

FRANCIS SPEER'S

Breezy "That" Column

THAT many a man in Bellefonte has become crooked by drinking straight whisky.

THAT the headache of a Bellefonte woman is natural, but with the men, that's different.

THAT "Jake" Marks, of Bellefonte, says that the onion market would be a strong one to corner.

THAT Will Weber, of Howard, says that many a Wall street broker started life on a farm watering stock.

THAT some women in Bellefonte would make a big "hit" if they would substitute home made bread for wafers.

THAT Sim Baum, of Bellefonte, says that every man ought to have, at least, an umbrella laid up for a rainy day.

THAT George Williams, the popular Howard baker, says that he kneads the dough because he needs the money.

THAT S. H. Williams, of Bellefonte, wants to know when Bellefonte will resemble a cow. When it goes dry, of course.

THAT good clothes will never add refinement to the woman in Bellefonte whose private life is as crooked as a dog's hind leg.

THAT a good girl in the kitchen of Bellefonte is worth more than three lazy girls in the parlor; we often mistake this distinction.

THAT many maiden ladies in Bellefonte can be classed as heroines, and deserve recognition, because they are just dying for a man.

THAT when Frank Dawson plays billiards with Lew Gettig he has to watch his cue. Lew is used to shooting the "bull's" eye, you know.

THAT J. Howard Klinge, the live and energetic Bellefonte machinist, is of the opinion that even a stationary engine is no good if it doesn't run.

THAT Wagner Geiss, of Bellefonte, who takes a great pride in raising poultry, says that hens lay eggs because they cannot stand them on end.

THAT when Fred Waite, of Bellefonte, goes to see his girl on the hill he should not kiss her on the front porch. The mouth is the place for that.

THAT judging from the frequent calls of a nice young man at the Bellefonte Fraternity house they must use a large quantity of milk and cream.

THAT the appeal of Prof. John D. Meyer for second-hand clothing for distribution among the poor children of Bellefonte should not go unheeded.

THAT it is getting to be the fashion in Bellefonte that about the time a girl's father stops giving her dolls, she has the real thing to claim her attention.

THAT "Billy" Walker, of Bellefonte, will have to get another contract from Forest Bullock if he wants to continue his evening visits to the Theatrum.

THAT Matt Dooley, of Bellefonte, says that there are some women in Bellefonte who are like a coal fire. Their husbands have to watch them or they will go out.

THAT Bellefonte has in it a number of men and women who are always criticizing the church, who never contribute the price of a "War Cry" to a religious cause.

THAT judging from the frequent calls of a young student on North Thomas street one would imagine that the location of the Bellefonte Academy had been changed.

THAT when some men in Bellefonte start out with the purpose of doing some persons a good deed they always stop in front of a mirror and that's all the farther they get.

THAT the wife of a certain grafter in Bellefonte told her husband the other evening to leave the plumb tree for awhile and go down into the cellar and shake the furnace.

THAT Frank Davis, the efficient cigar maker, at Kniseley's cigar manufactory, is afflicted with the gout. He resides on the top of Reservoir Hill, and the general impression is he is living entirely too high.

THAT Wilbur Baney, of Bellefonte, who thoroughly understands the art of selling shoes, wants to know how long girls should be courted. Precisely the same as short girls, only he has to reach higher.

THAT it is to be greatly regretted that some of the best homes in Bellefonte are brought into disrepute by girls running after agents and drummers who come to town; often these strangers turn out to be married men.

THAT Calder Ray, manager of the canvas glove manufactory, is now writing his business letters on a new typewriter. Next thing he ought to have is a real pretty young lady stenographer and then he would be fixed right up to snuff.

THAT any time Deputy Sheriff Fred Rees lets a Hungarian punch him way back in the corner well make 'er good. Fred isn't built just that way. A pretty winsome young lady would stand a better chance of getting the officer in a corner.

THAT a certain lady in Bellefonte who is very much enthused over the local option movement, thinks that it would be inappropriate and very much out of place, to wear a wine colored silk dress to the W. C. T. U. meeting. Watered silk is in harmony with the cause, and is much preferred.

