THE TALKING JACKETS.

A Bit of Conversation Overheard From a Closet.

There was an uneasy stir at one side of the closet. It was Lou's jacket. Finally it spoke in a tired, nervous voice:

"Oh, dear! Lou has left me hanging by a loop, and my shoulders sag so that I can hardly get my breath. I don't know how I can ever look nice and fresh if I get no rest."

May's jacket roused itself to answer: "You poor thing, I am so sorry for you! Now, my shoulders are resting pos hits make lots of fun. so nicely on this coat frame. May is never in too much of a hurry to slip men only, each having the name of me well on it. Tomorrow some one will be sure to say to her, 'How fresh and nice your jacket looks!"

"That's just it!" grumbled Lou's facket. "And they will say to Lou: How wrinkled your jacket is! It ly laughable. doesn't seem to keep its shape at all well.' And all the time it is not my fault. How can I rest hung only by Muvver, you called me a witch, you a loop, and that not a strong one? There's a button off, too, and a three cornered tear in one elbow that makes me very uncomfortable. I suppose me very uncomfortable. I suppose An' witches they always have black cats. when it is torn bigger her mother will So I'm teachin' Tommy to ride on a see it and mend it for her. Oh, dear, But up in the nurs'ry I didn't have room this loop is giving way, and I am going to fall to the floor! I suppose that means dust and more wrinkles."

With a gasp, the jacket sat down, falling directly upon a pair of muddy overshoes.

May's jacket peered down through darkness to where the other lay for a moment, then settled itself for a quiet nap. It looked so fresh and bright the next morning that no one ever dreamed it knew all about the troubles of Lou's

A QUEER LIGHTHOUSE.

Lampless Beacon In the Hebrides Lights the Mariner's Way.

On Armish rock, in the Hebrides, Scotland, there is a lighthouse without a light. That does not mean that the light has been removed from it; that the house is no longer used for its legitimate purpose. On the contrary, it serves as a beacon for the sailors and fishermen every night, and yet there is no light in it.

It is perhaps the most remarkable lighthouse in the world. It is conical in shape, and at the summit is a lan- from that dog? tern in which there is a mirror. On Lewis island, 500 feet distant, is an he'd bite me.

The rays of this light are reflected to an arrangement of prisms, which make them converge to boys." a focus outside the lantern, and from there they diverge in the necessary direction. Thus a lighthouse exists that has neither lamp nor keeper, and yet it serves all the purposes in its locality of a costly and elaborate structure with all the accessories that modern lighthouses have.

Art In Humble Things. Two street sweepers were quarreling one day about their talent in street sweeping.

"Well, Bill," said one, "I admit that you can clean up the middle of a street all right, but you ain't capable of doing an ornamental piece of work, like sweeping around a trolley pole."

Why They Applauded.

A theatrical troupe after an unsuscessful tour finally arrived in a small New Jersey town. That night, though there was no furore or general uprising of the audience, there was enough hand clapping to arouse the troupe's dejected spirits. The leading man stepped to the footlights after the first act and bowed profoundly. Still the clapping continued.

When he went behind the scenes he saw an Irish stage hand laughing heartily. "Well, what do you think of that?" asked the actor, throwing out his chest.

"What d'ye mane?"

"Why, the hand clapping out there. They are giving me enough applause to show they appreciate me." "Whoi, thot's not applause! That's erybody's.

An Englishman was being shown Chicago by some friends who had been entertained by him in London. They couldn't interest him. He was bored at everything. Finally in desperation they took him to see a vaudeville show. The big act of the night was an "impalement" act, where a young woman stood against a board and a man threw knives at her, outlining her on the board.

The Englishman watched for a few minutes. Then he yawned and said: "Well, old chaps, let's be going. Deuced bore, I call it. 'E's thrown at her 'alf a dozen times and 'asn't 'it 'er once!"
