

Woman's World

MISS ANNA AGNES MALEY.

about a play by Robert Ganthony, which that gentleman asked him to read. Mr. Grossmith took the comedy, but lost it on his way home. "Night after night," he says, "I would meet Ganthony, and he would ask me how I liked his play. It was awful. The perspiration used to come out on my forehead as I'd say sometimes. 'I haven't had time to look at it yet,' or, again, 'The first act was good, but I can't stop to explain, etc., must catch a train.' That play was the bane of my existence, and haunted even my dreams." Some months passed, and Ganthony, a merry wag, still pursued him without mercy. At last it occurred to Mr. Grossmith that he might have left the comedy in the cab on the night it was given to him. He went down to Scotland Yard and inquired. "Oh, yes," was the reply. "Play marked with Mr. Ganthony's name sent back to the owner four months ago, as soon as found."

Compromising a Tenor.

Czar Nicholas I. used to walk the streets of St. Petersburg alone wrapped in a large gray cloak. It was forbidden to speak to him, but the czar sometimes forgot that a subject could not obey the prohibition if the emperor addressed him.

Once the czar met in a park the tenor singer of the Italian opera and exchanged a few words with him. The moment the czar was out of sight the police arrested the tenor. That evening the czar attended the opera, where, after a long delay, the manager announced that the tenor could not be found. Nicholas guessed what had happened and sent an aid-de-camp to release the singer.

A few days after the czar again met the tenor and began with an apology: "I was very sorry."

"May I implore your majesty," the Italian exclaimed, "not to speak to me? Your majesty will compromise me with the police."

MacVeagh Adjoined the Court.

On one occasion Wayne MacVeagh succeeded in adjourning the supreme court before the usual hour. Mr. MacVeagh never remained in Washington overnight if he could help it, and on this occasion he greatly desired to take the 4 o'clock train for Philadelphia. Although talking to the court, he kept his eye on the clock, and at 3:45, giving himself just enough time to reach the station, he ceased his argument and said: "May it please your honors. I move that the court do adjourn. I want to catch the 4 o'clock train for home." The cool audacity of the request seemed to paralyze the justices, but the chief justice made the customary order without a protest, and Mr. MacVeagh got his train.

Willing to Help.

Miss Mary Sasseen was making the race once for state librarian in Kentucky. In the interests of her day she reached a town in the high grass section on the very afternoon that a Confederate monument was being unveiled.

As the daughter of a southern soldier and also as a prominent woman of the state Miss Sasseen was welcomed at the ceremonies and given a place with the guests of honor on the platform.

After the invocation all hands sang "Dixie." Miss Sasseen, who had a good voice, joined heartily in the singing. A few minutes later the master of ceremonies made an announcement that she did not catch, and immediately one or two quavering voices struck up the opening lines of "The Bonnie Blue Flag." Grieved inwardly that she saw in such a large assembly should know the words and music of that famous southern war song, Miss Sasseen rose and joined in lustily. She was halfway through the first verse when the master of ceremonies tapped her timidly on the shoulder.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "but this was intended for a duet."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

The Scrap Book

Equalty.
Come, give me your hand, str, my friend
And my brother.
If honest, why, sure, that's enough!
One hand, if it's true, is as good as another.
No matter how brawny or rough.

Or make for its owner a name
Or fold in its grasp all the dainties of riches,
If honest, I love it the same.

Not less in the sight of his heavenly
Maker
Is he who must toil for his bread.
Not more in the sight of the mute undertaker
Is majesty shrouded and dead.

Let none of us jeeringly scoff at his neighbor
Or mock at his lowly birth.
We are all of us God's. Let us earnestly labor
To better this suffering earth.
—Matthias Barr.

The Raw Recruit.
F. M. King enlisted in the Spanish-American war and was sent to Jefferson Barracks. He was strolling through the company streets smoking a cigar when an officer approached. King saluted.

