

E. D. CRUMPACKER.

THE Sixtieth congress assemblies for its second and short session under conditions which are rather unusual. A national election has just been held, and the party in possession of the government has been sustained in power. There will be no change in the political complexion of the majority in either branch of congress or of the executive branch of the government. Nevertheless there will be a change in the head of the government, and while President Elect Taft has promised to carry forward the "Roosevelt policies," he will naturally have his own way of doing things and his own preferences in the matter of legislation to be furthered. There is interest among the nation's legislators as to the course things will take after the 4th of March next. Of most immediate concern, however, to the members of the Sixtieth congress are the legislative matters left over from the last session and those which will claim foremost attention in consequence of President Roosevelt in his annual message or in special messages to congress to be expected later in the session. Mr. Roosevelt is anxious that before he surrenders the reins of government to his successor laws should be on the statute books embodying, in addition to the acts that already have been passed in execution of the administration's policies, such further enactments as may serve to complete the record. Some of these subjects, such as those bearing on labor interests and that respecting amendment of the Sherman law to permit railroad pools under government supervision, are expected to occasion debate.

When congress assembled after the national election of 1904 Mr. Roosevelt had been chosen as the occupant of the White House for the ensuing four years, and no special changes in affairs at Washington were anticipated. Eight years ago Mr. McKinley had just been chosen to succeed himself. Twelve years ago Mr. Cleveland, a Democrat, turned the executive power over to a Republican successor, as he, four years previously, had received the same authority from a Republican predecessor, Benjamin Harrison. Again, going back another four years, one finds Mr. Harrison taking the reins from a political opponent, Mr. Cleveland. There was also a change of parties when Mr. Cleveland succeeded President Chester A. Arthur. One has to go back to the inauguration of Garfield, twenty-eight years ago, to find a Republican, President Rutherford B. Hayes, retiring from the presidency and handing the reins over to a successor of the same political faith.

The fact that tariff revision is to be a leading issue in the next congress, even though no enactments on the subject are to be attempted this session, makes it inevitable that there should be considerable discussion of the matter now. Then, too, the hearings before the house ways and means committee, of which Congressman Sereno E. Payne is chairman, have served to keep the question in mind. Mr. Payne is one of the veterans of the halls of legislation at Washington, and his mind is a big storehouse of information on matters pertaining to the tariff schedules. He has participated in the framing of a number of noted measures on the subject and has talked tariff since the days when some of the younger congressmen were in the infant class. Another prominent figure at the hearings has been Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, who is regarded as the logical successor of John Sharp Williams of Mississippi as minority leader in the house. Mr. Williams surrendering this position to go on a European trip prior to entering the senate. Congressman Clark has been a good deal in evidence at the tariff hearings, never losing a chance to make a point for his party in matters pertinent to the inquiry.

CHAMP CLARK.

Ordinarily Frank H. Hitchcock, who was chairman of the Republican national committee in the recent campaign and who is slated to be in the next cabinet, would not figure at all in the doings of this congress. But in view of the plans being laid by one element or another as to the organization of the next house Mr. Hitchcock comes into the game even at its present stage. He was very successful in managing Judge Taft's canvass for the presidential nomination and later on his campaign for the presidency. It is natural that the president elect should rely on him for help and advice in carrying out any plans as to beginning his administration under conditions favorable to the execution of his pledges.

of Ohio has for some years been one of the leading members of the house of representatives, and he is especially in the eye at present because of the talk of him as a candidate for the speakership. Should any differences arise between the next administration and the present speaker, Uncle Joe Cannon of Illinois, in regard to the program to be observed on tariff revision Mr. Burton would, it is said, be the man to receive the Taft support for the speakership in the Sixty-first congress. Since the committee on ways and means has been giving hearings on the subject of the tariff schedules the question of the policy to be pursued under President Taft and the subject of how the Republican majority in the house will be organized has naturally been uppermost in the talk of the statesmen at Washington.

Another house leader who is now specially prominent is Representative Edgar Dean Crumpacker of Indiana, who began his service at Washington in the Fifty-fifth congress. He is a close friend of Speaker Cannon and has been active in denying rumors of any impending conflict between him and the president elect.

