Ninety Three.
"Uncle Dave" McCloskey, of Curtin township, who will marry at ten o'clock at ninety-three if he lives until the twenty-ninth of this month, was on our streets last Friday, walking about and attending to business as comfortably and easily as though he were but seventy-three, and he was overtaken by Frank Kobb, in a buggy, who picked him up and brought him to town. After completing his business errands he walked over the creek to the home of his nephew, Robert P. Confer, something more than a mile away, without any apparent weariness.

Cheap Transportation.
N. H. Yearick has a considerable lumber job on hand, over in Nitanny, and the getting of his heavy products to our railroad station is an important problem, the more particularly as horsepower is unusually costly and hard to find. He has solved it by hiring J. S. Condo and his twenty-horsepower traction engine, to which he attaches three big lumber wagons, heavily loaded, and brings over in less time and at less cost than the three best teams he could find, could do it. It "looked good" to see the big thing with its train, carrying six hundred mine ties, steaming along, at a full four-mile gait, last Saturday.

A Doctor Sick.
On Thursday evening last, his sisters, Mrs. Dr. Kurtz and Mrs. William Weber, were startled by a telephone message telling of a severe attack of appendicitis which had fallen upon their brother, Dr. George Henyall, of Mahanoy City. He was taken to the Fountain Springs Miners' hospital where an operation was performed on Friday afternoon by his old friend and preceptor, Dr. J. C. Biddle, surgeon-in-chief and superintendent. At latest reports, he is making good progress toward recovery.

Wedding Cards.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Yearick have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Zelma Elizabeth, to Irvin Dilling Jordan, on Thursday, May eighteenth, at twelve o'clock, noon, at their home.

Father C. Logan McKinley, of Juniata, spent last Sunday in town.

Mrs. George B. Glossner, of Wilkesburg, was a guest of Mrs. Mary Glossner, last week.

J. C. Smith, of the Bellefonte Lumber Co., looked after his business interests here on Monday.

Mrs. Jackson Kline attended the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Powers, at Mill Hill, last Wednesday.

Charles Candy and wife, of Tyrone, took their Sunday dinner with Mrs. Candy's sister, Mrs. Shuman Holter.

Lawyer William D. Zerby, of the county bar, looked after the interests of some of his clients here last Thursday.

Mrs. Lester Bowes, of Northumberland, formerly Miss J. Condo, spent last Sunday here with her father J. F. Condo and family.

At the rate the Howard Brick Co. is now shipping brick their yard will soon be cleaned out, and they will be compelled to set the wheels moving.

Brooks Gunsallus, of Flemington, stopped between trains, when on his way to Pittsburg, where he is employed, to call upon a few special friends.

John, William and Baleser Weber, and Dr. Kurtz were our local representatives at the gathering of the "Shriners" at Altoona, last Thursday.

The two buggies of rural carrier W. S. Confer were well filled last Sunday when he took his family with him to visit his brother, Chas. Confer at Beech Creek.

William Wolf, of Fiedler, a nephew of our C. Sumner Wolf, is here acting as chauffeur for Jackson Kline, and aiding him in demonstrating the auto for which he is agent.

Mrs. Geo. L. Williams, past grand of the local lodge of Rebekahs, Magdelin No. 375, will represent her lodge at the general assembly of the order at Wilkes-Barre next week.

Miss Zelma E. Yearick's friends of the sewing circle gave her a variety shower last Saturday evening, leaving with her a number of handsome and useful articles, sent her approaching nuptials.

Mrs. Katharine McKinney who spent the winter with her son, Rev. C. L. McKinney, in Juniata, returned to her home, last Sabbath evening, and will spend the summer here, much to the pleasure of her neighbors.

Mrs. Jacob Heck, of Avis, a sister of Mrs. Peter Robb, Sr., was buried on Sabbath last, and, though Mrs. Robb was unable, by reason of years, to attend the funeral, she was represented by her husband and son Jacob, with his wife.

Isaac Cornwell and family, of Northumberland, took advantage of the fine weather of last Saturday and Sunday, and drove up in their big touring car for an over-night visit with Mrs. Cornwell's parents, "Squire and Mrs. Samuel F. Kline.

Two of our bright young Howard boys, members of the alumni of our Howard High school, David and Philip Holter, who have been in attendance at the Pittsburgh Iron City College, have been placed in service by a Pittsburgh insurance company.

Last Thursday evening Rev. M. J. Snyder performed the first marriage ceremony in our town since he arrived at his new appointment. The contracting parties were Miss Mabel Confer, of the borough, and Mr. F. W. Bechdel, of Liberty township, and their friends are wishing them a long and happy life together.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm, of Buffalo, are guests of Mrs. Caroline L. Comerford.

