Novel Ways to Choose Partners. A jolly crowd of a dozen girls had a cooking club. Once a year they asked their men friends to a "spread." At the last they had this way of selecting partners for supper: Cards were passed to both men and women were passed to both men and women bearing the mysterious terms of "Strawberries," "Cream," "Lamb," "Mint Sauce," etc. The hostess ex-plained that "Pork" found "Apple Sauce" and Fillet of Beef" found "Mushrooms." that partners would be found and all go into the dining room. This made loads of fun and the re-sult was a grand mix-up. Then aftersult was a grand mix-up. Then after-ward slips of paper were passed to the men and they had to prepare what they considered to be a good menu. All these were to be kept by the girls for future reference. In arranging this repast each girl had contributed something of her own cooking.
