

CHARACTER IS EVERYTHING.

The boys and young men who are in the habit of reading the newspapers sometimes find themselves in a confused frame of mind when they observe the indiscriminate eulogy which is lavished upon all sorts and conditions of persons who have finished their earthly life and have left nothing behind but their influence and their record.

New occasions bring new duties; but it is not true that new centuries bring laxer moral requirements. Let us admit that the Puritan spirit seems to have receded very far into the background; that men's ideas of the invisible have greatly changed; yet the fact remains that the Ten Commandments have never been repealed and that their Author is as conscientious as his laws.

No matter what glib speeches may fall from the lips of reckless men; no matter how careless the pen of the eulogist, it is still tremendously true that the people are able to separate the real from the false; still true that they know about weakness or inefficiency or worse; still true that they are setting a higher standard from year to year.

ANIMALS EAT OUR FOOD.

Conservation in This Line as Important as in Others.

Among the important subjects discussed at the fourth annual Pennsylvania State College Farmers' Week, recently concluded, was the problem of supplying the necessary food for man when the time shall have arrived when the increased population will necessitate more intensive husbandry and greater economy in the rations for cattle.

Steers are put into this apparatus, and by means of minutely accurate observations made every thirty seconds is learned the exact disposal of every bit of the ration of the animal. Through changes in the amount of the bovine subjects knowledge is acquired as to the most economic feed, and by the supplying of foodstuffs not desirable to man, but tasteful to cattle, information is obtained along the line of conserving the food supply of the country.

A sufficient food supply is a fundamental necessity of civilization, and its conservation is as important as that of our mines, forests or water powers. We realize that there is such a thing as a food problem, and that when, in the not distant future, our population reaches half a billion, it may be a very serious one.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

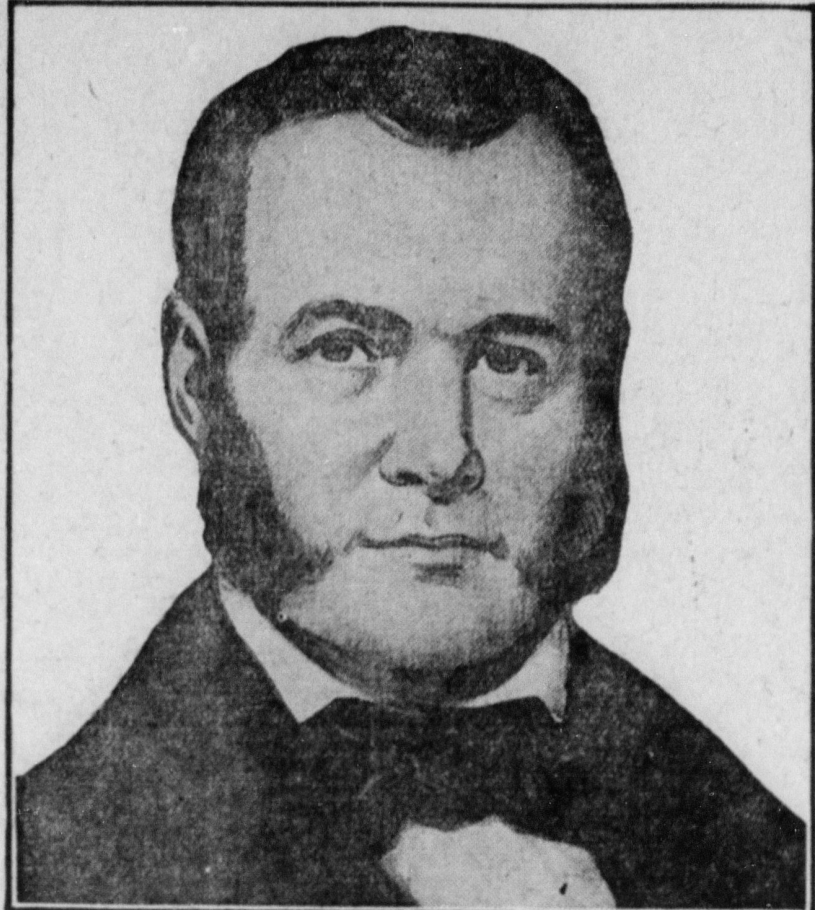

The most destructive forces of nature that we have to deal with is thunder and lightning. According to statistics at hand the frequency of lightning strikes, varies somewhat with the character of the land, the nature of the roofing material used, the absence of the old time forests, and use of the buildings, all of which influence the liability of a strike and fire. As shown by the statistics, it can be truly asserted that the risk in the country is five times greater than in the city.

Jumping into Furnace. Suffering from mental derangement due to religious fervor, Alfred G. Moore, a forgerman at the Spring City Bloom works, cast himself into the blazing charcoal furnace to offer himself as a sacrifice.

Going to Canada. During the past year 96,148 Americans trekked the Canadian border to take up 2,000,000 acres of land; the Commissioner of Immigration says that these immigrants brought on an average $1,000 each, thus adding $96,000,000 to the wealth of the Dominion.

GOVERNORS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Portraits of Each Accompanied by Brief Biographical Sketch—Will be Published in Order, One Each Week.

WILLIAM FREAME JOHNSTON—1848-1852.

At the time of Governor Shunk's death William Freame Johnston was presiding officer of the senate. Under the provisions of the constitution he at once became the chief executive of the state. Waiving this opportunity to step into the office of governor, he at once issued a proclamation for the election of a governor and was himself chosen.

