REBERSBURG CRYSTALIZED.

This ideal country town for those who desire a quiet rest and simple life, has an altitude that insures cool air, immunity from hay fever, also precludes mosquitoes and malaria, especially at this time of the year.

Neither of course is there a smell of clover or new mown hay, nor green stuffs from the garden, but we do have long night's rest, in cool comfortable beds. We have lots of red apples and sweet sugar corn raised in our vicinity.

It is just hilly enough to give diversity. In short, no town or valley more attractive and romantic than this once thickly wooded and sylvan defile. It merits the encomium of one of its admirers, W. J. Mallory, of Globe, Arizona, who said, "There are many lovely valleys among the great hills of the East and of the Western coast thro' which I have roamed, that were delightful, but none are as dear to my heart and unites so many attractions to me as the valley of Rebersburg."

On Saturday morning the scenery in town and vicinity was beautiful and entrancingly lovely. The rain and sleet on Friday night had adhered to everything and frozen into beautiful crystals. Our mountains were Alpine—steep trees and every twig had with one fourth inch of crystal beauty, and as we stood watching the great orb of day peering over the eastern horizon, we looked upon the scene first, with varied emotions and then with the feeling of the deepest sense of man's significance to try to paint on canvas, or make a pen picture with such a manifestation of the Almighty's power.

The picture was superb in its grandeur, transcendent in its sublimity. Had we been a Beecher, Talmage, or a modern Jipay Smith we would have received the inspiration of many bright and noble thoughts. When the sun rose higher the trees, houses, fences were adorned with a profusion of the most lovely and brilliant colors; red, purple, yellow, azure or sky blue, black and white were in the same mass or blended so as to form every shade and hue as brilliant and soft as they appear in flowers or plumage of birds—beautiful as the fairest dream that poet-artist ever imagined. Brick and stone houses presented the appearance of rock ledges and reefs with corrugated frozen rain and sleet along their sides, metal roofs had thin sheets of ice drooping down at eaves and sides of houses a yard long, presenting the appearance of a crystal palace inexplicably sculptured. We were hemmed in by an amphitheatre of splendid hills of attractiveness. Some houses looked like turreted towers from which the criers call the people to prayer in the temples of the Turks. Out-buildings between trees presented the appearance of a Chinese pagoda full of charming vistas. Pedestrians stood on the streets gazing intently at the crystal splendor in awe and admiration.

Phillip S. Dale has been on the sick list all of last week, but will soon be able to be out again.

Part of the country during the week just past, was visited by one of the worst ice storms for years; the ice on the trees was about a half an inch thick and the limbs broke off like glass when they were bent, and lots of trees were weighted down to the earth. At this writing the trees are still bearing their ice burdens.

The sleighing is good and has been all week.

Mr. Stonbraker had the misfortune to get his jaw bone broken last week, while putting mining props on the cars here in town, and he had to be taken to the hospital.

The Methodists' protracted meeting opened on Monday evening and will continue for several weeks, all are invited to come and lend a helping hand in the good work of the uplifting of mankind.

Walter Crust, who was visiting his brother Roy, who lives at Greenburr, has returned home.

It was a very bad Sunday evening to be out driving, especially with a lady friend, but some children don't mind it.

Mrs. Kephart, who was very ill, has improved.

The weather has been very stormy making it hard to keep a hat on.

Grant Martin expects to move on the Thompson farm now occupied by Harry Treasler.

Last week there was a little mistake made in reference to the bear hunters—two of them being omitted, Edward Taylor and William Witmer. I am sure they feel slighted for they helped in the brave act, so that they deserve credit as well as the rest.

MADISONBURG.

Nearly everybody is trying to learn to skate, and by the condition of things people would better learn to become experts.

If you wish to know how to keep a bear over winter, ask Philip Carls; he knows by experience.

The Water Company elected its officers for the ensuing year, on Saturday and what a wise selection they made. The best way to build up a country is to keep your best men at the head.

Judging from the coal-house episode and proceeding from the unknown—we may better fathom the condition of the lower regions. Some people will surely get to a very undesirable place, considering the case from a logical point, at least we blush, and will be on guard more when we hear the sounding of the trumpet.

People hate to get old, and especially old prematurely; you are young as long as you make yourself young by your actions, and you will be happier for it. We prefer to remain young in our work and deeds, and consistent with the times; and when the time comes to call us over yonder, we will go and not say a darn word.

So many people wish to know who writes for the Centre Democrat. We will tell you all at once, it is "I."

The woods and mountains presented a beautiful panorama after the rain and sleet. The trees were covered with ice, yet the warm sun has not effected any change.

It is feared that the wheat will suffer if the ice does not soon pass off. Every inch of ground is covered with a solid mass of ice. People can haul almost any load that a sled will bear; but it is very difficult to remain on the track of the road.

People are making use of the ice and good and easy means of transportation to get out timber and haul their lumber to market. Logging is rather dangerous.

STATE COLLEGE.

John Baumgardner unloaded a car of coal on Friday for his own use. Part will be used in his house furnace and the remainder at the laundry.

If you want to see something beautiful you should just take a walk up over the campus and see the decoration of the electric lights at night.

On Monday our mail carrier, Mr. Charles Musser, was sick and Mr. Ambrose Rice filled the bill very satisfactorily by serving the people on his route.

L. H. Musser, of Bellefonte, who has opened up a lumber camp just east of town, is running full time, and has four or five teams on the road, and is putting some nice stuff to the rail road.

The ice on the roads and all over is something grand; fine skating right on the street; and the road and street is full of young and old skaters.

On account of the funeral of A. Y. Williams, of Port Matilda, last Sunday, Rev. Ake was unable to fill his appointment at 10:30 a. m.

Mrs. John Parsons, for the last month, has been confined to her room with nervous prostration.

The protracted meeting will begin evening at 7:30. Services every evening during the following week.

(Last week a communication from Julian was published in this paper which offended some people of that place. Upon investigation we believe that the writer signed another's name. This is a serious mistake and misled us. We are exceedingly anxious to find the party who did this.—ED.)

Man is made of dust, and the average woman seems to think it's gold dust.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dripping, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and back-of-the-head aches, the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin sloughing bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unusual short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $2.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K319 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-removing power.
