

FRANCIS SPEER'S

Breezy "That" Column

That many a woman in Bellefonte considers marriage a failure because she can't have all the say.

That Bellefonte has in it some men who may lack the sense of humor, and also lack the sense of shame.

That the way some women in Bellefonte try to use a Colt revolver is enough to make a horse laugh.

That "Buzzy" Parrish says that if Joe Cannon has a boy it wouldn't be polite to call the youngster a son-of-a-gun.

That "Slim" Baum, the enterprising clothier of Bellefonte, says the time is close at hand when a straw hat will not be felt.

That two good-looking things that generally go together in Bellefonte, a good-looking woman and a good-looking glass.

That there is a married man and his wife in Bellefonte who put on the airs of a millionaire when they go to a strange town.

That when a man in Bellefonte says that misfortune drove him to drink, you can rest assured it was drink that drove him to misfortune.

That girls in Bellefonte will not go horseback riding unless they think they have a cute form, and their figures look good in a riding habit.

That J. K. Johnston, the Bellefonte tax collector, says that the people like to be taken for what they are worth, except when the assessor visits them.

That Theodore Cherry, of Bellefonte, engineer on the L. & E. railroad, says it is no sin that the man who runs a locomotive is happy because he whistles at his work.

That a good lady in Bellefonte should remember not to pray for a hungry man without first giving him something to eat. Prayer without pork and beans availeth not.

That when you see a man in Bellefonte going down hill don't put your hand on the soles of his shoes. The chances are that he has them greased already and he is going entirely too fast.

That a certain woman in Bellefonte shouldn't lug old clippings into a newspaper office and tell the editor that she has brought him something to fill up with. Take him a cabbage; he can fill up with that.

That it is said that the reason preachers wear Prince Albert coats is to hide the patches on their trousers. Judging from the mean salary some ministers in Centre county get we suppose that's about right.

That there is a young man in Bellefonte who has great respect for his own home, but none whatever for some of the homes where he works. One of these nights somebody will take his scalp. This is no lie.

That a lady on Linn street, Bellefonte, does not get angry when her husband stays out late at night, but what makes her hot under the collar is when he does return home and then sneaks in without her having any knowledge of the time.

That on Wednesday evening of last week the Bellefonte fans wanted to know who pitched that day in the game of ball between Bellefonte and Osceola. Why, Deacon Harris, of course. The score was 11 to 1 in favor of the other fellows.

That it is said there is a young man in Bellefonte who is going to marry a girl because she has the dead wood on him. The family is kicking like steers, but what will the poor man do? He doesn't want to be a boarder of Sheriff Hurley for three months.

That the children of the poor in Japan are often labeled in case they stray from home. It would be a capital idea if some of the wives of Bellefonte would put a tag on their husbands when they go out at night, in case they would stray into forbidden paths.

That the other evening a certain young lady residing in the North ward of Bellefonte sat for two long hours on the knees of her gentleman friend. Finally she said, "I'm afraid I'm tiring you." He—"Oh, not at all. I used to nurse the baby elephant at the Zoo."

That "Mitch" Cunningham, manager of the Bellefonte base ball team, was somewhat disfigured in the roundup of the Centre Pennsylvania League, but is still in the ring and able to take nourishment. Umpire Dr. Dale says his pulse is normal. He says the next time we will give 'em h—

That recently a man in Bellefonte turned down a friend to please somebody who has a little more money. He is either a fool or crazy. He is a crank and wants to tudy to the man who can put more money in his pocket. This kind of a crank doesn't even deserve a pleasant look from anybody.

That often people in Bellefonte are blamed wrongly, while in other cases some are not blamed enough. It seems that the latter can commit the most flagrant sins and yet be able to hold their own in society. This is one of the reasons that society in Bellefonte is not what it was twenty years ago. It now has some hard cases in it who need to be weeded out.

That it is said that two prominent married men in Bellefonte, once bosom companions, now pass on the street without recognition. They don't even make goo-goo eyes at each other. The one blames the other for giving away one of their midnight escapades. Neither of them gave the thing away. We got it from the man up the tree, so they can shake hands and make up.

That the way the girls of Bellefonte are putting up their hair is simply disgusting. The fellow sitting behind this bunch of artificial hair in the scenic or opera house just swears as though his view to the stage was obstructed by a large Gainsboro hat.

The next thing the Manager Brown, of the scenic, will be compelled to attach a toilet room to the scenic where the women can go and take down and put up their hair. The style is a nuisance and some of our girls look as if they were shot at and missed.

