Vol. 35, No. 44.

UN-OFFICIAL VOTE CAST AT THE GENERAL ELECTION HELD IN CENTRE CO. NOV., 5th, 1912.

A Landslide For Wilson Will Have The Greatest Majority Ever Known.

THE BULL MOOSE IS SECOND

With About 112 Electors—Wilson Over 400, and Taft Scarcely a Baker's Dozen—Congress and Senate Democratic—Large Gains Everywhere—Result in State and County—Democracy Betrayed in Centre County—Taft's Poor Showing is a Surprise—Pennsylvania For Bull Moose—Patton Elected by 2,000—Some Surprises Along the Lines—Our Forecast on President Verified.

Democracy, representing the cause of the people, swept the country at the elections Tuesday.

Woodrow Wilson is elected President and Thomas R. Marshall Vice-President, by a tremendous majority, the largest ever given a Presidential ticket. So definite was the sweep that the President-elect will have a Democratic House and likely a Democratic Senate.

New York, with a big majority for Democrats, started the ball rolling early. Massachusetts followed quickly, and at 10 o'clock the Associated Press announced that Wilson had carried enough States to give him in the electoral college 267 votes, one more than necessary to elect.

From that on, state after state kept rolling into the Democratic column until it looked as though Wilson would have over forty of the states and possibly more than 400 of the electors. Early in the evening the leading republican papers in New York conceded the election of Wilson and from that on it was a constant procession of Wilson victories from one end of the country to the other.

ELECTORAL VOTE BY STATES.

The following is the electoral vote by states, as it reached us Wednesday evening by special telegram, at the time of closing the paper. This must be considered as based on incomplete returns in some of the states, as forecast by the various news associations. This summary will naturally be subject to some alterations when the official vote is announced.

Early in the evening Ex-President Roosevelt sent a complimentary message to President-elect Wilson upon his great victory.

Pennsylvania For Roosevelt.
The returns in the state show at this time that the Roosevelt faction of the Republican party will secure the electors by about 8,000. Wilson came second, and the Taft vote third. The official vote may make some changes in this result.

The Republican nominees on the state ticket are also sure to have been elected. The Penrose forces carried a strong vote in Philadelphia and the eastern counties, while the Flinn people were strong in Pittsburg and that part of Pennsylvania. There was some hope that the Democratic state ticket would receive support from the Regulars who were opposed to the Flinn nominees, but it did not materialize.

Last night it was thought that Congressman Wm. Wilson, of Tioga county, had been defeated for re-election by a very small vote.
Derahem, of Union county, is reported to have been elected to Congress over E. K. Focht, and carried nearly every county in his district.

All through the state there are gains in Assembly, State Senators and for Congress. The Democrats will have at least five more congressmen from this state.

Warren Bailey, editor of Johnstown, Democratic candidate for congress in his district, appears to have won out by a small majority.

Jerome T. Alliman, Democratic nominee, in the Perry, Juniata, etc., district, was defeated for state senate.

Wilson carried Clinton county by about 500. George L. Miller, the Democratic nominee for assembly defeated W. Howard Klepper by 900. They had a bitter fight on and it attracted considerable attention.

Result in Centre County.
The result in Centre county will be found in detail in the table published in this issue, giving the vote in each district. This table was compiled hastily from the official returns and a few telephone messages. The official count will be made on Thursday at the Court House.

The result in Centre county is a victory for the Democrats on the national ticket, as Wilson carries the county by about 724. For the balance of the ticket it is a victory for the Republican-Bull Moose combination, and that portion of the Democrats who slaughtered their nominees deliberately and with malice. Democrats can not help but deplore this result.

Patton, the Republican-Bull Moose candidate for congress, carries the county by about 248 over Gleason, the Democratic nominee.

Cramley, the Republican-Bull Moose candidate for Assembly, wins out by about 171 over Foster, the Democratic nominee.

Four years ago the vote cast for president was Republican 497, Democratic 398, or a total by these two parties of 895. This year the total vote cast for President by the Republicans is 1496, by the Bull Moose 2733, and by the Democrats 3457—the total being 7685. This is 1235 less than cast four years ago, showing that there was a light vote polled in all parts of the county. A great many people did not take enough interest in the election to go and vote. None of the chairmen, we understand, had sufficient funds to bring their party voters home, who are temporarily engaged in other parts of the state.

This usually amounts to from two to three hundred for each party. That would indicate that about 800 voters stayed at home in the county this year, as compared with 1908.

Just how many former Democrats voted for Taft or Roosevelt, or how many Republicans voted for Wilson, is hard to estimate. There was a drift from former party lines in this respect, for that reason it is hard to say which party suffered the most from the stay-at-home voter. No doubt both parties suffered.

The loss for Gleason in this county can be attributed largely to the distribution of a lot of vicious literature to arouse prejudice among those who are not well informed. This had a certain effect, and it could not be counteracted.

The defeat of Foster is variously received. Some Democrats received it with gladness, and the balance of the party was naturally saddened by this exhibition of personal revenge that seemed to be the motive that inspired enough to turn a victory to defeat. A careful canvass of the vote will show that it broke out in certain localities in the county, while it is well known that it received its main inspiration direct from prominent individuals here in Bellefonte who continuously conspired to accomplish this result.

