—Possibly there was one oversight in the remodeling of the court house, in the lack of provision for unloading fuel for the boilers in the rear basement. To provide for this an unsightly steel schute about thirty feet long has been placed at the rear of the building from the top railing to the building from the top railing to the building from the tage. While thus may be a convenience yet it mars the appearance of the building on that side. Then large ash shed placed along the side of the wall is another eyesore. If there is anyway of overcoming those two additions, it should be done as it is not in harmony with the recent improvements.

Dairy and Food Commissioner James Foust at Harrisburg announced that he had received so many complaints about the decomposed and wormy condition of chestnuts being thoroughfarc. The annoying delays offered for sale in the various cities on the building of this state road of the state that he has ordered his have been unusually vexatious and it ngents to prosecute all dealers sellagents to prosecute all dealers selling chestnuts containing a large pering chestnuts containing a large per-centage of wormy or decayed kernels. Commissioner Foust says that chestnuts are being largely sold as foed nowadays and they are clearly under the provisions of the pure food act of 1909 and that he intends to see that the people buying them are pro-tected.

The act of 1909 provides that any vegetable or other food substance which may be in a state unfit for use may not be sold. The chances are that there will be an inspection of stands in this part of the state. Some of the reports show that over half of some of the chestnuts sold have half contained worms.

COMING DOWN. Market reports showed, yesterday that the wholesale prices of meat had been reduced to such an extent that the retailer will find the various cuts from three to five cents cheaper to-day.—Philadelphia Press Nov. 15, 1910.

The Republican majority in Con-gress which fastened the Payne-Aldrich tariff on the people of the United States, thus helping to increase the cost of all the necessaries of life is a good deal more than "from three to five cents cheaper today" than it was before the election that make the cost of the cents cheaper today."

before the election last week.

The twin machines in Pennsylvania and the men that bossed them, during the last campaign are likewise. much cheaper. So are Boss Cox and: William G. Harding, of Ohio, the Old: Guard and the Young Guard in New York, the Corporation Ring in New Jersey, and the Standpatters in Mass-achusetts and Connecticut. The high prices at which these com-modities held themselves have taken a fall no less gratifying than the an-nounced decline of "from three tofive cents" in the price of meat.

And there is no doubt a direct, traceable connection between the tumble of the champions of "special" interests" the trusts and monopolists and the decline in the price of meats.