That there are a number of girls from the ordinary families who have married young men of prominence, perhaps a little above their station of life. One of the ridiculous things is to see these young ladies holding their heads above those who have really more brains and intelligence. Many a young man has been badly bitten by marrying a girl of this character, and the only thing he can do is to quietly bear the burden. Often times the biggest fools on earth are the girls who manage to marry into families above their station in life.

Olin A. Jamison, who occupies the Jacob Kerstetter farm, near Coburn, recently purchased the John Spigelmeyer farm, northwest of Millburg, and will move there next spring. This farm contains seventy-three acres and is very productive.

Lewistown in order to be a bigger, brighter and better town has begun the execution of so called worthless dogs. This dog-killing contagion has spread to Milroy, and it is believed that Reedsville will yet be under its spell also. Wonder whether it will spread to Bellefonte, too?

On Monday, Aug. 29th, at 1 p. m. there arrived at the Everett homestead in Coburn, master Leon Randolph Black, a bright little 5th baby boy. Both mamma and the little one are doing well. Mamma and papa are both happy; we extend to Mr. and Mrs. Black our hearty congratulations.

Prof. R. E. Hager, of Lock Haven, left for Johnsonburg, Pa., on Friday where he has been elected to teach science in the high school at that place. Prof. Hager is a graduate of the Central State Normal school and for the past several years was a teacher in the Phillipsburg public schools. He is a scholarly young man and will add strength to the Johnsonburg High school faculty.

A purse containing some forty dollars was picked up on the street near the Reformed church at Centre Hall by Jerry W. Breen, the same being spied lying in the dust by Hazel, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Ripka, who was in the vehicle with Mr. Breen. A bit of investigation of the contents of the purse, revealed that it was the property of George M. Hall, of Linden Hall.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church of Blanchard met Thursday at the home of one of the members, Mrs. A. Lincoln Paul, on the farm in Beech Creek township, which Mr. Paul recently purchased from John Gummo. The ride of about four miles from town was enjoyed greatly, the ladies being conveyed in the trolley "Valley Queen," of the DeHans livery.

The guests arrived sometime before noon, and a sumptuous dinner was prepared and served by Mrs. Paul and her daughter, Miss Eleanor, consisting of fried spring chicken and an elegant variety of good things together with seasonable vegetables, fruit cake and ice cream, to which all did ample justice. Following the satisfying appetites made the more vigorous by reason of the ride, about 2 o'clock the meeting of the society was held, of which Mrs. T. J. Bechdel is the president, and devotional exercises were held and business of the society passed upon. Until the return home was made, the members spent the time pleasantly in a social way, all having a most delightful visit at the hospitable Paul home and all agreed it was well for them to have been there. On the return trip, the party was treated to some choice apples at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Peters, and further along at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Glosner they were held up and their thirst assuaged with delicious fresh cider.

The Howard Huster has installed a junior linotype, which is creditable to the publisher and to that live borough. Trust it will be having an abundance of "feed" to keep the Huster afloat on the deepest waters of newspaperdom and withstand the dash of the most angry waves. Success financially, and as a hustler for the interests of the county.

Miss Louise Hoffer, a graduate of the Phillipsburg High school, class 1910, has been elected to fill a vacancy in the Chester Hill school, caused by the resignation of Miss Carrie McFadden, of Osceola, who has been elected to teach in her home town. The young lady is a daughter of C. U. Hoffer, and a granddaughter of C. T. Garbrick of Bellefonte. She is a very bright and intelligent young lady.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas D. Smith, accompanied by their little son, arrived in Centre Hall, the other afternoon, and from there went to near Tusseyville, where they will spend some time with the former's mother. Mr. Smith is in the business office of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and is taking his first vacation since having been advanced to a secretaryship in one of the departments, which advancement was made the beginning of this year.

Cider making and apple butter billing is now in vogue. The old style billing and snittings have gone out of date to considerable extent and the young folks have to look for other enjoyments to make up for the loss. To go four or five miles afoot on evenings to an apple butter boiling was a common thing back over a quarter century ago, and when through before midnight, hoodwings were next on the program, and go home with the gals at early morn. Reader, did you have a taste of it?

PENNA. MILLERS GATHER.

Many Grain Men to Attend Three-day Sessions. Members of the Pennsylvania Millers' State Association, the oldest of its kind in this country, will hold their thirty-third annual convention in Atlantic City next week.

The sessions are to begin Wednesday, September 14, and continue for three days. This organization is composed of all leading millers throughout Pennsylvania and some of the adjoining states, and one of the most important subjects to the flour trade and bakers everywhere which is to take up flour, the standard water wheat millers are obliged to sell their flour far below the price of the spring wheat product and why winter wheat growers are paid so little, compared with the rates for spring wheat, for the marketable crops of their grain fields.

