

FRANCIS SPEER'S

Breezy "That" Column

THAT in Bellefonte there are too many Bibles that are more ornamental than useful.

THAT in Bellefonte you can hardly expect a hired girl to know her place because she changes so often.

THAT there are a large number of men of influence in Bellefonte who will not cut any ice in the hereafter.

THAT the young man in Bellefonte who is always satisfied to follow the crowd will never get to the front.

THAT a good thing about the "poo-pooos" in Bellefonte is when they strike a fellow for a dime it is never when he is down.

THAT Jim Toner, the Bellefonte liveryman, says that no matter how hungry his horses get they can never eat a "bit."

THAT Frank Mayes, of Lemont, says an auctioneer knocks down almost everything he touches, yet nobody seems to mind it.

THAT there is a young man in Bellefonte who says there is a great deal of difference between loving a girl and marrying her.

THAT there are lots of people in Bellefonte who appear to have the brains of a mule. They all seem to be able to eat, sleep and kick.

THAT even some college graduates in Bellefonte who pride in their sheepskin have frequently turned out to be lambs on the stock market.

THAT some girls in Bellefonte are among the most contradictory mortals in the world. They get hot at you and then treat you coolly.

THAT if you are going to ask some men in Bellefonte to take your part you will have to be very careful that they don't take all you have.

THAT perhaps it is because love makes the world go round that there are so many giddy girls in Bellefonte. Girls who want to be what they are not.

THAT the reason some women in Bellefonte do not show their age is because they are keeping it a secret by the aid of skin food, paint and powder.

THAT some of the angel cake one gets at some of the church suppers in Bellefonte would indicate that angels have tougher digestive organs than one would think.

THAT there is a young lady in Bellefonte who sings with such grand expression that her own mother, the other evening, couldn't recognize her face when she was singing.

THAT if you want to see the long and short of it watch policeman Harry Dukeman and tonsorial artist Ruble walk down the street together. You'll get it there, all right.

THAT we have gentlemen in Bellefonte who can shave themselves as good as a barber but the greatest inconvenience they experience is they can't talk to themselves while they are doing it.

THAT some one asked if Harvey Shaffer, of Bellefonte, could sing. Well, we'll tell you. He offered to sing that new baby-sleeping-the-other-night, and his wife said: "No let her keep on crying."

THAT a number of people in Bellefonte are wondering where a certain widower spends his evenings, as he is very seldom seen on the streets. It is enough to say that he is making hay, whether the sun shines or not. You may hear from him later.

THAT they say that a young man and lady on Spring street, Bellefonte, would like to get married but the papa of the much wish-to-be bride thinks her admirer isn't quite dry behind the ears yet. He had better wait until he gets his age and looks more like a man.

THAT the young lady in Bellefonte who has boys on the brain from morning until night is certain to do something wrong that she will regret the balance of her life; the quicker she gets married the better it will be for herself and friends. These boys lovers are more dangerous than the measles.

THAT there is a young man in Bellefonte who if he can't beat Pierpont Morgan on the stockmarket he knows where to put in Sunday evenings to a very good advantage. That old arm chair and sofa could tell some wonderful tales if they had eyes to see and tongues to speak. On these occasions he lets the old world wag as it may.

THAT if a certain sofa in Bellefonte could talk there would be something doing. It is pretty well bagged down in the centre, showing that some couple have been sitting unusually close together.

When you come to think of it the young lady looks as if she was being squeezed often and hard. That is, she is getting stretched out, something like a telegraph pole.

THAT the other day Frank Smith, of Bellefonte, who is learning the tailoring trade with his brother, Clyde Smith, put on his working trousers and found they fit him like the skin of a bologna sausage. When sitting on the tailoring table he had the appearance of one of those frogs found down along Fishing Creek. His lady friend would have only recognized him as a friend from Paris that day.

THAT the other evening a young man attempted to propose to one of Bellefonte's brightest young ladies. He didn't use the regular pose of getting down on his knees and lying to her, but he asked her whether she would be willing to share his lot. "Of course I will," said the fair blond, "but it will need to have a house on it, before I do." She showed a little bit of good common sense in telling this gay young admirer where to get off at.

