

FRANCIS SPEER'S

Breezy "That" Column

THAT because a girl in Bellefonte wears button shoes is no sign that she isn't straight laced.

THAT few young men in Bellefonte sow their wild oats without getting some eye mixed in with it.

THAT the worthless man in Bellefonte is the fellow who does nothing through the day and is rushed after supper.

THAT one penalty for a man in Bellefonte not liking his wife's new Easter hat is he can pay for another one.

THAT the reason few women in Bellefonte stutter is because they have no time to waste when they are talking.

THAT Herman Robb, the shoemaker at A. C. Mingle's, says that the only way he can make it is by pegging away.

THAT the best man in Bellefonte is the one who bestows a favor and forgets it, but when he receives one he remembers it.

THAT the next thing Frank Rowe, of Bellefonte, knows, he will be a jeweler. That is if he doesn't keep off Bishop street.

THAT here is one for the students of the Bellefonte High school: Can water be carried in a sieve? Now don't all answer at once.

THAT John M. Bair, of Bellefonte, says that it is indeed a rare youth who never sent his best girl something soft—fruit, candy or letters.

THAT Joseph Alters, Bellefonte's new policeman, says that he has discovered that it makes a man all the hotter to be put in the cooler.

THAT Lewie Grauer, the Bellefonte merchant, says that the town is full of women who can drive a bargain better than that they can drive a nail.

THAT any young man in Bellefonte who is contemplating matrimony should remember that love is the wine of life; marriage the morning after.

THAT they say that "Bent" Tate, of Bellefonte, at one time was a glass eater. The reason he quit it was because he got a "pane" in his stomach.

THAT Hon. Phil Womelsdorf, of Philipsburg, says that if you call a policeman over there a lobster the chances are that you would get pinched.

THAT constable H. H. Montgomery, of Bellefonte, who often has to act as a detective, thinks that it is not a difficult task to spot a girl who has freckles.

THAT Homer Barnes says that the lamps he sells in his china store are like some after-dinner speakers in Bellefonte. More brilliant when they are full.

THAT James Harris, the Bellefonte tailor, says that there is nothing like three babies in the house. They seem to fill a small house so that nothing else is missed.

THAT the man in Bellefonte who joins the church simply for mercenary purposes and to elevate his social standing is the man who will burn in hades like a tar barrel.

THAT there is a man in Bellefonte who quite frequently forsakes the path of veracity in order to gain a little money but he may be sure that some day his sins will find him out.

THAT they say that there were several families in Bellefonte who moved between evening and morning in order to save paying rent. A man who will do that is an undesirable citizen.

THAT the pretty girls of Howard had better get a bustle on as leap year will close without any of them making their calling and election sure. This is the time when they can make or break.

THAT there is a woman in Bellefonte whose wedding ring has worn thin from the friction of the broom handle in trying to make her husband keep his vows and promises, made at the marriage altar.

THAT the other evening a prominent man, with a "jag" on, went into one of the Bellefonte restaurants and ordered a Hamlet omelet. Where he staggered onto that kind of a hamsandwich is difficult to tell.

THAT when a girl of Bellefonte gives a young man no rest day or night because she is teetotally gone on him her head ought to be dipped in a bucket of water the same as is done with an old hen who wants to sit.

THAT the other day James C. Furst, Esq., asked John Trafford, janitor at the temple of justice, what moral lesson the weather cock, on top of the court house spire, John reply was, "It is vane to a spire."

THAT Philip Beizer, vice-president of the Centre County poultry club, says that even some of his hens are becoming temperance cranks. They are worrying for fear some of their eggs will be used for making egg-nog.

THAT the biggest coward in Bellefonte is the man who is afraid to do right because it would be detrimental to increasing his worldly goods which, someday, he must part with at the grave. What fools these mortals be.

THAT in eternity some people of Bellefonte will find that it would have been more profitable for them to have gotten more wisdom and less gold. These people most always know more than the Almighty what their own future will be.

THAT there are several young men in Bellefonte who could use, to good advantage, some of the money they squandered buying flowers and candles for their wives before they were married. Its all past, however, so what is the use in crying over spilt milk.

THAT the next time the chap in Bellefonte, with the light hair, goes into forbidden paths he wants to dye his locks. He was seen going out the back door the other night minus his derby, which he can reclaim by calling for it at a reasonable hour of the day.

THAT there are some girls in Bellefonte who were told that they were worth their weight in gold, who, since their marriage are looking as thin as a fence rail. It isn't all gold that glitters. They are finding out that marriage is not what it is cracked up to be.

THAT if Centre county should vote for local option the Poo Poo Gang in Bellefonte can drink a concoction made of Huggie Taylor's gas tar and Longer Wiant's kerosene. The borough authorities could probably make use of them then by putting a match to their hair, thus making torches out of them.
