EDITORIAL.

Politicians who have been following the tour of Candidate Tener in the northwestern part of the State say that not in many campaigns have Republican candidates received such small attention.

A very significant feature of the campaign in this State, is that none of the Machine organs has anything to say in opposition to Mr. Grim; all their guns are trained on Mr. Berry. That shows where their sympathy lies and what they are afraid of.

It is a notable fact that all the Penrose-Tener organs are fighting Berry and not Grim. They hate Berry because he "lifted the lid" and got a score of the Penrose capitol plunderers into the meshes of the law and some already in state's prison. That's the reason, honest voters, why the fight is made against Berry. What's the duty now of honest men?

The democratic position on the tariff is gaining ground with thousands of republicans in all sections of the land and the standpat senators and members of the house are being defeated for re-election and democrats and anti-high tariff republicans being elected. Justice is moving slowly, but is getting there and the plundered masses are making up their minds that they will no longer be used by the graft and greedy machine, to toil and slave in order to create a millionaire oligarchy.

ONLY A BOODLER.

Candidate Charles E. Patton, of Clearfield, the Penrose nominee for congress, has been conspicuous in and about Bellefonte the past week. A portrait, accompanied by an elaborate biography, adorned the front pages of the local papers, from which we learned much about Mr. Patton's paternal ancestry, and like the heathen Chinese, he makes his principal stock in trade that he is the son of an illustrious father. Further than that there thus far has been mighty little light been shed on the real point at issue.

We know that this man was chosen to knock out Barclay, who would have gone down to a certain defeat, if re-nominated. Patton was also selected to knock down Lewis Emery, a progressive republican of the Roosevelt brand. We know that Patton spent over $6000 (according to his sworn statement) to get this nomination, while others spent for him possibly as much more, not accounted for, to nominate this man. For this he justly wears the brand of being a "boodler," whose money was freely spent like Joe Sibley's, to corrupt the voters of this congressional district at the June primaries. By the time the election is over it is fair to estimate that he will spend twice the amount of the salary of the office. It is another case of a rich man's dirty dollars buying a seat in congress. Why?

Where has the public had any expression, or even an intimation, as to how, if elected, Mr. Patton will vote, or what measures he will support or even what convictions or views he has on public issues, that are paramount in this year 1910.

Will he be a standpatter? Will he vote for Joe Cannon? Does he endorse the recent Payne-Aldrich tariff?

Does he favor any immediate revision of any obnoxious features of the tariff? Does he believe that Ballinger should resign?

Where in all his campaign has he given any evidence of an intelligent conception or conviction on any leading issue that is absorbing the attention of the nation?

There is nothing in evidence to this time, except that he naturally wants the office, was the Penrose choice, spent $6000 to buy the nomination; and if elected will have another "boodler" like Dresser and Barclay—taking his orders, voting with the "special interests" on every occasion, to the great detriment of those less fortunate—the common people.
 In short, Patton is a "boodler," and were it not for his money would he be an obscure individual in this congressional district. He never voiced any pronounced political convictions and doubtless never had any—may not be mentally constituted to entertain anything of that character.
 This congressional district deserves something better.

ENDORSE KEYSTONE TICKET.

Prominent Republican Paper in Pittsburg Denounces Our Political Bosses.

With a double column, large type editorial on the first page, the Pittsburg Leader a Republican newspaper, last week boldly came out in favor of the election of William H. Berry as governor of Pennsylvania, and at the same time administered a stinging rebuke to Colonel Guffey, Webster Grim and the Penrose machine. It says:

"The Democratic party of Pennsylvania has again been forced to wear the dollar mark upon its banners. Its 'bosses' have sold it out, body and soul to the infamous Penrose machine."
 "Grim, the Democratic candidate for governor, has refused to step aside in favor of some good Democrat upon whom the people can center their opposition to Penroselism. He intends to go through with the deal that has been made between the Republican and Democratic 'bosses.'"
 "In the face of the certain and ignominious defeat that awaits the Democratic party and its candidates there must be a motive, and a very strong one, for such a silly, stubborn and altogether inexcusable course."

Democratic Party Sold Out.
 "And the general opinion of decent citizens in Pennsylvania today is that the Democratic party has been made a thing of barter and sale."
 "Grim cannot be the next governor of Pennsylvania. He knows he cannot and so do the 'bosses' who dictated his nomination, and who have refused to let him step aside in favor of popular fusion. He is only a tool, and a very weak one at that. He has absolutely no chance of defeating either Tener, the tool of Penrose, or Berry, candidate of the Keystone party."

"Grim, the Democratic nominee, will be the last man in the race. Honest and sincere Democrats know what awaits their party, and they are righteously indignant. They can see nothing but disaster to their party and success for the 'bosses' on the other side."
 "Grim will be so badly beaten by Berry that nearly all, if not all, the register assessors in the state will be lost to the Democrats."
 "Honest Democrats wanted Grim to stand aside as Berry and others had promised to do, for the sake of uniting the independent forces."

