Two wagon loads of turkeys passed through our village on Sunday afternoon. D. F. Poorman and wife, also Mrs. Ida Poorman, attended the funeral of Charles Williams' wife, which took place in Williamsport on Sunday afternoon. A wild cat or some wild animal, has been seen frequently on the mountains around the village.

Quarternary Grange Meeting.

The Fourth Quarterly Meeting of the County Grange will be held in Grange Arcadia, Centre Hall, on Friday, December 2nd. There will be two sessions: 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. All Fourth and Fifth Degree members are cordially invited. The Fifth Degree will be conferred at the afternoon session, so as to prepare members to receive the Sixth Degree at the annual meeting of the State Grange at Butler, the week of December 13th. We earnestly urge the members of the Order to attend this meeting of the County Grange, as plans should be devised to conduct a general Grange Campaign during the winter throughout the county to help build up the local Granges. It is therefore important that every Grange should be represented to make its wishes known and help to arrange a satisfactory plan. That the members of the Order may not be at unnecessary expense to attend this meeting, it has been arranged that Progress Grange provide tables, dishes and coffee, and the members of the Order bringing a lunch with them, and in this way have a nice dinner and a social hour. Ample stabling for teams on the Grange camp ground. Hoping that all Patrons will arrange to be with us. Fraternally, WILLARD DALE, Master. D. M. CAMPBELL, Secretary.

Thanksgiving Observances.

The manner of observing Thanksgiving is various, and we opine with too many its observance is wide from the path of its intent. Churches have services that should be held in reverence—worship in song, scriptural discourse, devotion. But those who observe Thanksgiving, in too large numbers, set it apart as a day for worldly enjoyment, instead of a day for offering thanks to the Heavenly Father for the blessings bestowed upon his children. It is looked forward to, to often as a day for baseball, football, dancing, visiting drinking places, carousing and other short-comings. Thanks for the blessings enjoyed by many all the year 'round, are not on the program with such, and their observance of the day is a mockery. With the pilgrims of the earlier day, Thanksgiving was clothed in righteousness and not as a day for sinful worldly pleasures. Editor Bair's Father Dead. David Hoover Bair, father of W. T. Bair, editor of the Philipsburg Journal, died at the home of his son, at Philipsburg, Monday morning, aged about 72 years. Deceased was a native of Lancaster county and was married to Miss Catherine Long, daughter of Judge John Long, of Huntingdon county, who survives with four sons. Funeral was held Wednesday afternoon. The Evangelical church, of Hebersburg, will render a Christmas service entitled "The Reign of Peace" on Christmas evening, December 25. J. V. Brunhart, of Smulton writes us: "Having bought land 52 miles of Galveston, Texas, I am selling out and expect to leave for Stowell, Tex., on Dec. 20th, with four other families from this place namely, Allen Gilbert, Allen Brunhart, Wm. Corman and my brother, Wallace Brunhart, who left on Monday in advance of us to build a house for his family and mine. Having been to Texas in October this year I found the Gulf Coast country so promising that I decided to locate there."

ONE FLIGHT TOO MANY.

