

FRANCIS SPEER'S

Breezy "That" Column

That the best girl in Bellefonte is the pure girl.

That you don't find anybody in Bellefonte kicking for rapid transit to heaven.

That since we are not sure of a minute no person in Bellefonte can afford to throw away an hour.

That few people in Bellefonte ever expect to live to see the day when pork and beans will be a real luxury.

That there is a mother in Bellefonte who is permitting her daughter to go out riding with mighty bad company.

That the more a Bellefonte man can lie to a woman as to how beautiful she looks, the more she will believe a lot of other lies.

That it is said there is a young lady in Bellefonte who is going to marry a forist. That won't make him a blooming success.

That the roses on the cheeks of a great many girls in Bellefonte are beautiful, especially if you are an admirer of artificial flowers.

That "Billy" Taylor and "Ed" Gross, the Bellefonte dairymen, are the two fellows in town who should always keep their heads above water.

That sometimes a girl in Bellefonte pretends to whistle for the purpose of calling a young man's attention to the lovely pucker she can get on her lips.

That one of the greatest troubles in Bellefonte is that when some women have nothing to do but to attend to their own business they don't want to do even that.

That it is said that a certain ice cream server in Bellefonte is so tight that if ice cream was a penny a gallon he wouldn't give on enough to make a milk punch for a microbe.

That there are a number of women in Bellefonte who are great sufferers from the headache. If they would only take their hair off and lay it on the table a relief might come.

That the person in Bellefonte who never had any parental training and was raised like cattle on a ranch, is to be excused to a certain extent, for a lack of good common sense and decency.

That when we go down to the Bellefonte depts and see girls kissing each other we are reminded of christianity, because they are doing unto others what they would like the boys to do unto them.

That there are girls running the streets with entirely too low necked dresses. Some of them might as well have their dress chopped off at the waist. These are the girls who ought to be run in.

That a well known young man in Bellefonte is nursing a "dog bite" as the outcome of calling on one of Milesburg's pretty young ladies. The dog evidently didn't appreciate the company the girl was keeping.

That a young married woman in Bellefonte was asked the other day whether her married life wasn't brighter than her single life. She replied that it ought to be, for she received ten lamps for wedding presents.

That when a Bellefonte young man has gone with a young girl ten years he begins to think he knows all about her, but a short time after they are married he finds out that he doesn't know the one-tenth part of her.

That "Billy" Waddle, one of the most observing young men in Bellefonte, thinks that this money-getting craze is a regular disease, but every time it begins to be contagious some lobster puts a quarantine on him.

That when a certain young lady in Bellefonte discovered that her gentleman friend was going to Long Island to live she told her that in two days. That's falling off some, but she will get back to the old weight in the sweet by and by.

That concerning the cigarette habit, it is a singular circumstance that the woman who affects it belongs either to the lowest or the highest rank of society. Girls have been known to walk out in a street smoking the vile weed. The girl who does it has no respect for herself.

That it is none of our dog-gone business, but Bellefonte has entirely too many young men in it who forget to pay their debts in order to have a good time with the girls. That is, they spend most of their week's salary for that at the same time make them unmindful of their just obligations.

That Bellefonte druggists are now making a mint of money selling cosmetics to women who are getting old and don't want the people to know it. There is a young fellow in Bellefonte who is keeping company with a woman who is almost old enough to be his grandmother, but the people know about what makes him so attentive. Any old thing would do for him under the same circumstances.

That the other day a young wife in Bellefonte wanted her husband to get her a Gainsboro hat. It cost $25 and the young man hadn't the $25. To top up a bluff he told her that a beautiful and charming young lady like her had no right to be hiding her beauty under a bushel. The experiment worked like a charm, but what is troubling the young man now is his "wife" might bring home a $30 hat one of these days.

That a young blacksmith of Bellefonte went out to call on a young lady several evenings, and when she really thought they were well enough acquainted she undertook to sit on his knee. Surely he proved himself a blacksmith when he blubbered up and began talking like a tea kettle. He gave her to understand that if that was the way she was going to do when he called he would have to cut it out. Yes, it has been cut out, but he didn't do it.

That if reports are true there is a "chippy" house on High street, not a mile from the bridge, which is a warm number. It is also stated that young men who visited this place of infamy are about all in. The authorities of the town should get next to this abominable place and put it out of business. The idea of having a den of this kind on the main thoroughfare of the town is a disgrace. It is also stated that there is a house on Logan street that is doing business along the same line and is furnishing patients for our physicians. If everything is true that is said about these places, they should not be tolerated for a minute, and they would not in a well regulated town. This notice is given free of charge, as it is not expected to improve business.

A walnut log 18 feet in length was recently cut on the farm of John H. McCarty, near Raymondskill, Pike county, and sold for $250. The top part of the log was three feet in diameter. Its age showed that it grew before the white man's day in its locality and when the point where it stood was an Indian village.

A Lock Haven party of seven fishermen last week of the season boasts of having caught 300 fish, eels, suckers and trout, during the week, six days, camping on Cherry run and Fishing creek. It would be an average of 4 1-7 fish per man each day. Any old maid could do as well as that. But the fun was worth more than the fish.

Rev. D. J. Mitterling, D. D. of Madison, South Dakota, is with his brother, W. J. Mitterling, in Centre Hall. A number of committees were appointed to insure the success of the day and a very pleasant occasion is anticipated. All members of the family and their friends are cordially invited and expected to be present. The reunion will be held in the form of an old-fashioned basket picnic.