J. Edwards Taylor is one of the young railroad men who have been temporarily dropped out of place by the retrenchment tactics which have been forced upon all transportation companies because of slow business.

He has proven his value and trustworthiness, however, and will again be in demand when the "dull times" have brightened.

Rev. R. S. Taylor's sermon before the Odd Fellows and their sister organization the Rebekahs, last Sabbath morning, was a broadening, liberalizing, vitalizing interpretation of the principles of the order as tersely expressed in their motto, "Friendship, Love and Truth." The speaker highly idealized the character of the organization, of course, and set a high standard of living for all its members, and for all men and women as well.

UNIONVILLE.

One of the best and most progressive and prosperous farmers in the county is our good friend, Owen Underwood. He is, practically, a book-farmer and if you think book-farming doesn't pay, come and see his stock, his poultry, his barn, his growing crops, everything portends thrift.

The report that the large saw mill of the Centre Lumber Company was destroyed by fire on Saturday proved to be false, we're glad to say, because you see, Tom Ingram would have to fall back on the buck saw.

Riley Pratt, Esq., is still in a very critical condition with but little hope of his recovery entertained by his family.

The residence of Mrs. Florence Miller, occupied by Mrs. Finch, caught fire on the roof of the porch one morning last week and would soon have gained headway had it not been for the timely discovery by Mrs. James M. Stere, who gave the alarm and the would-be conflagration was nipped in the bud.

Oscar Friday, a young married man, will move into the Finch place in the near future. He expects to make this his future home, as he has been appointed one of the operators in the tower at this place.

A son of Beetzub, representing himself to be the noted Dr. Emergent went through the ridges canvassing from house to house from Boggs township to Tyrone, furnishing prescriptions and medicines and taking from the unsuspecting victims whatever amount he could get. It is reported that he collected about $800 in this way from here to Tyrone. The following are a few of those victimized in Union township: George Shirik, $7.00; Eckley family, $3.00; Mrs. Emily Smith, $1.00; William Potter, $2.00; Mrs. Wilson, $1.85; and Harry Spotts $6.00. Just what his modus operandi was my informant did not know. It would be well if the heartless animal could be captured and given his "deserts."

Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn James, of Lake Helen, Florida, arrived in town on Saturday and will spend part of the season in this beautiful summer resort. Both are looking the very picture of health.

This Wednesday morning, just as I was about to send in these items, I was informed of the death, at 5 o'clock of Irvin Calhoun, one of our most respected citizens, after a brief illness of pleuro-pneumonia. Obituary next week.

Say, Charley, the other day I came across an old poetry machine on the attic, for which, a number of years ago, I traded with Dr. O. W. McEntire, of Howard for an old mouth organ.

You see, Doc, could never "make it" I put in a new massaging, gave it a good oiling, wound it up and started it and, Oh, Gee! just see what it ground out:

There is a calm for those who seek For office and renown, sir; But later on, each candidate Will canvass every town, sir.

And townships too he will invade With pockets full of two-fers, And every man he meets he'll ask "My dear, sir; who are you fer?"

Then doth he pass the fragrant weed "Have one, Mister Miller; I'll guarantee them highest brand, All pure Havana filler."

Then with a smile he grasps his hand A la Sheriff Walker, And proceeds to plead his case, For he's a fluent talker.

"Now, my dear sir, in all my life I've been your warmest friend, sir; Now can I upon your voice and vote And influence depend, sir?"

"Why, cert! old boy, do you suppose (With voice so sweet and mellow) That I could ever stoop to vote For that other fellow?"

"No, sir! old chap, you are my choice For you'll work and fight, sir; The 'lection you will surely win, Your prospects sure are bright, sir."

"Good! that's what every voter promised, 'Twas more than I expected; If all will do as they have pledged, I'll surely be elected."

"Say, old chap! (this in a sotto voce) I just now changed to think, I have a little Elixer; Do you ever take a drink?"

Oh—Well—Yess! sometimes I do; Then another hearty grip; He pulls out a two-ounce vial, And each one takes a nip.

The election day at last came round; Our candidate's a wreck; For when the votes were counted off, He got it in the neck.

And now with broken heart he says, As he from politics retires; "There are just sixteen honest men And at least two thousand liars."

The fellows that smoked those taters, at last reports, are still living.

CÖBURN.

Presiding elder, H. A. Benfer, of York, preached an old-fashioned heart-uplifting, soul-inspiring sermon to an attentive audience last Saturday evening in the United Evangelical church.

An Armenian missionary, who is collecting funds for the support of orphans in his native land, preached in the Lutheran church on Sunday evening.

Mother's Day will be appropriately observed next Sunday, by a special service at 10:30 in the United Evangelical church, conducted by Rev. W. J. Dice. Mothers, fathers, daughters and sons are invited to be present at these services. The three Sunday schools will convene at 9:30.

