John Irwin, of Bellefonte, died at his residence at Bryn Mawr last Friday night, aged sixty-nine years, and was burried at Pottsville, on Tuesday. Mr. Bright was a member of the firm of Griscom, Bright & Co., which succeeded Judge Irwin in management of the Howard Iron Works years ago, and was well known to many of our older citizens. His family are still frequent visitors in Howard.

It is a pleasure to note that Cookman Leathers, who has been under treatment for appendicitis in the Lock Haven hospital, has returned home very much improved without the necessity of an operation.

The musical entertainment in the Evangelical church last Thursday was a really enjoyable occasion and reflects great credit upon the musical talent of our town, as well as upon those who inaugurated and carried it out. The programme seemed a somewhat ambitious one, but the patient and earnest training of Miss Rhoads, added to the native ability of the participants, enabled them to execute it in a delightfully successful way. Lacking space to tell of the individual excellence of those who took part, it will not be deemed invidious to say that Miss Thomas' rendition of the pantomine "Nearer, still Nearer," of the pantomine "Nearer, still Nearer," which is sentimentably religious in its character, gave evidence of histrionic ability which is worthy of larger oppor-unities and should be developed.
