HOWARD.

"Dame Fortune's doors All stand ajar, There's not a thing That will debar Your entrance, that You may unlock Her wealth, if you'll Just push—not knock." S. T. Wayback.

In Our Churches Next Sabbath. Christian Scientists—Service at the home of Mrs. Thomas Mann at half past ten. Reformed—Pastor E. F. Faust will preach at Salona at ten o'clock, at Mt. Bethel at half past two, and in Howard at half past seven. Methodist Episcopal—Pastor R. S. Taylor will preach in Howard at half past ten, at Kennedy at half past two, and at Curtin at half past seven.

"The Musical Favorites" have come and gone, and left behind them none but pleasant memories. The troupe constitutes a truly "happy family": father, mother, daughter, son-in-law and a sweet little three-year-old granddaughter. Each and everyone of the adults is an accomplished musician of high rank and they have labored so long together, under the leadership of Mr. Love that their team work is remarkable.

Each one is master or mistress of half or a dozen or more different musical instruments. Mr. Love's rendering of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's "Tale of Two Glasses" was a splendid argument in the cause of temperance. Each member received hearty, generous, and well deserved applause. There seemed to be no limit to their accomplishments. Mrs. McNemry's piano work was remarkable.

A request that the ladies remove their hats, sent up from the rear of the audience, met with a prompt response, very much improving the comfort of many of the audience, and the appearance of the ladies who complied. The house was just comfortably filled with a typical Howard audience in appearance, behavior and appreciation.

The entertainment, as a whole, was voted by all who heard it, the best of its kind ever known in Howard. As vocalists the ladies have sweet and cultivated voices. The entertaining, aside from the music, is furnished by Mr. Love who is well described as "a caterer of happiness and dispenser of the blues," and who also takes a leading part in all the music.

Among the several instruments which they use are the saxophone and xylophone, neither of which had ever been heard before in Howard, and were delights to the audience. Who could have believed, that a band had as much music in it as those star performers brought out, to piano accompaniment.

Tossum up: The first number of the first course of Lyceum Entertainments ever attempted in Howard, and which has been a source of some anxiety, and no little work to the scores of citizens who made the attempt has proven a success in every way and at every point, and has received, not only the support, but the universal and enthusiastic commendation of the community.

Election Day Pre-empted. The ladies of the Christian Chapel congregation have selected election day for the furnishing chicken, waffles, and oyster dinners and suppers to all hungry voters, and to everyone else who will come and eat and—pay. Mrs. Katherine M. Long's store room will be converted into a restaurant for the occasion, and those who know the cooking abilities of the ladies of that congregation, know what they will miss if they do not get their election "eats" at that place.

Clement Dale, Esq., of your burg, looked us over last Wednesday. Rev. C. L. McKinny was at home with his mother, Wednesday and Thursday.

J. P. Condo is as proud of his new boy as he was when the first one came, twenty years ago. Charlie Lucas is going to have his own ice house after this—a new one ready for the coming crop.

Prof. and Mrs. J. Milford Fletcher had as their last Sunday guest, Mrs. Edgar Bechtel, of Blanchard.

Mrs. E. F. Faust was decidedly on the sick list last week, but is again able to look after her home affairs.

Miss Kathryn Sprankle, of Tyrone, was the dinner guest of her friend, Miss Rosetta Cook last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Rank, of Williamsstown, Dauphin county, are guests of Mrs. Rank's sister, Mrs. E. F. Faust.

George D. Johnson put an entire new roof of metal shingles on his house last week, H. C. Holter being the contractor.

Edward Confer, who has been working in the woods within seven miles of Austin, for some months, is at home on a visit.

M. F. C. Lucas, of Bellwood, with his family spent a portion of his vacation here with his father-in-law, Thomas Daughenbaugh.

Mrs. Christian Schenck entertained her friends, Mrs. Cyrus Valentine and Mrs. Edward Decker, of Altoona, at dinner last Thursday.

Dean DeLong, a Romola boy who is making a business success of himself at Greensburg, Pa., visited his father, Hugh DeLong last week.

Undertaker John Confer drove his car, with a big family load in it, down from his Snow Shoe home on Sunday for a visit with relatives here.

Mrs. McKinny entertained her cousin, Miss Cunningham, of Bellefonte, last week and they were joined on Saturday by their friend, Mrs. Powers.

The street committee of council purchased a car load of crushed limestone and placed it in several localities on our streets which seemed most to need it.