FACT, FUN AND FANCY.

Bright, Sparkling Paragraphs—Selected and Original.

HONEST AND TRUE.

Well, I'll swear—I ain't got nothin, Ain't had nothin, Don't want nothin 'cept you.

Ain't seen nobody, Ain't had nobody, Ain't loved nobody, That's true.

But if you'll love me, I'll love you; If you want money, tho' I won't do.

'Cause I ain't got nothin, Never had nothin, Don't want nothin 'cept you.

A Damper on English.

The class was told to write a sentence with the word "damper" in it. The following was handed in by one of the small boys: "Our teacher is damperticular about her English."

Circumstantial Evidence.

Jones was looking for his umbrella, and, not finding it, asked the members of his family if they had used it. "I think sister's bean took it last night," said Harry. "Why do you think so my son?" "Because, when I was in the hall last night when he left, I heard him say to sister, 'I believe I'll just steal one.'"

"KWITCHERKICKEN."

A wise old owl sat up in an oak. The more he heard, the less he spoke. The less he spoke, the more he heard. Why can't you be like this wise old bird?

Badly Needed.

"Reginald, dear, you pucker up your lips just then as if you were going to kiss me," said the beautiful creature languorously, as she lay on the beach surveying the frolics of Neptune.

"I intended to," replied Reginald, hesitatingly, "but I seem to have got some sand in my mouth."

"For Heaven's sake, swallow it," exclaimed the young lady. "You need it badly in your system!"

Growing Pains.

In response to a growing demand in his home, Henry Kitchel Webster once went to his father's house, borrowed the family high chair and started taking it home by hand. Not only did he have to wait long for his car but when it finally did come its conductor was a humorist.

"Aren't you pretty big for that chair?" that official ventured. "Yes," admitted Webster, wearily. "I grew up while waiting for the car."

WHERE TO FIND HIM.

There is a man who never does anything that's not right. His wife can tell you just where he is At morning, noon or night.— HE'S DEAD!

There is a man who never drinks, Nor smokes, nor chews, nor swears; Who never gambles, never flirts, And shuns all sinful snares.— HE'S PARALYZED!

It Made Him Tired. A Sunday school teacher way trying to impress on the minds of her pupils how nice it would be some day to live in Heaven. She then said, "How many would like to live in heaven some day." They all raised their hands but one little boy. The teacher was surprised.

"Why, Johnnie," she said, "what is your reason for not wanting to go to Heaven?" The youngster replied, "Aw, we have moved three times already, and I'm tired of helping to pack up."

Mary Up to Date.

Mary had a little car; It ran by gasoline, And everywhere that Mary went The auto could be seen.

One day the auto struck a rut; It's course was much deflected. (The doctor says that Mary is As well as he expected!)

Found the Cause. One winter's evening a water inspector in New York going his rounds, stopped at one of the mains in a busy street to turn off the water to permit the making of some repairs. He had just put the handle on the top and began turning when a hand was placed on his shoulder. Looking around, he was confronted by a citizen of flushed face and thick speech, who said in a tone of great satisfaction, "So I have found you at last, have I? It's you that's turning the street around, is it?"

Divorce and the Rich.

Just a little millionaire, Just a little wife, Mighty little happiness, Awful lot of strife, Just some little lawyers, Just a little fee, Then a little evidence To a referee, Just a little courtroom, Just a whispered line, Scratching of the judge's pen And everything is fine.

Lincoln Day Address.

The "Lincoln Day" address at State College, (Saturday morning, February 12,) this year will be delivered by Hon. Clark E. Carr, of Illinois, an associate and friend of both Lincoln and Douglas, while they lived. He was one of the committee on arrangements for the Lincoln-Douglas debate in Galesburg, in 1858, and is provided with a store of reminiscences of those bygone days, that will be deeply interesting to those who can participate in the exercises of the occasion.

INBUILT

That is one secret of the success of this Typewriter.

Necessary devices which, with other typewriters are attached (at an extra price) or else built as parts of "special" machines with only one use (at a more exorbitant price), are inbuilt in every NEW MODEL

ALL the writers ALWAYS in sight. Some Inbuilt Features: Card Writing, Decimal Tabulating, Condensed Billing, Color Work and Stenciling.

L. C. SMITH & BROS. TYPEWRITER

All these kinds of work—and others—done by one simple typewriter, our regular correspondence machine, without any extra cost in attachments.

BALL BEARINGS—throughout—typebar, carriage, segment—all important frictional points made anti-frictional.

The inbuilt devices save you the price of attachments (costly things, these attachments); the ball bearings save work and wear.

And this complete machine costs no more than others which must have expensive attachments to make them complete. To buy a typewriter without investigating the L. C. SMITH & BROS. would be like buying silver without looking for the "Sterling" mark.

Two Ways of Doing

In days gone, a builder dealt with a dozen different supply houses. He bought his brick and stone here, lumber there, glass elsewhere, and nails and bolts round the corner.

A building that didn't "jibe" was the usual result, but no one person could be blamed for it or held responsible.

In THESE days Mr. Builder does it differently. He makes his plans orders everything from one complete supply house, and when the material comes, IT SUITS.

And you are here now, today, with the B. L. Co.—not yesterday with the dozen.