Aviator Johnstone Killed by 600 Foot Fall in Denver. With one wing tip of his machine crumpled like a piece of paper, Ralph Johnstone, the brilliant young aviator, holder of the world's altitude record, dropped like a plummet from the height of 600 feet into the inclosure at Overland park aviation field, at Denver, Col., Thursday. When the spectators crowded about the inclosure, reached him, his body lay beneath the engine of the biplane, with the white planes that had failed him in his time of need, wrapped about it like a shroud. Nearly every bone in his body was broken. He had gambled with death once too often, but he played the game to the end, fighting coolly and grimly to the last second to regain control of his broken machine. Fresh from his triumph at Belmont park, where he had broken the world's record for altitude with a flight of 9,714 feet, Johnstone attempted an extra thrill glide, which has made the Wright aviators famous. The spectators got the thrill, but it cost Johnstone his life. The Fatal Flight. The fatal flight was the second Johnstone had made that afternoon. In the first flight, when he was in the air with Hoxsey and Brookins, he had gone through his usual programme of dips and glides with the machine apparently under perfect control. Then Johnstone rose again and after a few circuits of the course to gain height, headed toward the foothills. Still ascending, he swept back in a big circle, and as he reached the north end of the big enclosure he started his spiral glide. He was then at an altitude of about 800 feet. With his planes tilted at an angle of almost 90 degrees, he swooped down in a narrow circle, the aeroplane seeming to fold up almost in its own length. As he started the second circle the middle spurs, which braces the left side of the lower planes, gave way, and the wing tips of both upper and lower planes folded up as though they had been hinged. For a second Johnstone attempted to right the plane by wrapping the other wing tip. Then the horrified spectators saw the plane swerve like a wounded bird, and plunge straight toward the earth. Fight For Souvenirs. Scarcely had Johnstone hit the ground before morbid men and women swarmed over the wreckage fighting with each other for souvenirs. One of the broken wooden stays had gone almost through Johnstone's body. Before doctors or police could reach the scene, one man had torn this splinter from the body and ran away, carrying his trophy, the aviator's blood still dripping from its end. The crowd tore away the canvas from the body, and even fought for the gloves that had protected Johnstone's hands from the cold. The machine fell on the opposite side of the field from the grandstand and there were but a few hundred near the spot, but physicians and police were rushed across as soon as possible. Physicians declared death must have been instantaneous. Johnstone's back, neck and both legs were broken, the bones of his thigh being forced through the flesh and the leather garments he wore.

Rat Gnawed His Nose.

Aroused from a sound sleep while in bed at his home in the East end, Sunbury, Monday night by a peculiar sensation about his face, Hiram L. Purdy made the startling discovery that a large rat was gnawing at his nose. The rodent did not show fight and was easily made to beat a hasty retreat to its secret hiding place, when its victim raised to a sitting position in bed. The rat had already sunk its teeth into the side of the nose, causing a wound which bled considerably. After washing off the blood and applying an antiseptic solution, Mr. Purdy turned out the light and returned to bed, but had no sooner fallen into a doze when he was again roused by the rat running across the bolster toward his face. Jumping out of bed he chased the rat about the room but was not successful in killing it. When he went to bed the third time he wisely left the light burning and was not bothered by any more visits.

Additions to Faculty.

A number of faculty appointments have been made by the board of trustees of the Pennsylvania State College. B. W. Dedrick, of Chicago, will be the head of the new department of milling engineering. Mr. Dedrick is the president of the National Association of Millers and will inaugurate a course at this college which is practically the only one of its kind in the world. Edwin A. Cottrell will take up the duties of assistant registrar on the first of the year, while the faculty has been further increased by the addition of Charles B. McCarthy, of Cornell, instructor in Mathematics, and John M. McKee, of the class of 1910, assistant in agronomy. The summer session for school teachers and the high school principals' conference, to be held next spring, were also authorized.

Purchase of Wild Game.

The question as to whether certain kinds of wild game may be bought or sold during the legal season is one which frequently brings forth an argument, and the rights of persons as set forth in a digest of the game, bird and forestry laws are as follows: No deer, grouse, commonly termed pheasant, quail, wild turkey or woodcock may be bought or sold within the commonwealth. All other game, including bear, rabbits, squirrels, raccoon, opossum, etc., may be either bought or sold during the legal season.

Dreams of Death; is Killed.

Charles P. McGrath, 19 years old, of Philadelphia, was killed when a chimney fell on him on the roof of his home, where he had gone to fly a kite. The boy awoke from a nap telling his mother that he had had a dream in which he thought that he was lying in a coffin with flowers around him. He was greatly frightened and his mother would not let him go to school shortly after 1 o'clock. He went to the roof to fly a kite and ran into the chimney, which fell over and covered him.

Wants His Money.

A Missouri newspaper proprietor quickened the memories of his subscribers in the following manner: "All persons knowing themselves indebted to this office are requested to call and settle. All those indebted to this office and not knowing it are requested to call and find out. Those knowing themselves indebted and not wishing to call are requested to stay one place long enough for us to catch them!"