The Howard Iron and Tool Co. has just issued a new illustrated catalogue which is as neat and tidy as the tools which they make are good and reliable.

Miss Grace Schenk came from Milesburg on No. 50 Sunday morning, and in the afternoon Henry Wentzler came with his family in their car and took her back.

Mrs. H. J. Miller, of Midvale, N. J., and her sister, Miss Mary Kane, of Philadelphia, were last week guests of a younger sister, Miss Annie, at the home of her husband.

MalicARRIER W. E. Confer, route No. 1 has disposed of his bronco pony and purchased a fine four-year-old gray, of known good stock, which will strengthen his outfit largely.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hastings, of Tyrone, Mrs. J. W. Sauer and son, City, of Altoona, and Mrs. W. S. Reider, of Bellefonte, gathered at the home of their father and grandfather, last Sunday for dinner and to cheer the heart of the good old man.

Miss Edith Robb, sister of liveryman John M. Robb, was taken suddenly and mysteriously ill a few days ago, and removed to the hospital at Lock Haven, where she is making some improvement, though it is reported that the physicians are still somewhat mystified over her case.

Miss Ethel Leathers, daughter of Joseph Leathers, and Will. M. Gates, of the late Martin Leathers, all of the west end, went to Bellefonte Saturday of last week, and were married by the Reformed minister, Rev. Schmidt at the parsonage. These are two of our nice young people of the township and they have our hearty good wishes.

Mrs. Jno. B. Holter and little daughter, Carrie, left on No. 54 Sunday for Birmingham, where they will spend a few days with Miss Maud Hopkins, and their mother. After that Mrs. Hopkins will accompany them on a visit to another daughter, Mrs. S. V. Berren, at Coal Centre, and other friends in Pittsburg, Leechburg, McKeesport, and from there home for the winter.

UNIONVILLE.

The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church are planning to hold the grandest bazaar that was ever held in this town in the near future; particulars later on.

The sweet delicious perfume of burning leaves is floating on the air.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Buck eloped one day last week and went to Lock Haven, visited a few days with the former's sister, Mrs. Dr. Baird, and from thence they "scouted" over to Buffalo to visit their daughter, Mrs. Alice Bosworth and their son Wm. H. On Monday, Mr. Buck returned home leaving his "better half" who will prolong her visit indefinitely.

Rev. G. J. Kelly and wife, after a week or more happily and enjoyably spent at the Free Methodist Conference which was held in New Castle, returned home on Saturday and will be stationed here another year greatly to the satisfaction of his flock and his friends and neighbors generally.

Mrs. G. W. Bullock and her son Smith and daughter Julia were Sunday visitors at the home of Grandpa, J. C. Smith's, Smith, the grandson, later on, will come down from Julian to hunt rabbits. He says he can catch them alive by sprinkling a little salt on their little tails.

Joe Stover, of Tyrone, visited his aged and infirm mother on Sunday. George W. Williams, of Port Matilda, came down on Sunday morning and spent the day between trains with his son E. J. Williams.

Mr. Frank Confer and wife, of Warriors Mark, came down on Saturday and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams "up the pike." On Sunday they celebrated the 32nd birthday anniversary of Mrs. Eliza Adams who makes her home with her son Robert. The day was spent with much good cheer and all joined in wishing their dear old mother many happy returns of her birthday.

George Moran, who has been in Bud Greist's store for a number of years resigned his position there and accepted a clerkship in Gabel's department store in Altoona and was installed on Monday. May success attend you, George.

Willis Erhart and Mrs. Maud Snider, nee Erhart, of Trafford; Mr. and Mrs. Eckert and Mrs. J. T. Brown, of Ardara, are visiting friends in this section. You see, all kinds of good products are high in the Pittsburg region so they concluded to come down to this modern Egypt and manufacture a few kettles of "Pennsylvania Salve" better known, perhaps, as applebutter. The cater Erhart, of Garm about one mile east of this place with a fine orchard on it where they got the principal ingredient for the manufacture of the salve.

We are sorry to note that merchant T. E. Griest again took suddenly ill on last Wednesday and for a time his friends were greatly alarmed but on Monday he rallied and was much better but on Tuesday he took a relapse and has since been a very sick man, having a severe attack of pleurisy. It is hoped by his many friends that he may speedily recover.

John Rowan, who has been lying seriously ill with typhoid fever for about five weeks in a hospital at Cumberland, surprised his parents on last Saturday night when the 4 o'clock train pulled in by deliberately walking into his home. It was a very pleasant surprise as they were not expecting him, his father intending to bring him home the next day. Johnnie, while he is gaining strength rapidly, looks a little as if he had gone through a separator. "Tid" Holtzworth, who took sick about the same time, is still in bed but is improving nicely and will soon be out.

