A party of ten, chaperoned by C. K. Essington, started for the reservoir on Wednesday afternoon, and held a picnic in honor of Harry P. Austin's aunt, Mrs. E. Shook, of Philadelphia. They reported having a delightful time; the shouts of the Indian squaw made the woods ring.

About 5 p. m. the ladies spread a table with an abundance of good things, while the chief and squaw cooked the ham and eggs. Ask Mable how she felt when lost in the woods; at 7 p. m.; all in readiness they departed for their respective homes. On their way the squaw climbed a tree which broke down with her weight and caused an exciting time for a few minutes; she jumping up gave a war whoop claiming its hard to kill an Indian. The party consisting of Mrs. Harry Austin with her two children, Mable and Katharine; Mrs. James McMullen, Mrs. Mary Collins, Mrs. Wm. T. Hall, Misses Marian Smith, and Hazel Gingham.
