Boggs Township High School.

As a testimonial to the improvement of the rural schools of the county, the commencement of the Boggs district high school, which, by the way, is the first commencement to which that district has aspired, stands prominently forth. It occurred on Thursday last, 15, in the M. E. church at Central City, and was creditable alike to pupils, patrons directors, and more particularly to the principal, J. T. Leathers, of Howard, who has succeeded in stirring the school spirit of the district as it was never stirred before. The meetings of the senior and junior classes, at ten in the morn ing, and two in the afternoon, respectively set the keynote for the commencement proper in the evening, which call ed forth a larger audience than could ave been expected. The spacious building was literally packed, and hundreds turned away because they could not obtain admittance.
