SEWING MACHINE REPAIR SHOP-G. S. Gemeents has vacated his room at the Haag Hotel and will move into part of James Me-Clure's harness shop, in room formerly occupi-ed by Singer Sewing Machine Co. on West Bishop street. So don't trade off your old sew-ing machines because they do not operate satis-factorily, as by so doing you throw away 25 or 80 and get no better article in return. Any old machine can be made to sew as good as when new. I also take orders for luminous door plates, house numbers and gold glass signs. G. S. Clements, Bellefonte, Pa. x65 a