SAVES BY THOUSANDS.

Antitoxin Cheats Death of 26,678 Children. Better treatment and control of diphtheria have prevented 26,678 deaths in Chicago in 14 years. Antitoxin is given the credit, according to a bulletin issued by the Chicago Board of Health this week. Before antitoxin came into use the diphtheria death rate averaged 125 for each 100,000 inhabitants. This has dropped to 36. Antitoxin will cure practically all cases of diphtheria if it is given in time, in proper doses. It also will prevent the development of the disease in those who have been exposed. Deaths from diphtheria are due chiefly to ignorance, carelessness or neglect, the parents of the victims usually being the guilty parties. Failure to pay heed to the oft-repeated warning regarding the danger of neglecting "simple sore throats," failure to call the doctor in the earliest stages of the disease and neglect to secure immediate treatment of cases has cost many lives. Antitoxin can be secured by anyone at any of the free antitoxin stations which have been established by the State Board of Health throughout this State.

EASILY DECIDED. This Question Should Be Answered Easily by Bellefonte People. Who is wiser—to have confidence in the opinions of your fellow-citizens, of people you know, or depend on statements made by utter strangers residing in far-away places? Read the following: Johnson, 365 E. Bishop St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, for they are the best remedy I ever used for backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. At one time my back was so lame and painful that I procured a box at Green's Pharmacy Co., and they did me more good than any other medicine I had previously tried. The kidney secretions became natural and the pain and lameness in my back was removed. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone afflicted with kidney complaint." (Statement given Oct. 21, 1907.) Permanent Relief. On Nov. 23, 1909 Mrs. Johnson was interviewed and she said: "I still have unlimited confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills. They permanently cured me of kidney trouble and I have had no need of a kidney medicine during the past two years. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and benefit has always been received. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other."

THE SQUEAL OF THE PORKER.

Butchering has begun among the farmers and denizens of the smaller towns. The slaughter of hogs, sometimes along with the slaughter of a beef, makes up the work of a butcherer's frolic, the pleasures of which are not known to city folks—some of whom are even known where and how sausages and liverwurst are made. The women folk make elaborate preparation for the important day, in baking the best turkey, chicken, pies, preserves, and other dishes and dainties galore—a feast that a first class hotel can hardly exceed in grandeur and splendor. The killing begins early in the morning, and a marksman is on the spot to down the porker and steer. At times there is a misadventure and the porker in disgust prances around hard to grab, and get him in a corner for a second shot. This is one of the exciting episodes of the butchering. By supper time the result is sausage, pudding and spare ribs, come upon the table, and the porker gives us to the royal flavor and excellency of the feast, for which the faithful housewife and her helps from the neighborhood, hear eulogies of their skill in preparing a feast up to the utmost perfection. These butchering frolics continue up to the holidays and with some until after New Year. And one esteems it an honor to have an invitation to help and eat.

Paid $1,000 For a Cup of Tea.

One thousand dollars was paid for a cup of tea in Chicago a few nights ago. The mark was set at the charity bazaar at Orchestra hall, the proceeds of which—$10,000 at a rough estimate—will be for the benefit of the home for destitute crippled children. Thomas Griffin, wealthy manufacturer of Chicago, stood up to the tea room, conducted by Mrs. Gracie Stewart and two dozen pretty debutantes, that night and ordered a cup of tea. Griffin took a snuff. "Great, isn't it?" commented the young woman who served it. "Yes, indeed," was the reply, and Mrs. Stewart, supervisor of the tea room, came along. Mr. Griffin drained the last drop, then put the cup down and filled out a check. "I want to pay for my tea," he said. Mrs. Stewart took the check and scrutinized it. It was for $1,000. "Never mind the change," said Mr. Griffin.

Roof on Condensary.