It seems to me you have an awful lot of nice people down in Howard. On last Saturday Mr. L. C. Thompson, wife and son Chester came up from that city and were the guests of Cousin Ed Hall on Saturday and of Uncle Dan Hall on Sunday. Mr. Thompson, while he is a staunch Republican, is a great admirer of the Centre Democrat. He says the Howard items alone are worth the subscription price.

LIVONIA.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Shreckengast are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Schade.

Mrs. Jessie Stover and Leslie Stover attended the funeral of Joshua Culver at Linden.

Geo. Stover leads in potatoes around here, he having 115 bushels, the largest and finest potatoes to be seen anywhere; he also boasts of a turkey that laid 196 eggs during the summer.

Communion services were held here last Sunday and a most inspiring sermon was preached by Rev. Stauffer and all were delighted with the beautiful solo rendered by Mrs. Stauffer.

Edwin Glingerick journeyed to Millmont to visit his wife over Sunday; better bring her home, Ed, that trip is too long. The woods around here are grandly beautiful just now, tinted with all the glories of autumn, although with the pleasure of gazing upon the trees is mingled the sadness of the thought that the leaves are falling one by one and soon only bare branches will meet our eyes.

Dr. John Keichline, of Petersburg, Pa., spent Sunday with parents in town.

AN UNGRATEFUL SON.

Steals Money From His Widowed Mother Then Claims It's His Own. A correspondent from Beech Creek in the Lock Haven Express tells the following pathetic story: "One of the worst cases of a son's ingratitude and dishonesty was exhibited in the neighboring town of Blanchard recently. The son, an able-bodied young man, who is said to have not been living with his wife of late, came back to the old home to visit his widowed mother who urged his return. He was there about two weeks and expressed an intention to go to work at Orviston on a Monday, but a few days prior thereto he hired a horse and buggy and invited the Blanchard man to drive him to Howard and bring the conveyance back, as he now had money enough to "hit the pike" and believed that he would light out. He virtually sneaked out of town, getting his rig above the town, and after his departure it was found that the mother remembered seeing a suit case which at that moment was missing and which belonged to the son. She went upstairs and looked under the carpet where she had an even hundred dollars hidden. She found it gone, but under the bed she saw three ten dollar bills. Inquiry revealed that the son had gone toward Howard, where a message to constable Roy Leathers resulted in the apprehension of the young man, who claimed that the money was his own. The mother was communicated with and the fellow actually told her that he would go to jail before he would give up the money, but if she would pay the cost of his return he would get back to his wife. The kind-hearted, indulgent mother told the constable to let him go and he went. It is to be hoped that he never returns. The mother is a soldier's widow, a highly respected woman, who otherwise is worried by a case in the Centre county court, to be tried the 30th of this month, which involves the security of her own home through a lien of a building and loan association, a claim that appears to be unassailable. Not the least surprising feature is that the son left his mother $30 and was content with $70. Evidently he thought he was thus conferring a favor."

A COMPLIMENT.

Even Dorworth's Republican pays a glowing tribute to the excellent business capacity of William H. Noll, one of the Democratic nominees for County Commissioner. It does it unconsciously. In last issue, strange to say, it enumerates the business enterprises in which Mr. Noll is engaged, to the benefit of himself as well as to the good of his neighbors. After enumerating these, merchant, farmer, lumberman, developing an extensive stone quarry operation, etc., and efforts to further local improvements—in all of which, it says, Mr. Noll, proved that he was a thorough and successful business man, but, strange, the Republican thinks for being so useful a citizen, he should not be elected commissioner, but some other one, of no business experience, should be chosen. There's just where the Republicans missed it—they failed to name business men for the place, and if there is one office in the county that should be administered by thorough business fact, it is the commissioner's office, as common sense would teach. The highest business capacity is needed for so important a place and Mr. Noll fills the bill to a T. As a farmer, grain merchant and dealer in live stock—in his time, D. A. Grove has been a very successful man. Both can live without the salary of that office and are not in distress. Both are successful in life. Both made a success in managing their own affairs and in the commissioner's office would apply the same principles to public affairs.

"Lived too Long." was the pathetic note left by William Speece, 77 years old, who committed suicide by hanging. He was a widower and leaves nine children, at Bellefontaine, Ohio.
