EDITORIAL.

Everybody is waiting till Teddy comes home.

Every Pennsylvania congressman who stood by Cannon deserves to be kept at home.

The Insurgent Republicans at Washington are working along Democratic lines. The only difference is practically in the name.

If reports from over this congressional district are anywhere near reliable Congressman Barclay's political career will be ended at the coming primaries. The party can find something better in either Patton or Emory.

The increased cost of living and the hardships involved have forced the tariff issue to the front," says the Philadelphia Record. "There was no question of personal fitness involved in the contest in the Sixth Missouri district or the Fourteenth Massachusetts district; yet the voting in these districts and in the Thirty-second New York district was all one way. The tariff was the main and living issue—not Aldridge, whose machine had been victor in twenty previous battles. It was a tariff defeat; but it was a moral triumph. The snug protectionists cannot escape by hiding themselves from the public wrath behind the coat-tails of their Aldridges. They have been found out."

REPUBLICANS ALARMED.

The Republican leaders in Congress are alarmed by the rising tide of insurgency throughout the country. Representative McKinley, of California, who recently made a trip to the Pacific coast, making political speeches in Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas and Nebraska, and returning by the way of the South, said that the Republicans would lose the House of Representatives because of insurgent strength if the elections were to be held at this time. As the result of this report the Republican congressional committee has sent out 25 speakers to attend the spring conventions and other public gatherings, in order to turn the tide of public sentiment, if possible, toward the administration and its measures.

Mr. McKinley found that the Aldrich tariff bill was decidedly unpopular throughout the West, where it is held largely responsible for the increased cost of living. Only in the South did he find the people at all satisfied with the law, and only such people there as were benefitted by its protection of products in which they erect empires of products in which they are interested. In his report he emphasized the necessity of tariff education and of demonstration of the benefits of the law; and told the congressional committee that it must send out its best advocates of protection and of the Taft administration generally. He advised the committee that favorable tariff sentiment in the South should not be taken much into consideration as it obtained largely among the Democrats.

While the congressional committee has always supplied speakers during the campaign it has never been asked much less has it undertaken, to open the campaign before nominations are made. The purpose of the present activity is to secure the nomination of men favorable to the administration and pledged to support its tariff law; and the campaign would certainly not thus be opened were the Republican leaders not alarmed regarding political prospects.—Grit.

G. O. P. CHAOS.

Aldridge, the senator from little Rhode Island, champion of the robber tariff and the trusts, is going to leave the senate, seeing the handwriting on the wall that means war unto the enemies of the consumers. Tarrred with the same stick, like Aldridge, Hale, of Maine, intends to leave the senate.

Cannon, the tyrant speaker of the house, has been downed by the joint action of the Democrats and honest Republicans, and sees his career of wrong doing is ended, and that he is doomed to defeat—will no longer be the boss of the house. Several of the congressmen who legislated only in behalf of the millionaires and trusts, and to the detriment of the masses, have lately met with overwhelming defeat in recent elections in districts that heretofore cast only thousands of Republican majorities. Others of the same stripe, in the senate and house, see the handwriting on the wall on account of their iniquitous records, and the elections next November will give them an ignominious discharge and Democrats and insurgent Republicans will take their places. Then there is Taft, the violator of sacred pledges, he is disgusted already when finding he has met the displeasure of the country by joining the tariff clique, and gives out that he does not wish to be president again—and the country sides with him in that.

Verily, these conspirators against the welfare of the masses, behold they have fallen into a deep pit of chaos, and long ago did they deserve it.

PROMISE AND PERFORMANCE.

The Altoona Tribune, a leading republican paper in Pennsylvania, says: "President Taft is authority for the statement that the time is here when material reductions in the tariff may be safely made. The immense fortunes made by Pittsburgh millionaires and left for their descendants to squander in vice and immorality is another evidence that our industries are no longer infant and do not need the heavy protection accorded them in the pioneer days. The republican national convention promised the people a revised tariff. The congress failed to redeem that pledge. The increased duties on some of the necessities of life have tended to raise prices. The people are impatient over these facts. They do not believe the various industries of this country are in need of the protection given them by the Payne-Aldrich tariff. They may be mistaken. But that is the way they feel.

"Personally, the Tribune has always favored protection. It has sympathized with those who advocate the building up of American industries. Just now the current of public opinion is running heavily against the present leadership of the republican party. Which is the better friend to the party, the newspaper which recognizes the situation and strives to persuade that leadership to work in harmony with public sentiment, or the one which cries peace, when there is no peace? There is still time for the president and the congress to adopt such a line of action as will conciliate public sentiment and prevent the election of a democratic congress in November. The worst foes of the republican party today are not the so-called insurgents, but the organization leaders at Washington who are endeavoring to use President Taft for the purpose of restoring an order of things which the people do not mean to submit to for a day."