THAT there is a certain man in Bellefonte who is rather skeptical about a camel going through the eye of a needle. He is the last man on earth who ought to disbelieve a story of this kind, because he has a wife who weighs 250 pounds, and yet she goes through his pockets every night.

THAT the fellow at the P. R. R. water tank the other night about 12 o'clock was all right, but the puzzle is where did the fair damsel disappear so suddenly? It was a pretty smooth trick, but the young lady ought to have had wings in order to have escaped unnoticed.

THAT it looks a little as if a certain young fellow in Bellefonte, who took a seat with the driver on the water wagon at the beginning of the year had fallen off. He was pretty badly tangled up in the lines on Thursday, the first thing he knows his name will be mud.

DOT VOLENTINE.

Dot Volentine, already yet, I got him by der shore. But now sometimes I always think I will dot do no more. I put him in der office-post. Und dot was purty mean. Mit vorse as polder writing on. Und send him to Katrine. Katrine she was mine wife, you know. (Ach Himmel dot was basel. For vhen she got dot Volentine. Like dander she vas mad. She shoked me by der neck so black as neter vas I bet. Und all because dot Volentine. She sel I send him yet. Katrine she vas mine wife und I Confess vhen she vas cross Dhere ain't no use to argy-- Katrine, she vas der boss. She made mine blinker blue as black. Und pulled mine vhskers out; I dink dot Katrine vas der boss Dhere vassn't any doubt. I shwore me off on Volentines. She made me so near dead. When I did Katrine send von--I Von't be no angel yet.

A Century of Hard Coal.

On Tuesday the city of Wilkesbarre celebrated a centenary as significant as that of the birth of a statesman or the founding of the commonwealth. It is just 100 years ago that the first successful experiment of burning hard coal for domestic purposes was made. Anthracite has done as much during these hundred years to build up the nation's industrial supremacy as any man whose name could be placed upon the roll of fame, and if the state be regarded as something more than a geographical subdivision, if resources count rather than area, if the extension of influence and increase of wealth be equivalent to an addition of territory, then the utilization of anthracite as fuel by Jesse Fell was practically the discovery of a new state. His success with burning the "stone" as it was called, was considered a wonderful event and he made note of it on a leaf of a copy of the Free Mason's Monitor, which fixes the date of the experiment as Feb. 11, 1808, and the place as the borough of Wilkesbarre.

Lewisburg Trolley.

That the officials of the trolley company connecting Lewisburg, Milton and Watsonown have at last solved the problem of entering Lewisburg is indicated by the fact that mortgages have been received for recording by Register and Recorder William E. Housel, of Union county, and by Recorder Nicely, of Northumberland county. The amount specified is $300,000, and the transaction was negotiated between the Lewisburg, Milton and Watsonown Passenger Railway Company and the New York Trust Company. It has been announced that bonds have issued for the building of a street railway bridge across the river here. This move will provide for a continuous track across the Susquehanna river through the three towns.

Corn Syrup is the Correct Name.

An important question in the administration of the pure food law was settled today in a decision made public by Secretaries Wilson, Cortelyou and Straus. The decision follows: "We have given careful consideration to the labeling of the thick viscous syrup obtained by the incomplete hydrolysis of the starch of corn and composed essentially of dextrose, maltose and extrins. In our opinion it is lawful to label this syrup as corn syrup, and if to the corn syrup there is added a small percentage of refined syrup the mixture, in our judgement, is not misbranded if labelled corn syrup with can flavor."

Seed Corn Scarce.

The slump in last fall's corn crop in this country, and all over the country, by the crop largely not maturing, most of farmers will be obliged to buy their seed for planting, the coming spring. It is a question whether the corn that had seemingly matured will be fit for seed-corn even. Much of the corn in the cribs may look sound outside but in the centre it will be found a mass of moldiness. Seed-corn will be high in price and possibly will have to be imported to supply the demand. Farmers will do wisely by getting healthy seed-corn early.