Money Influence Prevails.
 "But the 'bosses' have intervened, the money influence has prevailed and Penroselism now is assured of triumph over the people."
 "Traitors in the Democratic party have served it with the infamy of a Benedict Arnold. They have betrayed their cause and delivered their forces into the hands of the common enemy."
 "Guffey, who has manipulated Democratic affairs to his own selfish ends in and out of season, is hypocrisy personified in his statement to the people regarding the Grim decision to remain in the fight."
 "Every move in the game betrays the slimy machinations of the Guffey brand of politics."
 "His pretense of honesty in the Grim phase is as disgusting as it is shameful. Guffey's statement in behalf of Grim is intended only to cover up the rottenness of the intrigue with Penrose."
 "It will fool no honest Democrat or independent voter. No decent Democrat, because such treachery as has been shown by Guffey, and who honestly votes his convictions, can cast a ballot for Grim."
Alternative for Democrats.
 "He must either support William H. Berry, the Keystone candidate, or he must remain away from the polls entirely."
 "Guffey and the other 'tools,' by their sell-out to the Republican machine, have almost disfranchised honest Democrats."
 "It is unnecessary for them to forego the right of suffrage in November, because they can satisfy to a great extent their desire for better government in aligning their protest against 'bossism' with that of the Keystone party."

"But unless they are willing to do this they must deny themselves the opportunity to exercise the highest functions of citizenship, and await the disaster of party wrecking with fortitude and courage."
 "And, after all, this last act of treachery by the Democratic 'bosses' may be a good thing for the Democratic party in the end. It means the complete elimination of traitors and political panders from the party."
 "Men like Guffey will find no place for themselves to hide when the landslide overtakes them."
 "They will be overwhelmed and swept under the tide of progress. They will be nothing more than an odious memory."
 "Then the party can be reconstructed. It can build for the future with some hope that its honest aims will find an outlet."

STRONG RELIGIOUS SENTIMENT.

United Evangelicals, Baptists, United Brethren and Presbyterians Speak.

The following extracts were made from the daily papers during the past week and indicate where the moral and religious sentiment of Pennsylvania stands in this campaign:

Ticket for Christian Citizens.
 (From the Evangelical, organ of the United Evangelical Church.)
 "The two old parties, who but recently flung bold defiance into the faces of the very best citizenship in their ranks, by nominating a couple of men for the high office of governor, are unquestionably under the conscienceless rule of the whisky power, are now, in an assumed air of great superiority, trying to relieve their inmost fear of consequences by 'poking' fun at this movement, but their countenances will be likely to undergo a change before long, as they wake up to the serious fact that a great battle is ahead of them."
 "We say again that a revolt against a whiskybossed government has at last come, and it will now show no mercy. The civic conscience of this old commonwealth has at last been aroused to reaction, and its purposes, at whatever cost, to assert its right. The convention, composed of representative delegates from a large majority of the counties in the state met in Witherspoon Hall in the city of Philadelphia on Thursday, July 23, and nominated a ticket which so far seems to touch a reponding pulse all over the state. The names of William H. Berry, of Chester, for governor; D. Clarence Gibbons, of Philadelphia, for lieutenant governor; Cornelius D. Scully, of Pittsburg, for treasurer; and John J. Casey, of Wilkes-Barre, for secretary of internal affairs, constitute a double team that will be hard to defeat at this particular time. Their names do not only stand for ability and courage, but also for clean records and personal honor. It is a ticket for which true Christian citizens can vote without compunction, and which if elected, will mean the complete overthrow of the 'boss rule' which has both dishonored and cursed this state for more than forty years."
 "In what we say here we are simply planting the Evangelical on the side of civic righteousness and pure government, utterly regardless of mere partyism. Should the new Keystone party at any time in the future sell itself out to a corrupt and debasing whisky ring, we would brand it as a curse to the state as quickly as we now do its predecessors. It is simply political shame and moral rottenness that we are fighting. To put up a couple of acknowledged adherents to the whisky interests, like John K. Tener and Webster Grim, for the suffrages of Christian men of any church is nothing less than flinging a most audacious insult into their very faces, and thereby denying to them the privilege of a conscientious ballot. There was only one thing left for them to do, and that was to do just what has now been done. The organized liquor power of Pennsylvania, through its boss-ruled conventions, boldly threw down the gauge of battle to the sober, antiquior citizenship of the state, who have now simply taken up that 'gauge of battle' and expect to fight it through to the end, cost what it may."

Baptists are Aroused.
 At the eightieth annual convention of the Centre Baptist Association, held with the First Baptist Church, Phillipsburg, Pa., after an address on "Civic Righteousness," about two weeks ago in which the dishonorable work of the two leading parties' state convention was referred to, and in particular the unworthiness of John K. Tener for governor, because of his alliance with the liquor interests was strongly adopted the following:
 "Resolved: That it is the sense of this body that the issues of the present political campaign in this commonwealth are such as to demand most careful and prayerful consideration by Christian voters in the exercise of the rights of citizenship at the ballot box."
A Strong Resolution.
 At the Huntingdon Presbytery held last week at Reedsville the following strong resolution was passed denouncing the political parties in this campaign whose candidates represent the liquor interests:
 "Resolved, That the Huntingdon presbytery put itself on record as opposed to supporting any party ticket that has been dictated by liquor to present the cause of temperance prior interests and we urge our ministers to the election and emphasize the importance of supporting candidates for office who will labor for the overthrow of the liquor traffic."

