Bellefonte Women.

We have women who are comely, A few women who are homely, But we're careful how the latter thing we say.

We have women who are healthy, And women who are wealthy, We have women who will always have their way.

We have women who are truthful, And women who are youthful, Was there ever any woman, that was old?

We have women who are sainted, And a few 'tis said are painted, But a million who are worth their weight in gold.

We have women who are tender, Some women who are slender, And occasionally one large and fat and red.

We have women who have married, We have women who have tarried, We have women who can't talk— But they're all dead.

The glazier always takes panes with his work.

The world generally makes it hotter for a man with a shady reputation than for one with a sunny disposition.

Ethel's Excuse.

"How does it happen that you are five minutes late at school this morning?" the teacher asked severely. "Please, ma'am," said Ethel, "I must have overwashed myself."

A Remarkable Feat.

Little Carrie, being downstairs one evening rather later than usual, got upon a chair to look at the canaries. Finding them asleep, she jumped down crying, "Oh, mamma, the birds have swallowed their heads."

Easily Answered.

"Now, children," asked the teacher, holding up the picture of a zebra "what animal does this picture represent?" "It looks to me like a horse in a bathing suit," said a little boy at the foot of the class.

Compensations.

"I certainly feel sorry for you," said Jones to the blind beggar. "Oh, I don't know," said the blind man; "some of my faculties are greater than yours. Do you know 'You don't say! How is that?'" "That I am able to feel colors?" said Jones. "Oh I feel blue once in a while."

"Mary ate some oysters, Mary ate some ham, And Mary drank some beer, And Mary wondered What made her feel so queer. U-p came the oysters, U-p came the ham, And u-p came the beer, And Mary knew What made her feel so queer."

Too Big a Handicap.

"You must never swallow a mouthful of food unless you have chewed it at least 20 times." "But that would never do at our house," replied Johnny. "And why not, my son?" "Because the other kids would clear the table off before I got done with one mouthful."

Under Her Bed.

Mrs. Hicks was telling some ladies about the burglar scare in her house the night before. "I heard a noise and got up, and there from under the bed I saw a man's legs sticking out." "Mercy," exclaimed a woman, "the burglar's legs?" "No my dear, my husband's legs. He had heard the noise, too."

George held her hand and she held his; And then they hugged and went to kiss; They did not know that her host had hid; (Madder than hops, and simply siz'n) But George got his'n and went out wiz'n.

Looking Ahead.

An irritable old farmer and his ungainly, slouching son were busy grubbing sprouts one hot sultry day when the old man suddenly stumbled over a stump. "Gosh darn that everlastin' stump!" he exclaimed. "I wish it was in hell." The son slowly straightened up from his work and gazed reproachfully at his father. "Why, you oughtn't to say that, pap," he drawled. "You might stumble over that stump agin some day."

No Hurry.

The Rev. McMouthier was walking, one misty night, through a street in the village when he fell into a deep hole. There was no ladder by which he could make his escape, and he began to shout for help. A laborer passing heard his cries, and, looking down, asked his name. The minister told him, whereupon the laborer remarked: "Weel, weel, ye needn't klick up sic a noise. You'll no be needs afore Sawbath, an' this is only Wednesday night."

They talk about a woman's sphere, As though it had a limit; There's not a place in earth or heaven, There's not a blessing or a woe, There's not a life or birth, That has a feather's weight of worth. Without a woman in it, It's not the man that has the most, That gives the most away; Nor yet the man that knows the most, That has the most to say.

Generosity.

An Irishman while walking along the street, found a piece of tin glittering in the sun, and picking it up walked into the next saloon he came to, and ordered a glass of lager. The bartender gave it to him and after drinking, he laid down the tin and walked out. The bartender looked at it and called to the Irishman, saying, "Here, this is tin." The Irishman turned in surprise and said, "Shure, I thought it was foive, but if its tin have one yourself."

As Lewistown is a dry town, they must have taken their supply along. Later on they landed at Burnham, where they took shelter in some shanty for the night. Well, did you see them crawl up the ladder to go to bed? It was all O. K. As it was a late hour, they thought it was not worth while to undress and jumped into bed with their clothes on, for which the occupants of the house did not thank them but at such times there is no trouble to pay bills.

Shall Women Vote?

If they did, millions would vote Dr. King's New Life Pills the true remedy for women. While Arthur Hill was plowing on the little farm near Silver Lake in Monroe county, the horses he was driving suddenly disappeared, the earth apparently opening and swallowing them. Gambling at County Fairs.

"If there has been gambling at county fairs I shall do all I can to prevent the payment of State appropriations to the Fair Associations that permitted this sort of thing," said Deputy Secretary of Agriculture A. L. Martin recently.

"I attended fifteen or eighteen of the fairs held this fall," continued Mr. Martin, "and I did not see any gambling. There may have been some at certain places, however, and if there was I should like to have the proof."

Secretary Martin says he finds considerable sentiment in favor of a State fair, located at or near Harrisburg.

A Housekeeper at 104.

Living far up in the Allegheny Mountains is a remarkable woman who is more than 104 years old. She has proofs of her age, and the inhabitants for miles around gather on Aug. 2nd each year to make merry on her birthday and to express hope that she may live many more years. She is Mother Shoemaker and her home is near DuBois, Pa. She was born in 1806. Bent with her years, but happy and contented, she sits in a tiny house built in the mountains. She does not have a housekeeper or a servant. She says she is strong enough to do her own work and attend to her own wants. It would not bother her if she did not have an income for her support. She says she could earn her own living without any trouble. She has lived the simple life. She has worked in the fields, and she has been a mother.

IT WAS ECZEMA IT WAS RINGWORM

It Spread All Over His Head—If Touched It Would Bleed and Leave Raw Spot—Could not Go to School—Spent $200, Still He was Bald.

Got Cuticura. In Six Weeks He was Well and Had Growth of Hair.

"One day, when my boy was five years old, I noticed a sore on the top of his head. I was alarmed, so I called in Dr. — and he said it was eczema. After treating it for a week, it spread all over his head, so the doctor advised us to see a specialist in New York. He said it was a bad case of ringworm and recommended student of his. We doctored with him for long while and spent about $200 and the boy's head was still bald. He had a disgusting looking little head. It would scald over night and if you touched it it would bleed and leave a raw spot. All this time he had not been able to go to school, although he was eight years old."

"Then an old druggist named — said, 'Why don't you take him to the — Hospital, as they have cured a young lady with the Cuticura Remedies.' But they said the young lady's case had been different. So we decided to try the Cuticura Remedies ourselves. We got Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Relief with the first application and in six weeks' time he was well and had growth of hair. Now he is fourteen and has a nice growth of hair than my other children. The doctors all said he would be bald or his hair would come out in white spots, and several doctors said to take the child to the incurable hospital. We had at least seven doctors and we received no benefit. Mrs. Harry Fox, Liberty Corner, N. J., Feb. 25, 1910."