THAT it is said that the other evening a number of young men, of Bellefonte, made arrangements to take several of our young ladies to a fraternity dance at Pennsylvania State College. One of the fair damsels became so exultant of the prospective ride in the new gasoline bus that she began whispering around what a great time they were going to have with the College students. The Bellefonte boys got next to a letter that had been written by one of these fair daughters of Eve and, of course, cancelled the engagement. These girls are now making the rounds saying all sorts of mean things about the young gentlemen because they refused to be humbugged. It is with pride that we point to these young men who have shown that they have enough sand in their glands to resent a dirty, contemptible scheme of this kind.

OVER THE COUNTY.

The fruit crop in this county has not suffered from frosts than far—the chances are favorable.

Joshua T. Potter, of Centre Hall, was called recently to Binghamton, N. Y., to see his sister, Mrs. M. P. Kent, who has been quite ill.

Miss Mary Zahnizer, one of Unionville's bright and interesting young ladies, departed on Friday last for Pittsburgh, where she will visit relatives for some time.

Rev. Prof. J. R. Dimm, D. D., formerly President of Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, announces his name as a candidate for Associate Judge, in Snyder county.

Samuel Durst, of Earllytown, sold a bunch of fat steers to Smith & Herman, the Pleasant Gap butchers. The price per pound was six cents, the lump sum being almost $350.

After a visit to her sister, Mrs. John Runkle, east of Centre Hall, for about two weeks, Mrs. R. D. Runkle returned to her home in Shamokin. She has not been in the best of health for some time.

The large bald eagle, now stuffed and in Knisely's collection, was shot on the wing by Ivy Bartges, on the mountain in Gregg township. It measures 6 feet 8 inches from tip to tip. Ivy now can join the Roosevelt hunting club.

Mrs. J. H. Meyer, of Boalsburg recently made a trip to Bellefonte and other nearby points, visiting the families of H. K. Hoy, J. H. Fishburn and George Tibbens. Mrs. Meyer is always a welcome visitor among her many friends.

The Ladies Aid society of the M. E. church will hold a sale of aprons, rugs, candy, cake, homemade bread, coffee and ice cream at the home of Mrs. H. D. Meek State College, on Friday, May 14, from three to five and from 7.30 to 10.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Lucinda Weaver, of Centre Hall, who had been quite ill for several months, is now able to be about the house again, and is feeling remarkably well. Her condition for a long time was such that little hope was entertained for her recovery.

Decoration services will be held at Boalsburg on Monday afternoon, May 31st, at 6 o'clock. They will be held in the cemetery, the address to be made by David F. Fortney. Mr. Fortney is one of Centre county's best public speakers, and thus a treat is in store for the residents in that end of the county.

Fred Stamm, of near Mill Hall, who was taken ill with pneumonia at his brother's, Cyrus Stamm, of Bellefonte, about five weeks ago, has been taken to his home, where it will take several weeks more before he will be able to be around and busy as usual. His many friends will be glad to hear of his recovery so far.

The supervisors of Spring township purchased the Thomas Jodon farm, at Axe Mann, from George Tibbens, and will use the same for a township poor farm. Mr. Tibbens just purchased the farm last spring. It is a good location. The township poor farm is becoming more popular even by the tax payers who have an eye to economy.

At the 4th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania branch of the alumni association of the University of Maryland, held at the Colonial, in York, recently, Dr. J. C. C. Beale, of Philadelphia, who is known to many of our Centre county readers, was elected secretary and treasurer. The meeting was also the occasion for quite an elaborate banquet.

Rev. Burroughs Eldridge, of Camden, N. J., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Baptist churches at Milesburg and Blanchard and moved to Milesburg, where he will make his home. He is a talented pulpit orator and preached his first sermon in the Milesburg church last Sunday and in the Blanchard church on Sunday, May 16. He is liked by the congregation at Milesburg.