Commended Keystone Party.
 The east Pennsylvania conference of the United Brethren Church before adjourning on Saturday at Sunbury, passed a temperance resolution, calling on the clergymen and laity to fight the liquor traffic tooth and nail, and to throw their undivided strength to the Keystone party of Pennsylvania. This fall, to elect its gubernatorial ticket. Praise was extended to the organizers and standard bearers of the cause of receiving the votes of the conference.

LABOR AGAINST TENER.
 Organized labor in Charleroi has turned down John K. Tener, Penrose candidate for governor. At a meeting of the Monongahela Central Trades Council an appeal for the organization's indorsement of his candidacy was not only rejected, but Tener was denounced as a foe of union workmen.
 These reasons are given as the cause of the union's action: Tener's Charleroi-Monesson bridge was painted by non-union painters; Tener's own home in Charleroi was painted by non-union workmen, the electric sign adorning Tener's campaign headquarters was erected by non-unionists; Tener's street car employees have been denied the right to join the ranks of the organized body and Tener's campaign buttons were made in a non-union shop.
 Recently when J. J. Thorp, organizer for the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America went to Charleroi to organize a branch local among Tener's employees on his Monesson electric line he was flatly turned down by Tener's orders.

SANGUINE OF VICTORY.
 Sanguine of victory, R. A. Hutchinson, of Pittsburg, Keystone party chairman, has issued a statement. In part it says:
 "It is now neither fusion nor confusion; it is a question of the Keystone party against the combined machines of the Democrats and Republicans, and where there are bimachines, efforts for political plunder there should be bipartisan combination for political freedom. The only way for the freethinking loyal citizens of Pennsylvania to unite their forces against the corrupt and criminal combination is to support the entire Keystone ticket."

THE TIME TO STRIKE.

Every now and then you see some Standpatter Republican shaking hands with himself over his visionary dreams that the only vote Berry will get is from the Democratic party. It is said that the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof, and to prove the fallacy of the above we have followed the following letter from the Harrisburg Patriot, which is the true sentiment of thousands of Republicans all over Pennsylvania. It is from Simon Eberly, a prominent citizen of Mechanicsburg. He says:
 "In defining my position on the contest for the office of Governor of Pennsylvania, I have some conclusions on the subject which I am willing to give for publication."
 "While I am a Republican and believe in the great principles of the party, nevertheless, I always reserve the right to refuse to follow my party whenever it drifts from the party standard."
 "The great Republican party of Abraham Lincoln is not the Republican party of 1910, and the men who are directing the old ship of state are not statesmen but politicians. As political matters stand today, it is almost impossible for the poor man to be elected to an office. Merit is not the standard of fitness, but money is the ruling power."
 "The political bosses want money and they usually get it in one way or another from the pockets of the tax payers. That is all wrong. It is the fault of the voters that these rascals are permitted to reach into our pockets and rob us. I believe I can see the end of this business, but it will take hard fighting."
 "The people in my community are against the control of the bosses, and they will vote them out of power if possible."

"I am strongly in favor of Berry and Gibbons. They are brave and fearless men around which all good men should rally. The time is here to strike a hard blow."
 "SIMON EBERLY."

"THE SHADOW OF 1912."

President Taft and Mr. Roosevelt met recently at New Haven, Conn., and the press said that "the shadow of 1912" cast a shadow over their meeting." "The shadow of 1912" appears to be hanging around in the vicinity of most republican meetings these days, although the shadow of 1912 is doing business a little more regularly just now in the precincts where republican candidates for the lower house of congress most do congregate.

The North American declared that it had evidence that John K. Tener would not make an honest Governor. Today is the time for that paper to make good. A discriminating public is eagerly waiting for facts, and will adjudge him accordingly. Remember he is not considered guilty of such a charge, until clearly proven so. The North American says "Tener is a sham and disgrace." If they prove that statement in the paper today, can an honest man support Tener for Governor?

Berry At Lewistown.
 Invading Lewistown for the first time during the present campaign, former State Treasurer William H. Berry, of Chester, independent nominee for Governor, accompanied by Judge Charles N. Brumm, of Schuylkill county, arrived there Friday afternoon and addressed an audience in the court house that night that packed the place.
 Delegations swarmed into town during the day from Milroy, Belleville, Burnham and a half a dozen other towns in the vicinity. The day was one continuous round of receptions for Berry and Brumm.
 The court house meeting was scheduled for 7:30 o'clock, but the auditorium was filled long before the speeches were commenced. Berry assailed the domination of the two parties by the liquor interests, and paid his respects to the gang Democrats in their turn—"Jim" Hall, McHenry, Donnelly, Ryan and Brennan.
