Testimonial From Connecticut. In speaking of the subject of good roads and how to get them, James H. McDonald, the Highway Commissioner of Connecticut, says as follows:

"There are a great many different kinds of systems advanced for inproving our country roads. One of the simplest, and one which every individual farmer can employ now. to-day, without any money and with much benefit to his road, is the system of dragging the dirt road by his farm by the split log road drag. Farmers can make such a drag in a few hours by simply splitting a log in half, eight feet long. If the farmer takes these split pieces, the split surfaces facing to the front, and fastens them with stout staves three feet apart, according to directions given by Mr. King, of Maitland, Mo., the inventor of the drag, the farmer will have a simple road implement that will make a fine, smooth, country boulevard out of the worst neglected dirt road in the com-The secret of successful road making with the road drag will depend upon dragging the road after every rain, filling in the ruts. smoothing out the uneven places and building a high crown in the middle of the road so that the water will run into the side ditches instead of standing in the middle."

The mixture was placed in it, and the scientist proceeded to operate with a blowpipe. The fibrin, the phosphorus and the rest of the chemicals stood it as long as they could and then expressed their feelings in a mighty explosion. The neighbors sought their cellars, while the glass in windows and doors fell in splinters.

Discussing his failure with the druggist and other friends, among them Congressman Gardner of New Jersey, the puzzled alchemist said for the tenth time:

"Perhaps I forgot to include some essential in my formula." "Yes," said Mr. Gardner dryly, "you

He Went Back.

At a ball in Edinburgh a well known and charming hostess, wishing to get a partner for one of her guests, asked a gentleman if she might introduce him to a young lady.

"Oh, yes," he drawled affectedly. "Trot her out."

This was overheard by the intended partner, who was remarkable for her native wit as well as her beauty. So when the youth was introduced to her she calmly surveyed him from head to foot and then quietly said:

The Inspiration of Purpose.

The great thing in life is not in realizing a purpose, but in fighting for it. If we feel the possiblities of a great werk looming up large before us and impelling us to action it is our duty to consecrate ourselves to it.