J. W. Kerstetter has the painters engaged in beautifying his house which greatly improves the appearance of his fine residence.

Mrs. Kate Nasse, of Rebersburg, is spending sometime with Mrs. Reuben Harter, assisting the latter in her spring work.

Has Twenty-Fifth Child. Mrs. Nathan Valon, of Pittston, has given birth to her twenty-fifth child.

GOT OUT OF HIS LINE.

And He Felt That the Punishment Fitted the Crime.

Years ago Irvin S. Cobb, the humorous writer, was a correspondent for various out of town papers while working in Paducah, Ky. Not a great deal of genuine news for out of town consumption is manufactured at Paducah. As Mr. Cobb needed the money there was a period during which it appeared that Paducah had become the news center of the middle west.

Not a day passed that some astounding story was not printed under a Paducah date. "We stood for them," said the former telegraph editor of a St. Louis paper, "because they were so good, even though we know they were fakes. But one day the boss called me in. 'Who is this man Cobb at Paducah?' he asked.

"When I had satisfied his thirst for knowledge he told me to fire Cobb. 'I know all the stories he has written are fakes,' said he, 'but I can't stand for that one he sent us yesterday. I like some sanity even in a fake story. It must sound as though it might possibly under certain conditions be partly true.'

"So," said the ex-telegraph editor, "I fired Cobb. I thought he would get angry over this, but he didn't. He seemed chastened in spirit, though. He wrote me a letter in which he made no protest or complaint about getting fired. 'It served me right for getting out of my line,' said he. 'That was the only story I ever sent you that was wholly true.'" — Cincinnati Times-Star.

Dignifying Dad.

The wife of a wealthy business man of Chicago was the daughter of a policeman. As they grew rich both she and her husband concealed the fact as much as possible for the sake of their social prestige. At a luncheon several society women of high position had been talking about their families. "What was your father's business, Mrs. D.?" was finally asked of the business man's wife. Mrs. D. was not disturbed. "My father was in the copper business," she said, with cool emphasis.

Won His Appointments.

When Hoke Smith was secretary of the interior he was especially generous to Georgians in the matter of department clerkships. It was generally conceded that around the patent, pension and land offices one could not throw a stick without hitting a Georgian. Senator Voorhees of Indiana had been trying to place one or two Hoosier constituents, but had failed. One day the senator came along whistling "Marching Through Georgia" and keeping step to the tune.

"What are you doing that for?" asked Hoke Smith. "Just can't help it," said Senator Voorhees. "It is just like marching through Georgia to come through your department."

He got the appointments that day.

Stung!

The police of a certain uptown precinct in New York have for a long time been trying to get the goods on the keeper of a certain little restaurant. Last Sunday the plain clothes man assigned to the job gave up in despair. "I can't get through the door," he said to a couple of friends. "He knows me. But you take this dollar and go in and buy drinks and then come out and tell me, and I'll make the pinch."

"Fine, Bob," said the friends. "Fine. Give us the money."

And they went into the restaurant. They were there for an unconscionably long time. By and by they came out, smoking good cigars and obviously pleased with themselves. The detective ran toward them.

"Did you get the drinks, boys?" "Sure, Bob," said they.

"What did you get—beer, wine or whiskey? Hurry, so's I can make the pinch."

"Well, you see, Bob," they explained apologetically, "we're both on the water wagon, and so we took ginger ale and cigars." — New York Cor. Cincinnati Times-Star.

The Bad Bankers.

An Irish laborer in the federal prison at Atlanta had to undergo a serious surgical operation when he was serving his term. His nurses were two prominent bank officials who for the sake of their sins were wearing away the days by working as attendants in the prison hospital.

"How are you today?" the doctor asked the Irishman when he was convalescing.

"Oh, pretty fair," he answered, "but these bank presidents make mighty bum nurses. They don't know their business. I should have been well, but they have put several bad checks on my recovery." — St. Louis Republic.

Mrs. Jos. Leathers is visiting friends and relatives at Curtin.

Ridgway Fire Department Resigns. At a regular meeting of the Ridgway Borough Council Monday evening, the fire department resigned in a body, same to take effect immediately. This action on the part of the firemen was taken after an executive session of council in which the latter had decided not to reconsider its recent action in authorizing only the street commissioner to flush the sewers, and taking the matter out of the hands of the individual firemen who had previously been doing the work.

No action was taken by council upon the alleged resignation of J. F. Loyer as chief, was accepted and Frank Klingel was appointed chief by a unanimous vote.

There was a young lady from Maine, Whose face was exceedingly plain, But her biscuits were light And her dumplings all right, So she married again and again.