"Look here," said the officer, "don't you know better than to salute an officer when you have a cigar in your mouth? How long have you been here?"

"Three days," replied King.

"You are excused this time," said the officer, "but don't let me catch you doing that again."

In a short time King met the same officer and walked by without saluting.

"Why didn't you salute?" demanded the officer, stopping him.

"Well, you just told me not to salute when I had a cigar in my mouth," replied the raw recruit.

But he spent three days in the kitchen peeling potatoes for this offense.—Aitchison Champion.

A Losing Dream.

"I made a nice idiot of myself the other morning," said the commuter, who is paying trolley in a savings bank. "My wife was afraid I'd miss my train, and she got me by the shoulder and shook me, telling me that it was time to get up. I got about half awake, and somehow I thought I was at my window in the bank, with a long line of women awaiting their turn. The one at the window was handing me a check, and from force of habit I said: 'How much money do you want?'"

"You know, most women who present checks want to draw some and deposit the rest. Well, what do you think the wife did? Quick as a flash came her answer to my dopy question: 'Five dollars will do.'"

"She got it, but I hope I won't dream any more."—New York Post.

A Lost Play.

Weedon Grossmith, the English comedian, used to tell a good story

Queen Mary "Sassed" by Lady Constance.

"Lady Constance Stewart Richardson, the beautiful young woman who danced over here some time ago, has offended Queen Mary," said a diplomat's wife, according to the Washington Post. "She actually told the queen to stand out of the light at a picture exhibition."

"Lady Constance, you know, is capable of anything. They are telling an anecdote about her at the Bath club."

"She was walking in Piccadilly the other day—so the anecdote runs—and a young man attempted to pass her on the right when she also turned that way. The young man veered to the left, and Lady Constance did the same. And there they stood for a minute or more, overcome by that ridiculous something which makes two people face to face on a wide sidewalk dodge simultaneously this way and that without being able to pass each other."

"Lady Constance after nine or ten of these awkward movements smiled demurely and said: 'Well, I'm sure if you want to dance I don't mind. But what's it to be—the turkey trot or the grizzly bear?'"

Memorial to Mrs. Decker.

The women of Colorado will probably erect a memorial in the form of a woman's building at the State university to the life and work of Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker. The movement was started by the alumnae of the university, and Mrs. Decker was enthusiastic about it. The building will be for the use of needy women students at the university. Mrs. Dewey C. Bailey, president of the Denver Woman's club; Mrs. James D. Whitmore, a past president, and others will attend a meeting at which the matter will be discussed and the memorial idea take form. Mrs. Whitmore says in regard to the proposed memorial, "I know that its erection to her memory and in honor of her life and work would be the most fitting and beautiful tribute within the power of the womanhood of Colorado to bestow."

Said About Womankind.

Life is not long enough for a coquette to play all her tricks in.—Joseph Addison.

If a fox is cunning, a woman in love is a thousand times more so.—Proverb.

The happiest women, like the happiest nations, have no history.—George Eliot.

A mother's prayers, silent and gentle, can never miss the road to the throne of all bounty.—Henry Ward Beecher.

A good tempered woman, of the order yelet buxom, not only warrants a pair of expansive shoulders, but bespeaks our approbation of them.—Leigh Hunt.

For the Hair

Are you so fortunate as to be well satisfied with your hair? Is it long enough, thick enough, rich enough? And your hair does not fall out? Well, well, that is good. But you may know of some not so fortunate. Then just tell them about Ayer's Hair Vigor. They will surely thank you after using it, if not before. Remember, it does not color the hair. Show the list of ingredients to your doctor. Let him decide their value. He knows.

You Lose a Lot of Money...
If you keep your savings about the house. You may not lose the money itself, though it is likely you will, but you are certain to lose the interest which the money would have earned. For example, if you are able to save only as much as $1 a week, in ten years you would have $637.15 in bank if you had deposited your dollar regularly in this safe and solid institution. You put in $520 and the bank pays you $117.15 as interest.
