

SOME INDIAN WARRIORS MY 'SHADOWS' END BY BUFFALO BILL FROM TRUE TALES OF THE PLAINS

AFTER the Custer massacre General Miles was left in command on the Yellowstone and erected huts for his troops and stores, which were brought from the Missouri river by wagon.

The Indians greatly annoyed his supply trains, and on one occasion the train had to return on account of the strength of the Indians. This roused the general's ire, and instead of the demoralized teamsters he equipped it with soldiers as such and fighting men to accompany them.

Although the country swarmed with Indians and no reply had come, Miles attacked them with such vigor that they left many of their dead on the field, which they never liked to do, and continued a hot pursuit for over forty miles, compelling them to abandon food, lodge poles, camp equipage and ponies.

Sitting Bull and his hostile cronies left the main body and escaped northward, where they were joined by Gall and some other chiefs. This bitter experience was an astonishment to Sitting Bull and the Sioux, so that it left that section free from their immediate depredations.

Miles' winter campaign, in short, was effective. The next May found Miles after the Minneconjous, under Lame Deer, whom he followed with pack trains and no incumbrances. He surprised them on the Muddy and had them completely surrounded, while a dash by Lieutenant Casey had cut them off from their ponies.

Soon after the events just narrated a man I dearly loved and trusted, who had stood beside me at many a trying time, had ridden many a weary ride and scouted with me under great difficulties, met his fate—Jim White, 'Buffalo Chips.'

A package of winter clothes had arrived for me by the river route, and in parting I had given him my best overcoat, a hat and other togs, and his death for awhile caused the Indians to report that Pe-Ha-Has-Ka (that is my Indian name) had fallen, and in several tribes there were held premature obituary rejoicings.

I will tell General Charles King, who was present, tell the story, which he has done in his history, 'Campaigning With Crook.'

'This time it is not my purpose to write of 'Buffalo Bill,' but for him of another whom I've not yet named. The last time we met, Cody and I, he asked me to put in print a brief notice of a comrade who was very dear to him, and it shall be done now.

This Montana winter, almost continually below zero and at times so cold that the mercury froze solid, tried the soldiers severely.

The whole equipment and clothing of the soldiers had to be rearranged, and furs and buffalo robes, deer hides and beaver skins had to be drawn upon from the trading posts on the Missouri and from the agencies. For instance, leather belts of all kinds were replaced by canvas ones.

He gave the command a most determined fight that nothing but the shrewdness of Miles won, as it waged for hours, the last part of the struggle being in a blinding snowstorm. Several chiefs were killed and a big 'medicine man' whom Indian superstition thought invincible, disheartening his followers.

Crazy Horse fretted under the restraint of Camp Robinson, and, information showing that he was planning to leave the agency with some of the worst of the disaffected, it was thought best to arrest him.

The Cheyennes who surrendered to Miles were treated by him in such a brotherly manner that he eventually gained their affection and from among them enlisted a corps, like the old Pawnees on the Platte, as scouts.

I will tell General Charles King, who was present, tell the story, which he has done in his history, 'Campaigning With Crook.'

'This time it is not my purpose to write of 'Buffalo Bill,' but for him of another whom I've not yet named. The last time we met, Cody and I, he asked me to put in print a brief notice of a comrade who was very dear to him, and it shall be done now.

'James White was his name, a man little known east of the Missouri, but on the plains he was 'Buffalo Bill's' shadow. I had met him for the first time at McPherson Station, in the Platte valley, in 1871 when he came to me with a horse and the simple introduction that he was a friend of Cody's.

flanks of the column, and I got to know him well. A simpler minded, gentler frontiersman never lived. He was modest and courteous combined, conspicuous mainly because of two or three unusual traits for his class—he never drank, I never heard him swear, and no man ever heard him lie.

'For years he had been Cody's faithful follower, half servant, half 'partner.' He was Bill's 'fidus Achates.' Bill was his adoration. They had been boys together, and the hero worship of extreme youth was simply intensified in the man. He copied Bill's dress, his gait, his carriage, his speech—everything he could copy.

'Poor, honest hearted 'Chips' His story was a brief one after we had launched out from where Cody left us to carry some dispatches for Terry. 'Chips' remained in his capacity as scout, though he seemed sorely to miss his 'partner.'

'It was just two weeks after that we struck the Sioux at Slim Butte. As the head of our column jogged in among the lodges General Carr directed us to keep on down to face the bluffs to the south, and Mills pointed to a ravine opening out into the village, with the warning: 'Look out for that gully. There are Indians hidden in there, and they've knocked over some of my men.'

'Everybody was too busy just then to pay much attention to two or three wounded Indians in a hole. We were sure of getting them when wanted. So, placing a couple of sentinels where they could warn stragglers away from its front, we formed line along the south and west of the captured village and got everything ready to resist the attack we knew they would soon make in full force.

'Half a dozen soldiers got permission to go over and join in, while the rest of us were hungrily hunting about for something to eat. The next thing we heard was a volley from the ravine and saw the scouts and pickets scattering for cover. One soldier held his ground—shot dead. Another moment and it became apparent that not one or two but a dozen Indians were crouching somewhere in that narrow gorge, and the move to get them out assumed proportions. Lieutenant Clark of General Crook's staff sprang into the entrance, carbine in hand, and a score of cavalrymen followed, while the scouts and others went cautiously along either bank, peering warily into the cave-like darkness at the head. A squad of newspaper correspondents, led by that reckless Hibernian Finery of the Chicago Times, came tearing over, pencil in hand, all eagerness for items, just as a second volley came from the concealed foe, and three more of their assailants dropped bleeding in their tracks.

Now our people were fairly aroused, and officers and men by dozens hurried to the scene. The misty air rang with shots, and the chances looked bad for those redskins. Just at this moment as I was running over from the western side I caught sight of 'Chips' on the opposite crest. All alone he was cautiously making his way on hands and knees toward the head of the ravine, where he could look down upon the Indians beneath. As yet he was protected from their fire by the bank itself, his lean form distinctly outlined against the eastern sky. He reached a stunted tree that grew on the very edge of the gorge, and there he halted, brought his rifle close under his shoulder in readiness to aim and then raised himself slowly to his feet, lifted his head higher and higher as he peered over. Suddenly a quick, eager light shone in his face, a sharp movement of his rifle as though he were about to raise it to the shoulder, when—bang—a puff of white smoke floated up from the head of the ravine. 'Chips' sprang convulsively in the air, clasping his hands to his breast, and with one startled, agonized cry, 'Oh, my God, boys—good-by, Bill!' plunged heavily forward on his face down the slope, shot through the heart.

'Two minutes more what Indians were left alive were prisoners and that costly experience was at an end.

'We buried poor 'Chips' in the deep ravine with our other dead, and no scout was more universally mourned than 'Buffalo Bill's' follower and devoted friend, Jim White.'

Quite a Difference. A man spends two hours trying to discover what is the matter with his motor and two minutes trying to find out what is the matter with his wife.—London Telegraph.

Free from Alcohol

Since May, 1906, Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been entirely free from alcohol. If you are in poor health, weak, pale, nervous, ask your doctor about taking this non-alcoholic tonic and alternative. If he has a better medicine, take his. Get the best always. This is our advice.

A sluggish liver means a coated tongue, a bad breath, and constipated bowels. The question is, "What is the best thing to do under such circumstances?" Ask your doctor if this is not a good answer: "Take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills."
