

FRANCIS SPEER'S

Breezy "That" Column

That the places of ill-fame in Bellefonte are not always in the poorest families of the town.

That no man in Bellefonte should make a fool of himself who can get a woman to do it for him.

That many a girl in Bellefonte takes pleasure in knitting her brows when she is too lazy to darn her stockings.

That we have people in Bellefonte who look "out of sight" and when you come to think of it they can't be trusted "out of sight."

That there is a woman in Bellefonte who is said to be cutting people right and left. The reason of that is she has a hatchet face.

That Thomas A. Shoemaker, the Bellefonte contractor, says when he builds a tunnel he is always anxious to see things through.

That it takes sand to have a Home Week. Probably the reason why Bellefonte is so slow about having one is it has more wind than sand.

That some people in Bellefonte have nothing but praise for their minister. You can always tell that when the contribution box is passed around.

That if a certain woman in Bellefonte would know what was in store for her in the future she wouldn't be so gay. She is now running the gauntlet, but wait.

That Dr. M. J. Locke, one of the experienced and popular physicians in Bellefonte, says when a doctor enters politics the first thing to do is to feel the public's pulse.

That they say when a certain married man of Bellefonte leaves town he gets after other married women with as much fleet-footedness as a bound dog after a rabbit.

That the other Sunday a teacher in the Bellefonte Presbyterian church asked one of the boys in her class who it was who kept a watchful eye over us. "Teddy Roosevelt," promptly replied the bright lad.

That hereafter Charles Moran and Dick Brouse, of Bellefonte, will bet on a sure thing, and then they will return home with more of the "Ready John Davis" in the inside of their pockets. It shows a good spirit to be loyal to home but it often costs something.

That it is said that a young man in Bellefonte, with red hair, was speaking around a certain place the other night. Dr. Locke rather suspicious. Now there is more than one red-headed individual in town, so be charitable and don't blame the wrong one.

That many a man in Bellefonte who has to foot his wife's millinery and dressmaking bills certainly has a kick coming. The public generally know what woman is keeping her husband's head to the grindstone in order that she may satisfy her whims and fancies.

That several weeks ago Wilbur Burkholder, the able assistant in the Bellefonte P. R. R. passenger station, was helping on the farm like the old woman who kept tavern out west. Like he was "duck" hunting, and its about time he is bringing one.

That it is said that a small boy on Bishop street, Bellefonte, sprained his wrist the other day and his mother relieved it by bathing it in whisky. During the process he surprised his mother by asking, "Did papa ever sprain his wrist when he was a little boy?"

That there is a certain young lady in Bellefonte who will find that after she becomes a bride it will take more than elegant clothes to make the mare go. In a short time she will get a taste of the realities of life, and thus her ideas of men and things will be entirely changed.

That the girl who frequently meets a married man on the corner of the alley, near Parrish's drug store, had better go home and mind her own business or one of these nights she will run up against the real thing. There has been too much of that nonsense going on, so it's time to stop.

That Fred Herman, one of the polite clerks in the Landerbach-Barror wholesale grocery store, has a wonderful curiosity out at his home in Bush's addition. He has poultryman Heister skinned a mile. The strange freak of nature is a rooster pigeon that lays eggs. It is a little tough on the rooster, but Fred swears its O. K.

That it is said that Coburn Rodgers, one of the progressive physicians in Bellefonte, once asked the other day whether he believed that man was made out of dust. "Well," said the doctor, "I don't know about man being made of dust, but I am sure girls are—they make such a Dickens of a lot of trouble when they get in a fellow's eye."

That a young lady in Bellefonte would like to know when to use "shall" and "should." She should never use "shall" when she should use "should" and never use "should" when she should use "shall." In short, she should always say should whenever she should, and never should say shall when she should say should. Isn't that plain enough?

That Bellefonte has some haughty, self-conceited people in it who imagine that money is the separating line that marks the genuine lady or gentleman. These bigotted people should go up in the Union cemetery and take a lesson from the surroundings where all men are equal. Eternity will only reveal the fact whether blue blood is any better than the common red blood.

That there is a certain young fellow in Bellefonte who is blessed with both health and strength who is going around the town like a tramp. When work in Bellefonte has been plenty as it has this summer he ought to have pride enough in himself and fatality to have asked for a job. There ought to be a whipping post for such lazy loafers whose ambition has been stunted by drink and low down meanness. As this fellow mingles with his fellow-men he is nothing but a booby.

That when whisky makes a fool of a man like it did on Friday afternoon of the individual who was found along the old Lewisburg pike, beyond the brick school house, then it is high time for him to cut it out. A hog would have been ashamed of itself—had it been found in the same debasing predicament. Don't blame us for making this comment because the affair was beneath the dignity of a gentleman, and deserves the severest censure. Yes, whisky makes a man lower than a brute. When sober this person is all right, but when drunk he is all wrong.

Mr. Spangler, for ten years, has been in the offices of the Chicago and Northern Railroad Company, in Chicago, and is the youngest of three brothers located there.

In some sections of this county apples are abundant. We have seen large orchards with trees laden and fallen fruit covering the ground and rotting. Then there are some few sections where the orchards are not full bearing. Upon the whole, however, we are safe in saying that the apple crop in our county will not be a small one.

The ladies of the Pleasant View Chapel will hold a festival on the evening of Saturday, August 20. Everybody invited and an enjoyable evening assured for all. Emanuel Noll is one of those having the matter in hand and he very appropriately announces that persons desiring to help the chapel and unable to attend the festival may easily accomplish that result by handing their contributions to him.

