

BRITISH NAVAL DRILL

Practice That Keeps the Crews In Fit Condition.

CLEARING SHIP FOR ACTION.

A Lively Time While the Decks Are Being Stripped of Everything That Would Impede the Fire of the Guns.

It is a little after two bells in the forenoon watch, or, in shore going talk, 9 a. m., and the officers and men of the battleship wear an expectant air.

The ship's company is fallen in at stations for general exercise. The commander, surrounded by his staff—a midshipman, a bugler and the chief boatswain's mate—is standing on top of the after barrette.

On the after bridge the glasses of the signal boatswain and his yeomen are focused on the flagship. Presently a couple of gayly colored flags are hoisted at her main.

The marines, handling large bearing out spars, shove the upper ends of the booms, from which the nets hang, outboard. They revolve slowly about their lower ends, which are near the water line and, hauled by the steam capstan on one side and the seamen on the other, extend themselves at right angles to the hull.

FACT, FUN AND FANCY. Bright, Sparkling Paragraphs—Selected and Original.

Excellent Reason. "Oh! work no more than man doan." "An' why?" "Shure, an' 'tis on account a' remark he made." "An' what was that?" "Says he, 'Casey, says he, 'ye're discharged.'"

A Lesson on Tips. A sailor had just shown a lady over a ship. In thanking him she said: "I am sorry to see by the rules that tips are forbidden on your ship." "Lor' bless you, ma'am," replied the sailor, "so were apples in the garden of Eden."

Hard on the Good Man. Jones asked his wife: "Why is a husband called a 'dough'?" He expected she would give it up, and was going to tell her it was "because a woman needs him," but she said it was because he was "hard to get off her hands."

Not a Suffragette. "I hope that your opinion uphold the dignity of our sex, Mamie, and that you believe that every woman should have a vote?" Mamie: "I don't go quite so far as that, auntie; but I believe that every woman should have a voter."

Wasted Effort. A little boy six years old went to the cupboard one day and seeing a piece of meat asked his mother for it. His mother said: "This is Lent, and you can't have it." The boy said: "Allow me to give it to the dog." "No," said his mother, "you can't give it to the dog, either." "Why not?" "Because the dog is no use trying to make a Catholic out of the dog."

Only a Wooden Leg. "Something wrong with my right foot," said the man at the hotel counter. "Could you direct me to a good carpenter?" "Excuse me," said the clerk, with a sly glance at the customer, "but of course you mean a chiropodist." "No, I'm going to be patient with you, young man, and tell you I want a good carpenter. My right leg is a wooden one."

Looking Out for Himself. A Kanaman sat on the beach at Atlantic City watching a fair and very fat bather disporting herself in the surf. He knew nothing of tides, and did not notice that each succeeding wave came a little closer to her, until at last an extra big wave washed over his shoe tops. "Hay, there!" he yelled at the fair, fat bather. "Quit yer jumpin' up and down. Dy't want to drown me?"

Well, Rather. This bit of brightness is said to have cropped out in a conversation between two Lawrence misses not old enough to go to school: "What makes a horse act naughty when he sees an auto?" "It is this way: Horses are used to seeing other horses pull wagons, and they don't know what to think of 'em going along without a horse. Guess if you saw a pair of pants walkin' down the street without a man in 'em you'd be scared, too."

As Good as He Sent. At a recent meeting of the directors of the Eastern railroad, a prominent railroad man repeated a story that he had had from a conductor on one of the limited express trains between New York and the West. A dapper young man in the first chair car had managed to become unusually friendly with an attractive young woman in an adjoining seat.

Firmness. "When my wife makes up her mind," said Mr. Meekton, "there is no use of arguing with her." "But every woman changes her opinion sometimes." "Yes, and Henrietta is particularly resolute when she makes up her mind to change her opinion."—Washington Star

Self love is at once the most delicate and the most vigorous of our defects. Nothing wounds it, but nothing kills it.

An Array of Legal Talent. Two lawyers while taking a stroll one day met a little boy and thinking they had some fun, asked him if he had heard of the trial between God and Satan. The boy answered he had not. They then asked him who he thought would win, and he promptly replied that he expected Satan to win as all the lawyers were on his side.

The Reply Sudden. Judge Longworth, of Cincinnati, the father of Nicholas Longworth, was very fond of talking with the "sons of toll." While driving through Eden park one day the judge stopped a laborer and asked him if he wanted a lift. The Irishman accepted, then the judge said: "Well, Pat, you'd be a long time in Ireland before you would be driving with a judge." Yes, sir," replied the judge's guest, "and you'd be many a day in Ireland before they'd mind a judge."

A Serious Mistake. A gentleman one night answered the door bell, when a hand handed him a package with leaves and buds sticking out of the top, asking him to give it to his cook. The cook having retired, he took it to the kitchen, filled a dish pan with water, putting the base of the package into the water and left it. The next morning going into the kitchen he heard the cook using sulphuric language. "By the power of Moll Ho-kook the black cat," he can lick the man that put my new hat in the water."

He Was There. In a little Southern town lives a colored man who says he knew George Washington. One day a traveling man asked him some questions which he thought the darkey would find difficult to answer. "Were you in the boat when George Washington crossed the Delaware?" "Lor! Massa, I steered dat boat." "Well," said the questioner, "do you remember when George took the hack at the cherry tree?" The darkey looked worried for a moment, then said with a beaming smile, "Why, suah, massa! I dun drove dat hack myself."

Veterans Dying. Senator Scott in the senate made a characteristic and effective plea in behalf of a number of old soldiers. He has charge of pension legislation. He has just introduced a bill increasing the allowance of half a hundred men, when his colleague, Mr. Elkins, moved the consideration of the railroad bill.

Mad Dog Scare. Lewisburg had a mad dog scare recently. A dog afflicted with rabies came over the river from Northampton county, and for more than an hour created a great deal of excitement on the streets, biting fifteen dogs, including some fancy bird dogs, before he was shot by a Milton policeman, who was there on detective duty. The dog attacked several men who were working on the road, but who succeeded in driving it off with their digging tools. The dogs bitten by the rabid animal were all shot. Burgess George M. Wolfe issued a decree that all dogs found on the streets not muzzled will be shot, and the police force has been instructed to carry out this order.