Meantime the president elect himself is watching the progress of events from a congenial southern climate and getting in training for the heavy responsibilities he is to assume. Golf he still finds most conducive to this result. It was last summer that he said one day:

"I would like to get on the scales and weigh, but I am not going to permit myself, for I might be disappointed in the belief that my daily exercise on the golf links has reduced my weight. I am convinced that I could have done nothing in the way of exercise that would have done me more good than has the daily game of golf, which I have so religiously played. But I am afraid that instead of reducing my flesh I have simply hardened my muscles. I never felt more fit in my life for any task."

Mr. Taft announced at the time that he should not dispose of his riding horse nor should he buy another. He has become very much attached to the animal he has ridden for so long.

"He is a good horse," he remarked, "and the other day when he stumbled and I lit on my shoulder over his head he made no attempt to move. And, besides," added Mr. Taft frankly, "I haven't the money to spend on another horse."

J. Hampton Moore, who represents the Third Pennsylvania district in congress and who has been conspicuous recently in connection with the meeting at Baltimore of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association, is one of the newer congressmen who have become talked about in consequence of the prominence of legislation to preserve the natural resources of the country. Deep waterways, forest preservation, irrigation, etc., will be much under discussion in connection with the legislation of the present session. Representative Moore is president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association. He is a Republican, was born at Woodbury, N. J., in 1864, educated in the common schools, was office boy, law student, court reporter, municipal clerk, editor and publisher, member of legislature and served in the house first as a member of the Fifty-first congress.

A NEW HEIR.

At an Ancient French House Causes Much Joy.

There is great joy in an ancient French house because a little, kicking baby exists who can be called the new Duc de Chaulnes de Piquigny. When Theodore Perry Shonts, former president of the Panama canal commission, gave his daughter Theodora in marriage to the young scion of French aristocracy who had so assiduously sought her hand the nuptials formed one of the leading matrimonial events of the season. That was last winter, and the honeymoon was scarcely over before the hand of death was laid upon the groom, and he expired suddenly in his apartments in Paris. The young duchess, so soon a widow, is now a mother. She is but nineteen years of age and is considered a very brilliant as well as a beautiful girl. The new heir to the glory of the family heritage will bear the name of his dead father, Emmanuel Theodore Bernard Marie d'Albert de Luyne Sully, and the Theodore in his name is considered to be in remembrance also of his grandfather, who is very proud of the little duke.

TRUMAN H. NEWBERRY. The New Secretary of the Navy. Very Popular in Washington D. C.

POPULARITY in Washington and the naval service augurs well for the new secretary of the navy. The elevation of Truman H. Newberry, now assistant secretary, to the post at present occupied by Victor H. Metcalf becomes effective Dec.

1. Mr. Metcalf's resignation is due to ill health. Mr. Newberry has seen much service as acting secretary of the navy and so will not be unfamiliar with his new duties. He was born at Detroit in 1864. His father, John S. Newberry, helped to develop Michigan in the early days and was associated in business with the McMillans. Later the elder Newberry went to congress, and his son got his first taste of Washington official life.

Four years ago Truman H. Newberry was a candidate for nomination as representative in congress, but Representative Edwin Denby made a personal canvass and defeated him. Mr. Newberry turned in and helped to elect Mr. Denby, and President Roosevelt invited him to become assistant secretary of the navy.

Mrs. Newberry was Miss Harriet Barnes, daughter of General Barnes of Brooklyn. Miss Carol Newberry was presented to society last winter, and twin boys, Barnes and Phelps, are preparing for Yale at Lakeville, Conn.

As a rule the less a man has to do the less time he has to do it. It's all right to love your enemies, but dont slight your friends to do it.

Vanity of Men.

In a woman's club, over tea and cigarettes, a group of ladies cited many instances of the foolish vanity of males.

"Take the case of bees," one said. "Because the queen bee rules the hive, because she is the absolute mistress of millions of subjects, man up to a few hundred years ago denied her sex. He called her the king bee. "Pliny wrote somewhere, 'The king bee is the only male, all the rest being females.' And Moses Rusden, beekeeper to Charles II., stoutly denied, in order to please his royal master, that the large bee, the ruler of the hives, belonged to the gentler sex. "Even Shakespeare couldn't bear to think that the bee of bees, the largest and wisest and fairest, the hive's absolute lord, was a female. No, all the proofs notwithstanding, Shakespeare called her a male. Don't you remember the lines— "Creatures that by a rule in nature take The act of order to a peopled kingdom. They have a king and officers of sorts." —New Orleans Times-Democrat