Thirty-five years ago spring wheat was almost an unknown quantity. The Pennsylvania millers started their organization in the days when the homemade bread of mothers and grandmothers was baked exclusively from winter wheat flour, and the standard and concentrated nutrient and palatableness of the loaves, like many pleasant recollections of the past, still linger.

At current quotations spring wheat brings from 25 to 30 cents a bushel while winter wheat, at present, brings higher than the winter product. A strong movement is to be started at this gathering of the millers to get the winter wheat flour placed in what is claimed to be the true position before the public.

The winter flour men assert that the bakers of the present day are led to the use of spring wheat flour, even though higher in price, because they say it absorbs water and moisture more readily than winter wheat flour, and that it makes a bigger or bulkier loaf.

When the moisture dries out in a short time, they say, all such bread becomes tough and stale, and loses much of its nutritious qualities, being then almost tasteless. The spring wheat crop thus far this season has winter wheat crop all over the country is a large one, and the quality of the grain is unusually good.

The official program thus far arranged includes address and papers on "The Mechanics of Milling," by Prof. John Price Jackson, dean of the School of Engineering of Pennsylvania State College.

George A. Zabriskie, of New York, will speak on "Relations of Miller and Jobber"; Abraham S. Hershey, of York, Pa., will discuss "The Pennsylvania Bakers and Millers," and James Elliott will talk on "The Educational Model Mill."

Greater New York.

Since 1900 the population of the metropolis has increased by 1,329,681, or 38.7 per cent as compared with 3,427,202 under the last census.

Grasshoppers Halt Traffic. Grasshoppers hanging themselves on the glistening rails of the Union Railroad, which partially encircles Pittsburg, have demoralized traffic on the road. Trains must be stopped and the tracks heavily sanded after the massive engines crush thousands of grasshoppers and spread the oil of their bodies over the tracks.

For two weeks the grasshopper scourge has been spreading over Allegheny county. Farmers in the truck districts around the city have banded together to fight the pests, but have devised no effective means of combating them.

Within the last few days the grasshoppers have invaded the downtown business district of Pittsburg and weather bureau forecasters sweep thousands from the roof of the twenty-four-story Oliver Building in the heart of the business section.

Rebels at Doing Wife's Work. Jacob Schillinger, of Olivet, Mo., wants a divorce, and he presents accounts that he will be a manly fellow. He is a gardener, but while working at his occupation, these are the things he complains his spouse compelled him to do: Cook all the meals for himself, his children and his wife. Wash the dishes three times a day. Do the family washing once a week. Wash and dress the children daily. Wash the windows weekly. Dust the furniture daily. Milk the cows morning and night. Make butter twice a week. Perform other household duties too numerous to mention. He does not say what his wife did.

Honest Bargains Bring Patronage. The advertisements in a newspaper, if the merchant means what he says, are a very valuable part of the paper to its readers. Through them the people learn where they can secure bargains and thus save themselves money. For this reason the merchant who has bargains to offer and who always does by his customers just as he advertises that he will do, is the man whose "ads" are read with interest, and who is sought when the readers wish to buy. The prosperous merchant, when he has bargains to offer, advertises the fact to the people because he wishes them to come and see him; and then he does just as he advertises to do. People are always looking for bargains.

LIFE ON THE FARM.

There is no better place to live than on a farm, here nature provides for the wants of man and "As he sows so shall he reap." This means that if a person does his work well there will be plenty of all earth's blessings for all his needs. Education is absolutely necessary for providing the necessary knowledge one must possess to enable him or her to understand the business.

For years the people have been restless, leaving their farms and taking up a business career in the city. Some do well while a very great majority would be better off had they remained on the farm. You often hear the remark that the city is no place for raising children. This is true to a great extent, as food and clothing are often lacking, owing to the inability of the people to earn enough money to meet expenses.

We have seen how the tendency of high prices affect the pocket-book of the wage-earner. One would imagine that with the wages being paid in the city this time would permit one to live in luxury, but conditions prove that such is not the case. There are hundreds of thousands of people living in the city in crowded, unsanitary buildings who are denied many of the blessings of this life, the most important of which are food and health. As health depends upon food, air, and exercise, much of which is lacking in the city. We cannot fully enjoy life without these things. The young man therefore, who is raised on the farm had better remain there.

Fined; Wooden Leg as Pay. Joseph Murphy, a West Hammond, Ind., tramp, was arrested for drunkenness in Gosport and fined $5 and costs by Judge Mayo in the city court. Murphy had a wooden leg, unscrewed it and offered it to the court in payment of his fine, saying that it was all he had on earth. He then knelt before the court and pleaded for mercy. Judge Mayo told him to screw on his leg and gave him money to get out of town.