More Than a Joke.

While P. A. Zindel, a merchant of Lock Haven, was seated on a chair which was tipped back against a post in his store, at noon Thursday, Wm. McDonald entered and playfully caught Mr. Zindel by the foot when the chair slipped from its place and Mr. Zindel fell to the floor, striking the back of his head with such violence that he was rendered unconscious. Two physicians worked for some time before he was restored to consciousness, and the mishap came very near proving fatal.

Calvin Coble, of Oak Hall, has in his possession an old English coin that looks as if it might be valuable as a relic. It would be alright if Mr. Coble would get $1000 for it some day.

A GOULD ON THE STAGE.

Mistress of Georgian Court and Her Acting at a "Dramatic Tea." The appearance of Mrs. George Gould in a play before an audience of society people at the Plaza hotel in New York recently recalled the days when as Edith Kingdon she was a favorite of the professional stage. She then belonged to the once famous Daly stock company, and it was her charming appearance behind the footlights that won the fancy and then the heart of her husband, who is regarded as the present head of the Gould house. She has appeared on the stage but once before since her entrance into the Gould family, and that was at a house party at the Gould country home at Lakewood, N. J., Georgian Court. The society affair in which she recently participated was called a "dramatic tea," and Mrs. Gould filled the leading role in the farce by Edward Van Zile entitled "Mrs. Van Vechten's Divorce Dance." The tea was given by Frederick Townsend Martin. The principal male role in the play was taken by Kyrie Hellev. The performance was one of the leading events of the society season in New York. The stage was set with properties furnished largely from Mrs. Gould's home, and she wore in the play a French gown of point lace built on cream satin and chiffon and trimmed with strands of pearls. She wore as ornaments a tiara of pearls, four ropes of pearls and a collar of pearls bordered with diamonds.

BROWN BUTTER SAUCE.

Several Recipes For Serving With the Fish Course.

Place the desired amount of butter in a saucepan and heat until it becomes a rich brown color. Take care, however, that it does not burn. Add a little vinegar or lemon juice and pour over the fish or joint with which it is to be served. Another brown sauce is made by putting in a saucepan two tablespoonfuls of butter and two tablespoonfuls of flour. Cook until the flour is brown, stirring all the time. Then pour in one cup and a half of boiling water, simmering and stirring until smooth and thickened.

A still richer brown sauce is made in this way: Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan over the fire. Then add one sliced onion, one small carrot, one-half of a turnip chopped fine, a bay leaf and sprig of parsley. Cover and simmer fifteen minutes. Then place over the fire, where the vegetables will color without burning. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour, stirring until the flour is well browned.

Add gradually two cups of stock, half a dozen peppercorns, three cloves and a blade of mace, with salt to season. Cover and simmer twenty minutes and serve. This sauce may serve as the foundation for the bordelaise sauce or may be varied by adding wine, lemon juice or mushrooms, thus making many different sauces with the same foundation.

He Always Remembered.

A smile lurked at the corners of Mrs. Lombard's mouth as she listened to the plaint of the school friend whom she had not seen for more than ten years. "I'm afraid, dear," she said, "you'll have to reconstruct some of your plans. You see, I married a forgetful man too."

"Why, you told me not ten minutes ago that your husband had never yet forgotten your birthday or your wedding anniversary," cried her friend, "and you told me you'd been married nearly eleven years! That's ever since the year after father took us all abroad."

"Yes," said Mrs. Lombard demurely, "I have. That's a long time, isn't it? But, you see, one thing was in my favor—I was born on the Fourth of July. Mr. Lombard couldn't very well forget the national holiday. And as soon as I'd found out how forgetful he was I decided to be married on another holiday."

"I suppose as you were abroad you didn't realize that the date of my wedding was unusual—people aren't often married on the 22d of February, I think. But, you see, by a little judicious planning I've been saved the necessity of reminding him about our anniversary."—Youth's Companion.
