Leg Broken

Little eight-year-old Frankie Boone, son of Lewis Boone, of Romola, had a bad tumble while at play last Thursday, and broke the small bone of his leg, just above the ankle. His father brought him in to Dr. Kurtz who bandaged it in his usual skillful way, and the little fellow is getting on famously with it.

"The Agricultural Train"

Was the feature of the week in this vicinity. It arrived on time, and consisted of the two cars which had been arranged as audience rooms, and ter; J. A. Benner, Master Mechanic; G. Spangler, Division Freight through, W. Agent, and Dr. Pownell, Relief Sur-These gentlemen were invited geon. by Mr. Johnson because, as he and all other live railroad men are, they are deeply interested, for business reasons, in the development of agriculture along their lines, and the Superintendent desired that they should all take note of the conditions of this great work in their own business territory; and because in addition, they were all, with their chief, desirious of rendering every assistance in their power, toward the successful carrying out of the day's program. The speakers testified unanimously to their abundant success in this direction. The use of the car was cordially pressed upon the speakers as a resting place when not on duty. A well-orwell-cooked and well-served dered. dinner was tendered to all Mr. Johnson's guests, including the speakers, the train waited at Milesburg Notwithstanding the sharp frost of the morning, the weather was perfect throughout the whole run fro m Ty. rone to Lock Haven, and the audiences were larger than had been expected The railroad men agreed that they averaged larger, all day, than they had along any of the other lines over which similar runs had been made It is a pleasure to add to this that the Howard audience was the banner one of the day-larger than that at any other station. Agent W. L. Cooke and his assistant D. W. Holter had been industrious in circulating the advertising matter sent out by the comand were well rewarded by the crowd that welcomed the train. It was an interesting and delightful on that princi of the oc Weirick had suspended work in the High school and marshalled all his pupils to the meeting. It was worth more to them in many ways than any week of their winter's work in the school room, and this is not meant day with friends in town. to disparage their school work by any means. Agriculture in our common schools is coming, and the little touch of it that our young people had in hearing Dr. Hunt and Prof. Van Norman will tend to hasten its arrival in this community. As soon as the train stopped, just above the station on the freight siding, both the audience cars were packed full, and an overflow meeting was at once organized by Director Hunt, in the waiting room of the station. In each of these three meetings two addresses were delivered. making six in all, and each of them was a clean-cut, condensed epitome of the best theories and practices relating to some one of the more important subjects connected with the greatest of all the world's industriesfarming. The speakers at this point were Dean Hunt, and profesors Gard-Van Norman and McDowell, and the impressolon made upon the audiences, so far as it may be judged Holter by the expressions of opinion which have been heard since, leads one to coincide in the statement that "it was the best farmers institute I ever at-The Pennsylvania Railroad tended." Company is to be commended for the nestness and business like methods excellent judgement displayed in the organization of this work and the earwith which they have set about its execution, and the Pennslyvania State College should receive a high measure of praise for the zeal and ability shown by its self-sacrificing professors in their colaboration with the railroad people

Miss Florence Leathers, the energetic teacher of the school at Yarnell, with twenty-eight others of the bright young people of that vicinity, including four other teachers, filled up two big sleds Tuesday evening of last week, and drove themselves down the creek to the home of Col. John A. Dalev, for a good time. The always genial hospitality of the Colonel ran unfettered and unrestrained, and insured them just what they went for. Miss Ada Bowes left on Tuesday morning last for State College where she will locate and establish a high class millinery establishment. Miss Bowes' long training in the best establishments of Philadelphia and her subsequent experiences in several large cities, added to her fine natural taste, qualify her to satisfactorily cater to the exacting requirements of the fastidious State College ladies. The walks, up until Saturday, were very icy making traveling on foot very dangerous, but the sun and rain have cleared the ice and Monday felt to us as if spring were near. We have had sleighing every day since the 7th of December. Beat that if you can.

The long severe winter has made work good in this part of the mining district compelling the freight trains to work late and on Sundays in order to keep the miners supplied with cars.

School Notes :- Friday night will be the last literary society meeting of this school year.

The Senior class is busily engaged with examinations and preparing a program for Commencement exercises to take place on April 9th, 10th and This will be the first graduating class in the history of the class,and consists of five young ladies as fol-lows: Mame Langton, Susan McGowan, Edith Walker, Ivy Uzzell and Alice Leathers. They have already passed a successful examination in botany, zoology, rhetoric, physical geography, book-keeping and civil government, and if they do as well in the examinations to follow they will do credit to themselves as well as to their in-structor, Phof. B. J. Bowers.

Miss Betty Heinle has engaged to give an elocutionary entertainment, as the first number of the commence ment program. As this will be the first High School Commencement exercises ever held in Snow Shoe, it is o be earnestly hoped that the poeple of the town and surrounding com munity will show their appreciation by attending the various entertainments

A promotion to a desk in the trainrunners' office in Tyrone is the just reward of James B. Harvey's good work in the towers along the line. Congratulations and good success are wished for him by his many friends here, while they regret the necessity for the removal of himself and famfrom among us.

A big sled load of the ladies of the C. T. U. organization here, drove to Blanchard last Friday night, where they were entertained by the W. C. T. U. of that place, at the home of Mrs. Matilda Bechdel. It is asserted by the husband of one of the ladies that some suspiciously warm things went with them; but his much the better half stoutly maintains that no hot stuff other than bricks and billets of wood for their feet were taken.
