

BOTH SIDES OF UNHAPPY TALE HUSBAND AND WIFE UNBOSOM THEIR TROUBLES.

DETWILER HELD FOR COURT Couple Were Happy Until Man Joined New Cult—Left All With His Maker—Sent to Jail—Released on Bail Furnished by His Brother.

The hearing in the case of William E. Detwiler, a native of Centre county, formerly of Reedsville, and whose arrest upon a charge of non-support of his family has caused so much of a sensation in Harrisburg, took place in Harrisburg recently. At its conclusion he was held under $300 bail for court.

His face was thin and worn and troubled. Prior to the hearing he was asked whether he had refused to eat in jail. He replied:

"I have nothing to say about that just now. God is the creator of life and that bread brings eternal life. When asked as to his guilt, Detwiler responded that he had nothing to say. Mrs. Detwiler was sworn and testified that on Mr. Detwiler's birthday in 1906 she was married in Reedsville. We had three children, one of which was born last August, and which my husband has not seen. The child died a few days after its birth and Mr. Detwiler never concerned himself about it sufficient to come to see the baby, even at death. He heard through some of the members of the Holy Rollers, that the child was a girl. Since the child's death he has not been home.

Mrs. Detwiler's eyes were filled with tears as she told of her marriage to a one-time energetic, prosperous, loving husband and father and between sobs she told her story of his downfall.

"My husband would not try to get work," she said; "he didn't want to work. One day in one of the newspapers I saw an ad. stating that a middle-aged, honest man was wanted to run an elevator. I told him about it and told him the place to go. I said 'Will, if you would only make $5 a week to help support our home I would be satisfied.' But there he was. He closed his eyes, bowed his head and said feebly: 'I'm not to do that, I have been called to follow the Lord.' He said, too, that I sold the property. He told me that the property was decided back to the man who held the mortgage and the papers were signed by Mr. Detwiler and myself, and he knows it."

When Mr. Detwiler was asked whether he had anything to say he told a long and rambling story of his troubles. He said that this woman was his second wife. He has a sixteen year old son to his first wife. "After my first wife died," he said, "I was a widower for three and a-half years. I was always considered a gentleman in my home and told him Reedville and then this woman came there to teach school. We got acquainted and were married at Washington, Pa. He told of going to Harrisburg and that after the grocery business did not pay he started the potato chip business and succeeded well but was always in need of money. He sold the business for $500 and paid interest on his property and other debts. He said his trouble was that there was too much wife and mother-in-law. Asked if he had worked any since he left his home he said he had worked for his mother in the country during harvest. As to how he got his food he said the Lord provided for him. He said that his wife's brother had come to his home and told him that unless he would work for his family he would have to leave. He had been looking for work, but the only thing offered was the driving of a beer wagon, but he couldn't do that and worshiped God at the same time. He then went to the mission and succeeded there when his wife asked him to go back he did, but when she said he must either give up the mission or his family, he answered that he had already made the decision that he wouldn't give up God. He had said that if he was ever chased away from home again he would never go back, and now if he would go he would be telling a lie and he wants to be truthful with every person and speak the Word of God.

Just before the hearing closed Detwiler said he was slapped by his wife, a statement, which was denied. "Yes," quietly exclaimed the prisoner, "slapped for worshipping God."

As yet he has no desire to get bail, as he is willing to sit in jail and read and sing hymns.

"I am suffering as the Christ did," Detwiler said as he was led away.

Some very exciting scenes were enacted at the meeting place of the Holy Rollers last night. This was partly due to the actions of one of their own members, Albert N. Shaffer, who said that he was a believer in the Word as it should be taught. He said the leader was teaching his wife and daughters that free love and adultery were not sins. Shaffer went into the meeting and tried to compel the members of his family to leave and the male members of the cult hustled him out. Shaffer returned and attacked one of them but fell to the floor and there was a general mix-up, but not of the usual holy rolling kind, and he was again landed on the outside. Next time he was accompanied by a policeman and asked the officer to bring out his wife and children, but when a daughter appealed to a policeman, saying the father had threatened to kill them, the officer took Shaffer away. In addition to this an assault on the little building was made from the outside by a crowd of boys, who broke windows and cracked the door. The members declare that great good will come of their sufferings and persecution and it would prove the means of leading persons who had not known of the purer, better life, to come to them, learn and be saved.

Earlier in the day Shaffer kicked Brinser, the leader, out of the Shaffer house.

William E. Detwiler was released from the Dauphin county prison. A brother from Spring Mills went and furnished the bond for $300.

Detwiler had said he would let the matter of his release rest with his Maker, but readily left the prison when the formality of entering bail was complied with.

In our opinion Detwiler is deserving sympathy instead of censure as he can hardly be of a sound mental condition.

PERSONAL QUARANTINE.

Suppose that smallpox were to strike your home. Immediately you would be quarantined. No one would be permitted to leave the house. Thus the smallpox germs would be prevented from spreading. In this way epidemics of the disease are averted.

