SPRING MILLS.

Don't it beat the band how the writer for the Reporter and the Journal like to get their and their friends' names in the paper, when they are visiting; how little a community cares who is visiting and for those who are in business it is a poor way to keep before the public, and cheat the poor printer out of an advertisement.

About Tree Climbers.

Our Leontine correspondent makes a note of a party out on a stroll and coming to a cherry tree one of them climbed the tree and in the act of plucking a bunch of the fruit to his horror discovered a rattlesnake on a nearby limb. This is information for Dr. Surface.

"The challenge still stands," says Professor Surface. "The State of Pennsylvania doesn't know that a rattlesnake can climb a tree, neither do we absolutely know that he can't, but we incline to the latter belief. We'd like some definite, first hand knowledge of the ability of the creature to ship up a monarch of the forest or a sapling."

A Fair Suggestion.

One of our live merchants suggests the idea of raising a special fund for the fair to be offered farmers for the best exhibits of products from the farm. These premiums to be separate and distinct from those by the Fair Association, by citizens, and to be awarded in advance of the premiums by the society. Such a fund, it is contended, would attract new interest and additional attendance at the fair from farmers and advance the department of exhibits generally. At some fairs this has been a practice with good effect.

LIGHTNING DOES STUNTS.

Remarkable Series of pranks at Lewis-town.

The lightning created havoc with the superstitious in the Juniata Valley last Saturday night during one of the heaviest rain and electrical storms in the history of the valley. In fact it was three storms coming in different directions that met over Lewis-town. The electrical display was awe inspiring, and continued far into the night, picking out the tallest trees and shattering them like toothpicks, putting telephone, telegraph and electric light and signal wires out of commission and disrupting communications from all parts.

It was at the home of Harry Mitchell, sexton of the Lutheran cemetery, who resides at the western section of the cemetery that it played the most puzzling pranks. Lightning struck the gable of the house, shattering it until the entire house was like a sieve, even the clothing in the wardrobes was torn to ribbons and scorched as if sprinkled with acid. Running down the rain spout the lightning struck a barrel of water in front of the summer kitchen where Mrs. Mitchell was engaged in baking pies, the pies were all turned upside down in the oven and the crusts and filling splattered over the oven. Striking a stone wall along the turnpike it followed a little creek to the Juniata river and witnesses say that for several minutes the river was a sheet of flame.

Mr. Mitchell had been to the chicken house about a rod from the house and had an axe in his hand when the bolt struck him knocking the axe twenty feet and the lightning played about his body until Alfred Allen, a neighbor, believing he was on fire dashed a bucket of water over him. Stones weighing a hundred pounds were tossed about and a part of the bolt followed the sheet of rain up the pike to Lake Park and Bratton avenue where several children were stung and knocked from their feet.

Strange as it may seem not a person struck shows any evidence of burns and the superstitious say it was a visitation from a supernatural power and that it betokens some grave calamity. Others contend that it was simply a cold bolt, but Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell are of the opinion that it was as warm a proposition as they have come in contact with in many years.

DIZZY DROP OF THREE COWS.

Roll Down a Five Hundred-Foot Precipice and are Killed.

The Sunbury Daily Item says: Three valuable milk cows belonging to Martin Slick, the well known farmer residing on Blue Hill, met death as the result of a most peculiar accident on Tuesday afternoon. The cows were turned out in a field to graze and wandered to the brink of the hill. There being no guard rail at that point the cattle lost control of their footing on the sharp incline and went crashing down the side of the hill like a rolling boulder. One of the cows caught on some underbrush about half way down the side of the hill, where it was held a prisoner until rescued, but it was so severely injured that it was necessary to kill it to relieve its suffering. The other two kept on rolling until they reached the bottom and were instantly killed. The distance they fell is fully five hundred feet. The accident happened a short time before the afternoon passenger train was due at that point. Had it been a little later it is likely that it would have derailed the engine and caused a serious wreck.

