride is a member of a well known New York family, and one of her ancestors, Sir Richard Nichols, was the first colonial governor of New York. Her great-grandfather, Benjamin Romaine, was the second comptroller of New York city. The nuptials took place at the summer home in Elberon, N. J., of the bride's mother, Mrs. Washington Romaine Nichols.

This marriage is Mr. Smith's second. His first wife, whom he wedded in 1863, was Miss Ella Huntley.

Two Rich Women and Their Work.

MISS HELEN GOULD and Mrs. Russell Sage are two of the wealthiest and at the same time most philanthropic women in the United States, and it is an interesting circumstance that they are intimate friends and frequently confer about the use of the large fortunes in their possession. Miss Gould was an honored guest recently at the dedication of the railroad Y. M. C. A. building in St. Louis, which was built at a cost of $250,000. Of this sum Miss Gould contributed $230,000, and she gave the institution a library of 5,000 volumes also. The building is considered the finest and most completely equipped of any railroad Y. M. C. A. building in the country. Mrs. Sage contributed to the fund for the furnishing of the structure. The latter some time ago gave $50,000 for a new Y. M. C. A. building in Long Island City, a part of Queens borough, New York city. The building is intended for the use of the men employed on the Long Island railroad, many of whom Mrs. Sage knows through having traveled over the road in going to and from her town residence on Fifth avenue and her country home at Lawrence, N. Y. Recently Mrs. Sage added $35,000 to her original gift, making $85,000 in all, the Long Island road giving sufficient to bring the building fund up to $100,000. In this instance, too, Miss Gould co-operated with Mrs. Sage, giving $5,000 toward the furnishing fund.

The two women make a business of bestowing their wealth where it will accomplish most for humanity and aid in the uplifting of many without encouraging dependence and laziness. Mrs. Sage has organized a bureau, with experienced philanthropists and charity experts at its head, through which to disburse the bulk of the money she gives. Miss Gould, too, has reduced giving to a system. Both take special interest in Y. M. C. A.

work, Miss Gould making it a point, on account of the fact that her father's money was largely made through railroads, to expend much of her portion of the same in enterprises for the benefit of railway employees. She gave money to erect the splendid building of the naval branch of the Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn, a clubhouse for boys near her home at Tarrytown and also a house for the Home for Crippled Children which she maintains there. One of her most cherished possessions is a receipt from the United States treasury department for the $100,000 check she gave toward the cost of the Spanish war.

What it means for a person of Miss Gould's position to discriminate in her benevolence between the worthy and the unworthy is explained in the Cosmopolitan Magazine by Miss Ruth Falter Field, formerly one of Miss Gould's secretaries. Or, conversely every man brings quantities of letters for the rich mistress of the English looking country seat at Tarrytown called Lyndhurst, Miss Gould's favorite of her three homes. To properly dispose of the applications for aid most of them contain requires system and no end of labor. For instance, one morning there came an appeal ostensibly from a woman living on New York's east side who was in great distress. Her husband was out of work, and she was soon to become a mother. She did not ask for money, but for a few simple garments. The secretary was directed to purchase an outfit and send it at once, and, there being an unusual rush of work, she was unable to give personal attention to its delivery. Next morning came a letter expressing great appreciation of the gift, but announcing that instead of one new arrival

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root. Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical experts, chemists and writers on "Medicine," who recommend them as the very best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised. A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated, are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

There were twins. Miss Gould at once dispatched a duplicate outfit and later in the day sent her secretary to inquire how the babies were doing. The latter climbed to the top of a tenement and in a wretched apartment found seated by a half emptied whisky bottle two old men, the "twins," "very happy, contented and cordial in their cups."

THE SINGER TOWER IN CONSTRUCTION, WITH STEELJACK AT TOP OF FLAGPOLE.

ers. It is expected that the tower of the Metropolitan Life building on Madison square will beat the record of the Singer building as to height. Its topmost point will be 600 feet above street level, and above that no doubt will be a flagstaff shooting up higher even than fearless Ernest Capelle climbed to place the ball on the staff of the Singer building. The latter building, which fronts on Broadway, is partially inclosed by another giant structure, the City Investment building, not so tall, but containing a greater amount of floor space. Indeed, it is claimed that it is the largest office building in the world. The Singer building tower seems to rise out of it and to be a part of it, but it is in reality a separate structure. The work on the two enterprises, which is progressing at a rapid rate, affords a most interesting and significant spectacle.

Pittsburg is to have a skyscraper of dizzy height too. In fact, the claim is being made that the height record established in New York will be beaten by the Pittsburg rival of the Singer and Metropolitan Life buildings. It will cost, exclusive of its site, $2,000,000.

The erection of a modern steel structure to a height of nearly fifty stories is a task requiring the genius of the best equipped engineers and architects of this strenuous era, for the ordinary rules must be supplemented or set aside where a building is to be carried up an eighth of a mile into the air, equipped with elevators to take up and down the constantly moving loads of human freight and provided with all possible safeguards against destruction by the raging elements.

A Cynical View.

He—Do you believe that there is such a thing as true and lasting love? She—Possibly, but I sometimes doubt it. He—Well, there's Mr. and Mrs. Gessing, for example. They have been married ten years, and they seem to never want to lose sight of each other. Doesn't that look like true and lasting love? She—It may be that, but it looks to me more like true and lasting jealousy.—Exchange.

STATUE OF CANO.

A Work of Art in the Hall Where Taft Was Welcomed to Manila.

There is an interesting work of art in the corridor of the Ayuntamiento, or hall of sessions, at Manila, where Secretary Taft was formally welcomed on his recent arrival in the capital city of the Philippines. It was in this hall that the old Spanish viceroys used to give audience. In front of the main entrance stands a statue of Cano, the Spanish navigator. Juan Sebastian del Cano is renowned as the first to circumnavigate the globe. He was born in Guetaria and became captain of a vessel trading with Africa and the Levant. He was in command of one of the five vessels composing Magellan's famous expedition and after Magellan's death succeeded the deposed Carabello as its chief. He visited the Moluccas and reached Spain with one ship in 1522, thus completing the circuit of the globe. He was appointed second in command to Loaisa in another expedition of five vessels which set forth in July, 1520, but the enterprise met with misfortunes. Storm and disease attacked the party while in the Pacific, and Cano himself died on Aug. 4, 1520. The vessel in which he completed his first voyage, the Victoria, was long preserved at Seville.

Cure Your Dandruff

Why? Because it is annoying, untidy. And mostly, because it almost invariably leads to baldness. Cure it, and save your hair. Get more, too, at the same time. All easily done with Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula. Stop this formation of dandruff! Does not change the color of the hair.

The new Ayer's Hair Vigor will certainly do this work, because, first of all, it destroys the germs which are the original cause of dandruff. Having given this aid, nature completes the cure. The scalp is restored to a perfectly healthy condition. —Made by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.—