Work on the plant of the Continental Condensed Milk Co. at Mill Hill is progressing rapidly. The huge structure is almost completed and presents a imposing appearance. In few days the roof will be completed and it will be but a short time before the machinery is installed. Several wide-awake farmers throughout the county are increasing their herds of cattle and are improving the stock by introducing full blood Holsteins. By next spring, all will be in full running order and then the farmers will realize what a boon the condensary is to them.

To Open New Station.

It is expected to have the new joint railroad station at Mill Hill ready for service the latter part of this week. The carpenter work has all been completed and the painters are now engaged at work on the interior finish. The second coat of varnish will be applied to the interior work early in the coming week, and the floor is also to have a second application of oil. When all is ready the New York Central and the Central R. R. of Pennsylvania railroads will have a most convenient and comfortable station for the use of the public and the local employes.

CARELESS USE OF FIREARMS.

Two Very Narrow Escapes Reported. Two accidents occurred at Morrisdale Thursday evening that might both have easily resulted fatally, proving the danger of the careless handling of fire arms. In one case W. L. Holton was walking up the road leading from the company store along the trolley track, when just below King's hotel a bullet flew close to his face. This was the result of target practice near a thoroughfare frequently traveled by the citizens. The other case was that of Miss Maye Carver, who was sitting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Hooser shortly after dark, when a bullet from a twenty-two caliber rifle passed through the wall within a few inches of her neck and fell upon a bed on the other side of the room, the plaster striking her neck as it was broken from the wall by the force of the bullet. Investigation showed that several small boys had been using the dangerous weapon in target shooting, but why the shot was fired at that time and direction is not known. Evidently it was the result of youthful carelessness, and something should be done to put a stop to it.

IMBECILES STOP INCREASING. "We are allowing imbeciles to marry, we are allowing imbeciles to beget and bear children out of wedlock, with the result that our almshouses, our jails, our institutions for feeble minded are filled with people who never ought to have been born, who might have been kept from being born if wisely understood the problem and acted in accordance therewith." With these words Dr. Henry H. Goddard, of the New Jersey Training School for Feeble Minded Children, speaking last week at the conference of Charities and Corrections at Altoona, brought home to the assembled delegates the seriousness of the problem of the feeble minded. Vance C. McCormick, of Harrisburg, chairman of the committee on this subject, presided at the session and Dr. Charles K. Mills, of Philadelphia, professor of neurology, University of Pennsylvania, spoke on the subject of Epilepsy and the modern Methods of Treating and Caring for the Epileptics. Besides showing that the old estimate of two feeble minded in one thousand of the population is probably one-half too small an estimate, Dr. Goddard stated that the studies in the department of research of the Vineland institution had demonstrated that feeble mindedness is strangely hereditary. For its self protection every city and every county, in Dr. Goddard's opinion, should have an institution in which males and especially females, should be permanently confined.

In Choosing a Wife.

The young man should be taught that it is not only a wife he is seeking, for the marriage ceremony can make a wife, in legal terms of any woman; but it is a life companion and helpmate, and the more common sense and judgment the girl possesses, the better. A professional man wants and needs consistency, quiet, enduring love, and untiring sympathy. Many a professional man owes his success less to his own powers than to the untiring love, sympathy and faith of the woman he chooses for his life mate. The qualities essential for this are often found under the crown of dark hair as there is more stability, and love of home, as well as power and ambition in the dark-haired type. The blonde requires the perpetual incense of admiration, but the dark-haired has the finest character.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength. Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and SO GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY. You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

The Famous Rayo

Gives the Best Light at Any Price. When you pay more than the Rayo price for a lamp, you are paying for extra decorations that cannot add to the quality of the light. You can't pay for a better light, because there is none. An oil lamp has the least effect on the human eye, and the Rayo Lamp is the best oil lamp made, though low in price. You can pay $5, $10, or $20 for some other lamp, and although you get a more costly lamp, you can't get a better light than the white, mellow, diffused, unfllickering light of the low-priced Rayo. Has a strong, durable shade-holder. This season's burner adds to the strength and appearance. Made of solid brass, nicked, and easily polished. Once a Rayo User, Always One. Dealers Everywhere.