The Democratic landslide that swept the county has also had the effect of increasing the Democratic representation in congress from all sections, and a large majority. Among those to go down in the slump are such notable characters as Joe Cannon, the famous standpatter.

In Indiana, Albert J. Beveridge, the famous Bull Moose leader, candidate for governor, was defeated. Illinois elected a Democratic governor. The following states also elected Democratic governors: New York, Ohio, Massachusetts, and Connecticut.

Patton Elected.
Incomplete returns at the time of going to press indicate that Patton's majority in the Congressional district over Gleason, the Democratic nominee, will be close to 2000. Patton carried the different counties by the following estimated majorities as reported to us Wednesday evening by Chairman Haggerty, of Clearfield: Cameron by 250; McKean 500; Clearfield 800; and Centre 348. Patton claims the district by at least 2000. This was his estimate Wednesday afternoon. The official count will make very little material change.

Saxon—Young.
This Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a quiet but pretty wedding ceremony performed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Young on South Allegheny street. The contracting parties will be their daughter Miss Ruth Young, who will wed Mr. Charles Saxon, of this city. The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Esther Young, while the best man will be Mr. Herbert Gray. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Yocum, pastor of the Methodist church. The groom is employed as a freeman for the American Lime & Stone Company and is a very industrious young man. The bride is a very pretty and accomplished young lady. Their many friends wish for them a happy and prosperous married life.

TWO YOUNG MEN MEET HORRIBLE DEATH

KILLED ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON BY BLAST.

FRANK HAZLE—ROBT. HUNTER

Both Hurlled High in the Air and Their Bodies Horribly Mutilated—Much Sorrow Expressed Over Their Untimely Fate.

Sad indeed was the shocking accident and death that befell Frank Hazle, a young man 26 years old and Robert C. Hunter, a boy of 18, on Saturday afternoon last, both of whom were victims of a blast, while at work on the cinder dump near the Nittany Furnace. Hazle was killed instantly, his body being horribly mutilated, while Hunter died in the Bellefonte hospital about five hours later, without regaining consciousness. The bodies of the unfortunate young men were thrown high in the air by the terrific force of the exploding dynamite and that of Hazle's rising to a height of fully 100 feet and landing 150 feet distant, at the foot of a trestle used by the Furnace company to unload ore. Hunter's body was found against a tool box, about 75 feet away.

It is the old, old story of the delayed discharge of a blast, and an attempt by the victims to relight the fuse. The scene of the accident is the huge mountain of cinder forty to fifty feet high, that has been hauled from the furnace at the eastern end of the furnace yard. For some time past a gang of workmen under the foremanship of Toner Hugg, have been engaged loading the cinder on cars, and it is then hauled to Millsburg and used for road making by the Highway Department. Blasting must be resorted to in order to break it up, that it may be easily shoveled. This method of handling it had been going on successfully and without accident up until Saturday afternoon. Being the closing day of the week an extra number of holes had been drilled, six in all at the top of the cinder pile, in order that a large quantity of the material would be ready for loading on Monday morning. About half past three the blast was ready for lighting, and Hazle, with several of the other men, applied matches to the fuses. All of the men except Hazle and one or two others sought refuge under the steel cars at the foot of the dump, and as the blasts went off in quick succession, it was difficult to count them. There was a delay, after the reports, and it is said one of the men who had helped in igniting the fuses, became confused, and was uncertain as to whether his fuse had been lighted or not. However, in a few moments the delayed discharge was heard which hurried to their death young Hazle and Hunter. The latter two had gone back, and were evidently directly over the charge when it exploded. When the horrified workmen realized what had occurred they ran at once to the injured men. Hazle's body was a sickening spectacle, with the top of his head blown off, one hand off above the wrist, and his whole body practically crushed. He died before he was taken to the hospital, and was found to be still breathing, and a hurry call was sent for the ambulance, which rushed him to the hospital. His injuries were of an internal nature, in addition to horrible burns and cuts upon the face. He died at Pleasant Gap, Pa., on Monday morning.

Robert C. Hunter was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd L. Hunter, who was instantaneously killed. He was born at Lemont on May 17, 1894, thus was aged 18 years, 5 months and 15 days. He is survived by his parents and the following brothers and sisters: Margaret, Katharine, Dorothy, Adaline and Boyd Jr. Funeral services were held at his late home on Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, conducted by Rev. From of the Methodist church of Pleasant Gap, assisted by Rev. C. C. Shuey, of Bellefonte. Interment was made in the Pleasant Gap cemetery.

Frank Hazle was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Hazle, of Pleasant Gap, and was aged a little more than 26 years. His parents survive together with two brothers, Oliver, of Philadelphia, and Morris, of Altoona. Funeral services were conducted on Monday afternoon, at the home of his parents at 2 o'clock, the body afterward taken to the Lutheran church where services were resumed. Rev. J. I. Stonecypher had charge of the services, assisted by Rev. Frum and the Free Methodist minister. Burial was made at Pleasant Gap.