The other evening at about dusk, D. W. Bradford had an experience he did not relish. He was crossing Nittany mountain, and just a short distance below the top, his horse frightened and dashed up the embankment, almost upsetting the buggy. He investigated, and found a man lying in the middle of the road. After considerable persuasion the horse was induced to pass the point, but Mr. Bradford was unable to discover whether the man was dead or alive. He came on to Centre Hall and reported the incident, and a party was just about to go to the scene, when Mr. Stover and Miss Margaret Jacobs arrived and reported that they had a similar experience, and that the man made answer to a call in such a way as to indicate that it was a case of too much booze.

A PRAYER FOR PUBLIC OFFICERS.

The American Magazine publishes the following prayer "For All Public Officers," by Walter Rauschenbusch: "O God, thou great governor of all the world, we pray thee for all who hold public office and power. The life, the welfare and the virtue of the people is in their hands to make or mar. In the past they might have preyed on the laborers of the poor. They have laid nations in the dust by their oppression, and have thwarted the love and the prayers of thy servants. We beseech thee that the new spirit of democracy has touched even the kings of the earth. We rejoice that by the free institutions of our country the tyrannous instincts of the strong may be curbed and turned to the patient service of the commonwealth. Strengthen the sense of duty in our political life. Grant that the servants of the State may feel ever more deeply that any diversion of their public powers for private gain or ambition is a tampering with a sacred trust and a betrayal of their country. Purge our cities and States and nations of the deep causes of corruption which have so often made sin profitable and uprightness hard. Raise up a new generation of public men, who shall have the faith and daring of the Kingdom of God in their hearts, and who will enlist for life in a holy warfare for the freedom and rights of the people. Bring to an end the stale days of party cunning. Give our leaders a new vision of the possible future of our country and set their hearts on fire with large resolves. Breathe a new spirit into all our nation, and let us rise from the dust and mire of the past to gird ourselves for a new day's work."

The large shed at the east end of McMullen's Roller Flour mills at Millheim has been removed and makes a great change in the appearance of the building. All white pine timber had been used when the mill was originally built by the Hublers over a hundred years ago, and is as good and solid today as it was when first used. The timber will be used by Mr. McMullen to build an extension to the mill on the west end.

Charles VanGordon, a young man working on the farm of Harvey Geiser, just below Hublersburg, fell from the hay mow to the barn floor. The young man was in the mow pitching hay and in stepping backwards stepped right into the hay hole falling there with an alighting on his head on the floor. He was rendered unconscious and a physician being summoned found him in convulsions and suffering with concussion of the brain. He was brought to the Bellefonte hospital Thursday morning. The young man remained after consciousness had been revived again. Examination proved that no bones were broken, the fall causing concussion of the brain, and the best hopes are for his recovery. The lad bears an excellent reputation, and after consciousness had been restored, the nurse asked if there was anything he wanted, his reply was, "I want grace." The parents speak highly of the treatment he was accorded in the hospital.

GOOD ROAD BOOSTERS. Congressman Scott Ferris of Oklahoma in an enthusiastic address on the subject of good roads uttered the following: "Good roads bring the products of the mine and forest to the factory door. Good roads bring thrift to the farmer and thrift to the customer and wealth to the nation. Good roads make farm life pleasant and profitable and enhance its usefulness. Good roads bring us more rural routes—will bring us better ones and more efficient ones. They make better homes, happier brides, more patriotic people. They distribute the products of the mine, the forest and the factory. They are the avenues of progress and the highest and best proof of the intelligence we enjoy. It does justice to producer and consumer and withholds injustice from all. They save time, labor, money and failure. They patronize the railways and the waterways you have appropriated for so lavishly. Highways, I tell you, sir, are not the property of one class of men, but are the property and interest of everyone, whether he be black or white, educated or uneducated, weak or strong, high or low, savage or civilized. They are, I tell you, the property of us all, and we should all aid in their upbuilding."

POSTAL BANKS SOON. If present plans carry the postal savings bank system will be in operation by Oct. 15, at the earliest, or by Nov. 1, at the latest. This is the opinion of the committee that has the organization and institution of the banks in charge. The committee has proposed that the post offices of the second and third classes. The idea is immediately to extend the system to people most in need of banking facilities and this can be done best through the post offices selected.

Of course, banks will not be opened in all post offices of the second and third classes simultaneously, rather in one or two post offices in each county, these to be added to as rapidly as administration of the system will permit. Experience gained in thus opening the banks will be valuable in the extension of the system, especially as regards the cost of operations, which must be kept at a minimum to insure the success of the plan. One opportunity for economy lies in bookkeeping which must be so simplified as not to necessitate additional clerks in offices where otherwise they are not needed. It is extremely interesting to note the fact that nearly every national bank in the country has applied to be designated as a depository for the postal savings banks; especially as the American Bankers' association opposed postal savings banks on the ground that they were not needed, and would be of no service to anyone.

THE ROAD TO YOUTH. Since I resolved to look for joys In all created things, To turn my back on what annoys, And hush all murmuring; To look upon my neighbor as A man who respects me well, And let the cloud that lowers pass All heedless of its spell; To thrust from out my heart and mind All evil thoughts, and mean, And everywhere I glance to find Some beauty in the scene. I find that though my days increase My years diminish, Truth To tell, the method brings me peace, And holds me close to youth!

Teachers in Demand. Positions await several thousand teachers in the public schools in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, according to Bruce M. Watson, superintendent of schools in Spokane, who says that fully five hundred will be required in that city next fall. There were 448 teachers on the city's pay roll last season, at salaries ranging from $55 to $90 a month.

A FINE FIGURE. Once there lived a young lady in Lynn Who was so excessively thin That when she essayed To sip lemonade She slipped through the straw and fell in.