From Jocke, Montana, Mrs. Mamie Delong Marcy, writes the Democrat, April 5: Mr. Marcy is bookkeeper in the reclamation service of the government, and we are tenting on the Flat-head Indian Reservation, as there are no homes here yet. It is rather cool here yet and we are surrounded by snow capped mountains and the snow is flying in the air about every day thus far.

The address on Memorial Day, at Centre Hall will be delivered by Rev. J. Allison Platts, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Bellefonte. Rev. Platts is a gifted speaker, and his address on the occasion, it is anticipated, will be one of great interest both to the remnant of veterans who annually form in line on Memorial Day, and citizens. Services at Centre Hall will be held at the usual hour Saturday.

Arbor day was observed by Hon. Leonard Rhone by having planted on Rhoneymede one thousand white pine trees. Besides the trees planted at Rhoneymede, Mr. Rhone was also instrumental in having fifty trees planted on the Methodist church site, east of Centre Hall, known better perhaps as the Pennington cemetery plot. Grange Park was also remembered, fifty trees of various types having been planted there.

Geo. R. Miess, the old time merchant at Colyer, who recently sold out to another party, found it necessary to get back into business again at the old stand, which will be pleasing to all his old customers who found in George a merchant reliable and trustworthy. He is at the old stand again where his face had been so familiar and will treat his customers obligingly and will be pleased to welcome all back and have a share in their patronage. His stock will always be up-to-date.

At a recent term of court a jury awarded Mrs. Hannah Keene, of Phillipsburg, $157.00 damages in her suit against that borough on account of injuries sustained in a fall on a defective boardwalk about four years ago. The members of the borough council seriously considered appealing the case but when they were informed by their solicitor at a regular meeting held the other evening that the expense of carrying the case to the superior court would be $52.00 they concluded that the wisest course would be to pay the amount of the verdict of $157.00 and costs, which are close to $100, and then bring proceedings to recover the entire amount against the Phillipsburg Coal and Land Co., who were responsible for the defective walk.

Sunstruck.

Old Deacon Calhoun appeared on the street one day with his face banged and battered and patched in a most fearful manner.

"Yo' say yo' wuz sunstruck, Deacon Calhoun?" exclaimed a friend. "Fo' de lan's sake, man, no sun could disfiggah a face like dat!"

Deacon Calhoun, with a sad smile, shook his head.

"You don't know mah son," he said simply.

Went Him One Better.

President Nicholas Brown, for whom Brown university was named, was fond of quizzing small boys. One day while walking in the streets of Providence he came upon a little fellow who attracted his notice.

"How do you do, my boy?" said the president. "What is your name?"

"My name is Harry, sir," replied the child.

"Harry, is it?" returned President Brown. "And did you know the evil one is often called Old Harry?"

"Why, no, sir," answered the boy. "I thought he was called Old Nick."

A Slight Misunderstanding.

A lady from South America, possessed of a decidedly quick temper, visited New York with a very incomplete knowledge of the English language.

At her hotel she rang for the chambermaid. But a waiter came instead. Having ascertained that the name of the chambermaid was Susan, the lady marshaled her meager knowledge of English in a desperate effort to make the waiter understand that he should call the chambermaid. What she said to him, however, was:

"Call me Susan?"

The waiter leaned against the wall much alarmed.

"Call me Susan?" shouted the South American.

The waiter became appalled.

"Call me Susan!" roared the lady, her eyes flashing furiously.

"Susan, then, if you will have it!" exclaimed the poor waiter. Then he fled precipitately.

Quite Handy.

"For instance?"

"You can sit up in it as you pass a friend and crawl under it when a creditor heaves into sight."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Two Ways of Doing

In days ago, a builder dealt with a dozen different supply houses. He bought his brick and stone here, lumber there, glass elsewhere, and nails and bolts round the corner.

A building that didn't "jibe" was the usual result, but no one person could be blamed for it or held responsible.

In THESE days Mr. Builder does it differently. He makes his plans, orders everything from one complete supply house, and when the material comes, IT SUITS.

And you are here now, today, with the B. L. Co.—not yesterday with the dozen.