An Editor's Big Victory.

Livy S. Richards, a Pennsylvania newspaperman, who had migrated to the editorship of The Rochester Times, won fame and a big victory by resigning from that paper and taking the stump against Aldridge in the recent Congressional canvass in that city. Livy S. Richards came to Scranton from the Pittston Gazette, in 1892, to accept the telegraph editorship of the Tribune. He made good, and later was chosen editor-in-chief, and filled the chair until the fall of 1904, when after building up The Reading Times for two years, he went to Rochester, where for two years he has been a shining light on The Times. When George Aldridge, a confessed hoodler of the New York Assembly, became a candidate for Congress, Mr. Richards flatly refused to write editorials or in any way endorse Aldridge in The Times, and when the stockholders of the paper insisted, Mr. Richards not only resigned his editorship, but took the stump in support of Havens, not as a Republican or a Democrat candidate, but because Havens represented decency and honesty and reputable government.

Big Rain.

On Saturday evening about 5 o'clock a thunder gust set in, one of the old fashioned thunderers, accompanied by a brisk downpour which continued until Sunday noon, when the rain gauge registered 1.85 inches—and was continuous during the period named. Rain again set in on Sunday evening and continued until Monday morning at 6 o'clock; the precipitation being one and one-half inches. Heavy thunder early Monday morning.

AN IMPOSING SCHOOL STRUCTURE

On the third floor there is a large room which will be fitted up as a chemical laboratory. The appliances in this department will be of the very best. This room is lighted by windows in the roof, or skylights. The roof is of slate and the gutters are lined with copper so that everything about the building is strong and substantial. We would just add that the entire structure is built from the north and south of the building to the basement and first floor. The time for the dedication of the building has not been set, but it will be before September.

As officers of the present board are as follows: President, Henry C. Quigley; secretary, James Barnhart; treasurer, Ross Parker. The other members are D. F. Fortney, W. C. Heine, W. H. Crissman, Milton Johnson, Dr. M. J. Locke and A. C. Mingle. At the last session Charles F. Cook was chosen to take Quigley's place and Lew Gettig that of James Barnhart, who moved out of the West ward, and their terms begin in June. The affable and obliging superintendent is James E. Wagner, who has been doing much to elevate the Bellefonte school to the highest standard, and with the new and increased facilities he will be able to accomplish still greater results. There are no better public schools in the State than we have here, and when the new building is dedicated Prof. Wagner will be able to extend to any boy or girl ample instruction to acquire a good education for any vocation in life.

A GOOD SHOW.

The largest and most enthusiastic crowd of the season attended the bouts of the Armory A. C. last Thursday night. The windup between Dougherty and Nelson was quick and clever, and had the fans on tip-toe from going to gang.

Preceded by a great reputation, much was expected of Danny, and it must be admitted he lived up to his name. His cleverness and ring generalship was illustrated in his fight with Nelson surprised everyone by his ability to absorb punishment, and there never was a minute in which Dougherty was not in danger, for Jack carried a terrible punch in either hand. In the semi-windup Jack Spangler put clever Battling Easton asleep in three rounds, accomplished a feat which some of the best boxers in Williamsport have failed to do in ten.

In the first round Spangler jabbed Easton with a right, many times getting away without a return. Spangler changed his attack in the second round, using a jab and a right hand upper-cut to the body, Easton being unable to solve this style of delivery. In the third round Spangler feinted a stomach punch with the left and swung a stiff right to the jaw which sent Easton to the canvas and he was slowly counted out.

Weaver and Struble boxed a good draw in the preliminary; both boys put up a great bout.

The battleroyal proved the hit of the evening and from the rounds of applause the colored gladiators received surly justified the management in putting it on.

Jess Gilbert, of Williamsport, and a lightweight with few superiors in the State, officiated as third man in the ring. His rulings were fair and impartial throughout. Manager Blackford was so well pleased with the attendance that he is figuring on a return fight. The greatest welterweights in the east for his next show.

Driven from the homes they had established with barely time enough allowed to take their poor household furnishings along 16,000 Jews were driven from Kieff on Friday. They are being exiled, according to a news article from the Russian city, on directions from Premier Stolypin. Their crime is settling in the city without permission from the government. Five days have been allotted to the city officials to clear all non-permanent Jews from the city. Kieff has been divided into four sections and a high official of the government from the interior is in command of each quarter. Each has been assigned soldiers and police to aid him and will be held responsible for the completeness of the evictions.