An Iron Viaduct Dynamited.

A structural iron viaduct, which is being constructed by the Wabash railroad in McKees Rocks, near Pittsburg, was dynamited early Friday, as a result, it is alleged, of labor troubles.

The viaduct is about one-fourth of a mile long and is being constructed at the Wabash junction of the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. It is said no one was injured. The force of the explosion was so great that many windows in the western part of the city were broken and a telegraph operator employed in a Pennsylvania railroad tower was knocked from his chair. Immediately after the shock a heavy object, the steamer Valiant lying under the Ohio connecting bridge here and made a hole in the top of the boat after which it rolled into the river.

One span was partially wrecked, but the damage is not great. The viaduct connects the Wabash with the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad.

For Girls.

The girl who gives up to the desire to gad about the streets and cultivate the acquaintance of young men, the smirking simpleton, is laying the foundation of a useless life. Ten to one, when she is married she will develop into a slatternly gossip, if no greater misfortune befalls her. It is the girl of good, sound hard sense, the girl who loves home and helps her mother who wins the model subject and becomes the steadiest and most devoted wife. The girl that does this and devotes part of her time in reading and strives for the grace of mental culture, commands the respect and esteem of everybody, while gadding street ornaments only win the admiration of whose attention is not worth having.

Methodist Day.

The annual Methodist day will be held at Lakemont park, near Altoona, Thursday, July 28. Bishop Lewis, who has just returned from China will speak in the afternoon.

SIGNS OF THE TIME.

These are some of the signs of our industrial condition under the Aldrich tariff as written in the records of the day.

Reports from Boston state that many cotton mills are to close down for the purpose of curtailing production. The reduction will affect the work and the wages of 150,000 men.

Is that a sign of prosperity? A report of the steel industry says: "Business just now is exceedingly light and it is reported that a number of mills in the Pittsburgh district are about to close down through lack of orders."

Is that a sign of prosperity? One of the richest and best managed railroads in America, unable to get money in our own markets, has had to seek it in Paris, Berlin and Vienna.

Is that a sign of prosperity? Reports from the Middle West are to the effect that banks and insurance companies are curtailing loans on land mortgages.

Is that a sign of prosperity? The Government of the United States has interposed its power to prevent railways from raising rates to provide an increase of wages for its employees.

Is that a sign of prosperity? The Wholesale Dry Goods Association has started a campaign against the tariff on cotton goods that compels the American consumer to pay 30 per cent. more than Europeans.

Is that a sign of prosperity? A report from Washington announces that the Republican Congressional Committee has decided to stand pat for the Aldrich tariff and defend it in the campaign.

Is that a sign of prosperity?—The World.

The Ice Cream Cone Trade.

The announcement from Harrisburg that the pure food authorities of the State are about to begin a crusade of inspection against the ice cream cones will be of interest to nearly every town and village in the commonwealth. In that sort of confection finds ready sale in every community. The suspicion that the ice cream cone has been the means of scattering sickness warrants the rigid censorship that is about to be exercised over the manufacture and sale of the concoction. The cone is largely bought and devoured by children, and the vendors in the confection in a majority of cases are boys whose conception and appreciation of cleanliness of person and selling devices are not expected to be acute. But, after all, it is the ingredients that enter into the manufacture of these penny goods that is of first consideration, and a rigid inspection of the whole business will do no harm while it probably will do a great deal of good. In cases where purity and cleanliness prevail neither the maker nor the vendor need fear an inspection of their business and where either of these very essential features of the trade is absent it will be a public benefit to have it restricted.

Place of Camp Meeting Changed.

The district camp meeting of the Free Methodist church, which was to have been held in Stevens' park, near Tyrone, on July 20-27, has been changed to Cannan's grove, one mile north of Fort Matilda. This change has been made because picnics have been booked to be held in Stevens' park on date of camp-meeting, which would materially interfere with the success of the meeting. It can be seen by the above dates the camp-meeting commenced yesterday.