Colds, gripe and tuberculosis might be stamped out just as easily if we could quarantine the homes of persons suffering from these maladies. But this is impossible. Nearly every other home would have to be shut up. The next best thing is a personal quarantine and this is what we should do.

When you have a cold or the gripe, try to confine the germs to yourself. Usually they leave you by the nose or mouth in breathing, sneezing, spitting or coughing. Therefore, avoid sitting close to people and talking directly into their faces. When you are obliged to sneeze, spit or cough, hold a handkerchief to your face. Use paper handkerchiefs and then burn them. If you are unwilling to do this, change your handkerchiefs frequently. Don't allow a dirty one to remain in your pocket where it can contaminate your clothes and your hands and from which infection may be transferred by you to your friends. Always keep a strict personal quarantine, which is nothing more than obeying the Golden Rule. If everybody did this, colds, gripe and tuberculosis would cease to exist.

THE END OF THE MANCHUS.

The abdication of the Manchus dynasty and the proclamation of a Chinese republic at Peking this past week, ends nearly 1900 years in which Chinese development has been arrested by the tyranny of alien barbarous and rapacious races. China was ruled by the Chinese for the last time under the Sung dynasty which ended in the eleventh century. Up to that time for 300 years, China had made a steady, consistent, continuous and fairly homogeneous development. It had created its own code of ethics, evolved an efficient administration and begun a brilliant art in painting in ceramics and in sculpture. Its verse and its drama, if not responding to European canons, showed great promise. There seemed before the Chinese race a future which would use all the discoveries, many of them anticipating those in Europe, which had already been made.

One hideous horde after another of Turks, Tartars and Mongols, however, poured into China from northern Asia, and last, the Manchus, two and a half centuries ago. Under these, all Chinese progress has been retarded.

WIRE CAUSED MAN'S DEATH.

Williamsport hospital physicians are at a loss to understand how a piece of wire more than two inches long wormed its way into the bowels of a man named Williams who died at the hospital in that city. Williams became suddenly ill and was taken to the hospital, where he exhibited symptoms of appendicitis. An operation revealed the piece of wire embedded in the intestine. Williams himself knew nothing of the cause of his illness nor was he cognizant of ever swallowing a piece of wire. How the wire could have been swallowed without the knowledge of the victim is a puzzle to the physicians.

There was evidence that the wire might have been imbedded for some time. Williams was a painter by trade. As far as could be learned he had never been in any accident which might in a measure tend to throw light on his strange condition.

INSPECTOR BUSY.

W. F. McGovern, inspector of weights and measures in Northumberland county has finished his inspections in all of the hardware stores from Mount Carmel to Watsonstown, and he started on other retail stores. He visited 27 business places, tested 25 scales, and condemned one scale. He inspected 434 liquid measures, and condemned 269 of them. Avoidpouls weights numbering 617 were tested, and 256 were found wrong.

Milk bottles seem to be all correct in this county, not one incorrect bottle having been found yet. He examined 544 bottles and measures, and condemned six measures. In dry goods stores Inspector McGovern tested 95 yard sticks and counter tacks, condemning ten of them.

Inspector McGovern issues a general warning to the people to watch closely their purchases of butter. See that you get the weight you pay for.

REASONABLE RULING.

One of the latest cases of this kind is that of a Butler, Missouri, publisher who brought suit against one of his subscribers who had taken the paper for a time and then refused to pay. This subscriber, it is alleged, even showed to the magistrate that he had ordered the sheet discontinued, yet the court of appeals held that the mere acceptance of a paper created a liability. In summing up the case, the justice is reported to have said: "The preparation and publication of a newspaper involves much physical and mental labor, as well as the outlay of money. One who accepts the paper by continuously taking it from the postoffice, receives a benefit and incurs an obligation to pay for the same. It is not a mere gratuitous gift. It is a contract. The publisher is entitled to be paid for his labor and by such act he must be held liable for the subscription price."

China and Mexico.

The Chinese revolution has ended in the abdication of the Emperor and the establishing of a republic. Mexico is having new trouble by an uprising against the new Madero government.

President Taft has ordered troops to be in readiness to go to Texas and prevent revolutionists of Mexico from crossing the borders into the United States in order to reach points in Mexico to carry on the civil war.

HOW WM. PENN FOUNDED AMERICA

RECEIVED A SPECIAL GRANT FROM THE KING.

DEATT FAIRLY WITH INDIANS

Paid Them Also For the Lands They Occupied—Retained Their Confidence Thereafter—Some Early History—Interesting Data.