The refined cruelty of the Russian officials is shown by the commencement of the expulsion on the Jewish Sabbath. All Jews are not affected. Those who have always lived in the city may remain.

High Water.

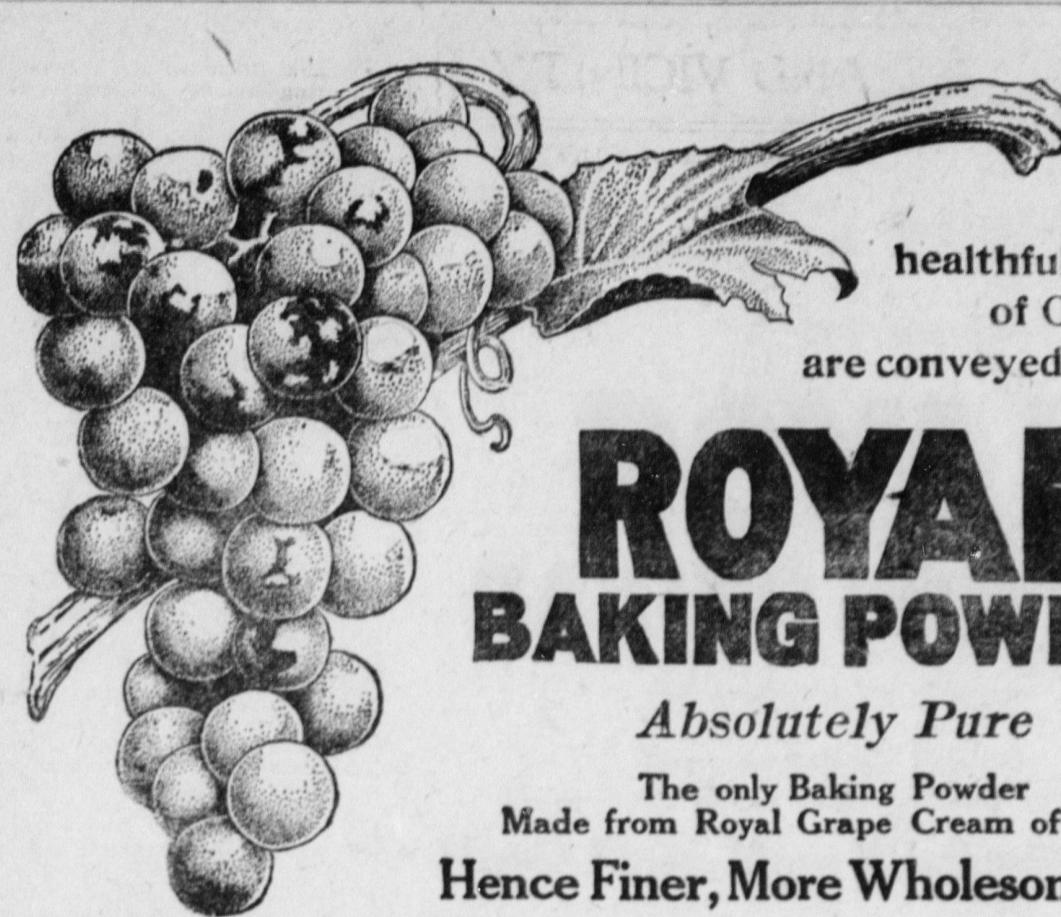

During the past ten days there was not a period of twenty-four hours that it has not rained, and in some instances the downpour was phenomenal. The streams around Bellefonte were slightly raised, and there was a big flood in Bald Eagle creek which reached its greatest height at daylight Monday and was on a standstill for several hours. Street car traffic was discontinued between Flemington and Bald Eagle Monday afternoon, being again resumed on Tuesday.

All the lowlands and near Flemington were inundated and the water from Bald Eagle creek was within an inch of running into the chop mill department of Foreman and Kelsey's flouring mills. No particular damage was reported from that section.

Roads Must be Marked.

Township supervisors are required under the law of the state to erect sign boards, with index hands indicating the direction and naming the town or place to which the road leads and the distance in miles. They are also required to keep these signs in repair. This is a penalty which is quite severe for those who neglect to comply with it. There are a number of roads in Centre county that are not marked, which some day will get the supervisors into a lot of trouble and expense.

Fourth Class Postmaster Examination. The United States Civil Service Commission announces that on Saturday, May 21, 1910, an examination will be held at Williamsport, Pa., as a result of which it is expected to make certification to fill a contemplated vacancy in the position of fourth class postmaster of class b, at Runville, Pennsylvania. The compensation of the postmaster for this office was $111 for the last fiscal year.