Dr. Karl Reinhardt, Geheimerr Regierungsrat for the interchange of professors between German and American colleges, has notified the Pennsylvania State College that he has assigned Herr Heinrich Starcke, of Kottbus, as a member of the faculty of this college for the ensuing year. Herr Starcke will arrive in September and while in this country will lecture before prominent German societies of the State. The interchange is effected under the regulations of the Carnegie Foundation.

J. Miller Goodhart, who some time ago purchased a portion of the Ross farm, near Farmers Mills, has the new farm buildings almost completed. The buildings are located near the school house, east of Old Fort on the road leading from pike to Farmers Mills. The barn is completed and in service, and the dwelling house is ready for the plasterers. The construction of complete farm buildings during one season means a great deal of labor and expense, but Mr. Goodhart is meeting all emergencies. The carpenter work was done by the Hagens.

J. A. Hosterman, of Gregg, who made a trip to South Dakota some three weeks ago, returned last week. He found all Centre county folks who settled out there flourishing and well with no desire to come back to live here. He made the trip one way in two days. Mr. Hosterman learned from the Centre countians whom he visited out there that they did not raise as much wheat to the acre as farmers do in Centre county, but having much more land, they harvest more grain with far less labor than our farmers do—stones and stumps are not there as a hindrance to the plow, harrow and harvester.

Mrs. Sophia Linn, widow of the late James Polk Linn, and for many years a resident of Blanchard, is a dealer household goods loaded on a car on Thursday and shipped to Camden, where she will make her future home with her daughter, Mabel, who recently became the wife of Weber Thomas, formerly of Howard, but now employed in the immense factory of the Victor Talking Machine company in Camden. Wednesday evening a host of friends of Mrs. Linn and Mrs. Thomas gave the latter a "kitchen shower" which was in the nature of a surprise and farewell party. The young wife received a lot of useful and ornamental presents. The affair was most enjoyable and will linger long in the memory of the departing residents as well as the friends present. The removal of those ladies will be regretted by many, who wish them success and happiness in their new home. For several years Mrs. Linn was proprietor of the Stover house and afforded first class accommodations to the traveling public. Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Stover, who own the house, and who recently returned from the south, will again occupy their premises.

Mrs. Nathan Kunes, formerly of Blanchard, is ill in the Lock Haven hospital with typhoid fever.

All crops, even unto the oats, in the vicinity of Centre Hall, as we learn from ex-farmer George Emerick, were housed in good condition.

Preaching services in the United Brethren churches for Sunday, the 21st: Valley View at 10:30 a. m.; Houserville at 7:30 a. m.; by the pastor, Rev. E. H. Harvey Swank.

The Centre Hall base ball team won a decisive victory over Millheim on Thursday of last week. The score was 9-0 in favor of Centre Hall. Smith was in fine form and had good support.

A festival will be held on Saturday evening, at the Buffalo Run Presbyterian church. The ladies are anxious for a bare creching and will come down in their pockets and help along the good cause. Everybody is cordially invited.

The corn crop in some sections of Juniata county has been almost totally ruined by hail in the last several weeks. In our county only a small percentage of the oats crop was harmed by rains. The crop was a good one.

Dr. J. V. Foster has leased the home of Miss Emily Alexander, at Centre Hall, and will occupy the same. He will also have his office in his residence, which is almost immediately opposite the residence of the late Dr. J. F. Alexander.

There will be a grand fete held at Lemont on the lawn in front of the M. E. church, on Saturday evening, August 20th. Ice cream, cake and all the delicacies of the season will be served. Come and bring your friends along for an evening of pleasure.

The new club house at Hecla is high completion and it is a fine edifice not matched in the central part of the state. Carpenters are busy upon elegant finishings of the interior and the attractiveness of the park grounds is delightful. With an electric light plant, telephones, railroad station, water from mountain springs and a stream of the same coursing in a charter for a proposed corporation to be known as the Snow Shoe Fire Brick company, a concern which has in view the erection of a plant in the vicinity of Snow Shoe for the manufacture of fire brick.

NUMBERING THE PEOPLE.

Some Interesting Comparisons and Calculations.

Exact figures of the population of the United States as ascertained by the census of 1910 will not be given until autumn. The unofficial estimate, which is in fact a close official approximation, lends interest to the following table showing the country's growth since the first enumeration:

Table with 2 columns: Year and Population. Rows include 1790 (3,929,214), 1800 (5,308,483), 1810 (7,239,881), 1820 (9,633,822), 1830 (12,866,020), 1840 (17,069,453), 1850 (23,191,876), 1860 (31,443,321), 1870 (38,558,371), 1880 (50,155,783), 1890 (62,622,250), 1900 (76,303,387), 1910 (unofficial) (90,000,000).

Thus in one hundred and twenty years the population has been multiplied almost by twenty-three and in fifty years almost by three. We now have an average of both Illinois and Ohio, States created in that region, now have many more inhabitants than were then to be found in the whole country. The population of these States added to that of the other three—Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin—since 1869 has been that of the United States at the census of 1840. Yet there were men calling themselves far-sighted who only a hundred years ago predicted that the Northwest Territory was destined for all time to be the home only wild beasts and wild men. Since 1869 the center of population has been moving westward in what was once the Northwest Territory.

Even more doleful prophecies were made as to the fate of the Louisiana territory, out of which have been formed States that now have a population nearly as large as that of all the States in 1810. Missouri alone has more people than were enumerated at the first national census in 1790. As many people now live west of the Mississippi River as were found in the entire country by the census-takers of 1810, and time only is figuring now for the third time in a census, has more inhabitants than all New England possessed in 1820, while Texas has at least three times as many.

To come nearer home, New York City, embracing but 226 square miles, now has as many inhabitants as were returned by the national census of 1890, and great as are many of the States of the Union, only two of them, Pennsylvania and Illinois, have more people than are to be found in this one splendid municipality.

A wonderful country; a wonderful city!—New York World.