The Province of Pennsylvania was named by King Charles II, in honor of the son of Giles Penn, Sir William Penn, an Admiral of the English Navy, who commanded the British fleet in Oliver Cromwell's time, and in the beginning of a letter to Robert Turner, William Penn says, that the King would have it called "by the name of Pennsylvania" in honor of his (William Penn's) father. The following is a copy of the letter:

8th of 1st Mo. 1681. "Dear Friend:—My true love in the Lord salutes thee, and dear friends that love the Lord's precious truth in those parts. Thine I have, and for my business, here, know that after waiting, watchings and disputes in council, this day my country was confirmed to me under the great seal of England, with large powers and privileges, by the name of Pennsylvania, a name the king would give it in honor of my father. I chose New Wales, being as this, a pretty hilly country, but Penn being Welsh for a head, as Penmaenore in Wales, and Penrhin in Cumberland, and Penn in Buckinghamshire, the highest land in England, called this Pennsylvania, which is the high or head of lands, for I proposed when the Secretary of Wales, refused to have it called New Wales, Sylvania, and they added Penn to it; and though I much opposed it, and went to the king to have it struck out and altered, he said 'twas past, and would take it up on him; nor could twenty guineas move the under secretary to vary the name, for I feared lest it look on as a vanity in me, and not as a respect in the king, as it truly was to my father, whom he often mentions with praise. Thou mayest not think I am a fool, for I have sealed myself up in the big house, and refused admittance to every one. He never went out except to see his attorney, in whose office he was taken seriously ill. He occupied but one room in the gloomy dwelling and cooked his own meals.

SHORT CUT IN APPENDICITIS. Operations for appendicitis, thought to have been perfected several years ago, when 1 1/2-inch incisions were made, have been still further simplified.

Description of the operation is given in the Cleveland Journal of Medicine, which explains that an incision of only three-fourths of an inch is necessary.

"A short incision is made over the appendix," says the report "No muscle or fibers are cut. These are instead separated just enough to admit the introduction of the index finger, with which a careful examination is made of all the structures within reach."

"After examination has verified the diagnosis, the appendix is brought to the surface with the hooked index finger. After the appendix is delivered the rest of the operation is easy."

The new system usually permits the patient to leave the hospital in twenty-four hours.—New York Press.

Valuable Paper on Cure of Cancer.

The current number of the American Journal of Clinical Medicine contains a three page article or treatise on Epithelioma, Lupus, and Rodent Ulcer, and their escharotic treatment with zinc chloride, by Dr. J. E. Tibbins, of Beech Creek, who was awarded first prize for the article by the publishers of the journal in competition with similar articles contributed by some of the leading physicians and surgeons of the country. This is a distinct honor for Dr. Tibbins, who has given the treatment of cancer much thought and research, and he will be ranked as one of the prominent cancer specialists of the country. Dr. Tibbins says people should know that cancer is curable without the use of the knife, and that the entire destruction of the cancerous mass can be effected with zinc chloride and a permanent cure produced within six months or a year after their origin. It will thus be made apparent if Dr. Tibbins' conclusions are correct, that he has made a most valuable contribution to medical science.

HATS FOR 24 SONS.

"Henry High, an old and well-known resident of Lewisport, asserts that the story of an emigrant man and wife passing through that place 50 or 60 years ago with 24 living sons was true, as he recollects the occurrence. Mr. High says he was in Aaronsburg and saw the 24 sons lined up at the Spyker hat factory, where the old proprietor came out with an armful of hats and fitted each of the boys with new headgear. He says the emigrants from the East had four wagons and that they went through Lewisport, stopping, he thought, at the old Valley House."

The above is clipped from the Philadelphia Record, and the Centre Democrat knows it to be true. It was away back. We knew Henry High, then a boy, Aaronsburg then had two hat factories, one conducted by Daniel Spyker, an old resident, assisted by his sons George, Henry and Jonathan. The first named, after working for his father a number of years, moved across the street and engaged in the manufacture of hats. The hat made by them was the old style wool hat and was in universal use all over the county and adjoining, worn by men and boys. By the large hat factories started in other places, in after years, the Spyker establishments could not compete and both the Aaronsburg establishments were abandoned. The Daniel Spyker hat factory was in a building opposite the old Henry Mussina home up town, recently owned and occupied by Mrs. Rodgers, of Bellefonte.

WEALTH IN DUST.

The existence of a "House of Mystery" in Brooklyn, N. Y., was disclosed when for the first time in twenty-two years the Remsen street mansion of Samuel E. Haslett, known as the hermit millionaire, was entered by a person other than its eccentric tenant, the invader being a physician sent to attend the recluse, who is said to be dying. The doctor, together with nurses who came later, found the floors of the magnificently furnished house covered two inches thick with dust and littering the carpets or swept into rubbish-filled corners, were more than $10,000 in paper currency, together with stock certificates and bonds. Boxes of gold and silver coins lay exposed in various rooms and hundreds of rare books that had apparently never been opened were found in disordered heaps.

Since his wife was burned to death 25 years ago, Haslett had practically sealed himself up in the big house, and refused admittance to every one. He never went out except to see his attorney, in whose office he was taken seriously ill. He occupied but one room in the gloomy dwelling and cooked his own meals.
