On Saturday an Academy student was arrested by Policeman Dukeman on a charge of tearing down quarantine cards from a house in the northern section of the town, where measles had prevailed. The young man was summoned before Burgess Bower on Saturday evening, fined $10 and given $2.75 costs to pay. The excuse advanced by the defendant was that he thought the house, from which the card was taken, was untenanted, and planned to place it upon another's door as a joke. This was probably the truth, but the matter of safeguarding the public in times when contagious disease is abroad is so important that any trifling or interfering with quarantine rules becomes a very serious matter. Let this be a lesson to others who may feel inclined to become reckless in regard to other's rights.

When Joseph that reached his green grocery store on High street Sunday morning, on his way to early church, he was surprised to find that his electric light, kept burning on the inside of the building at night had been turned out. Mr. Thal's usual custom is to drop in the store on Sunday morning and turn off the light, but on this occasion he found the globe had been unswitched and released from contact with the current. Further investigation brought additional astonishment to Mr. Thal when he found that the cash drawer had been rifled of several dollars left in it over night, and a number of old coins which the owner had been collecting. The pilferers had also helped themselves to some of the choicest cigars and cigarettes, although they confined themselves to a quantity small enough possibly to accommodate the limits of their pockets, which they may have imagined would not arouse suspicion should they meet anyone on the street. Entrance was gained to the store by cutting out a pane of glass on the east side of the building. Mr. Thal is unable to suggest who might have played him the trick.

The trouble was caused by a large tree which had been blown down by the heavy wind and fallen directly across the tracks. The dangerous obstacle was discovered by a woman residing in that vicinity, who managed to give the train a warning, and the neighborhood farmers helped to clear the track.

On Saturday morning John Morgan of this place was struck by a passenger train while walking on the Central Railroad of Pa. tracks near the lime kilns. Missioner Crittenden's Answer.

"Missioner Crittenden, is it true what we hear that you are going to leave Bellefonte?" This question meets me on every hand. Very quickly and with emphatic utterance, I reply, "most certainly I am going to leave;" cannot stay here forever. Much as we may regret it, God is making it unmistakably clear that we must leave this beautiful spring city in the mountains, the place of my happy residence on earth the past forty-two years. Deo Volente, we leave on or before the first of May next, or possibly the 15th of June, "the month of roses." This the day after my entrance into this earthly life now spanning eighty-two years and by the merciful favor of our Heavenly Father, we go to Bethlehem, Pa., my good wife and I, to spend the rest of our days before by the grace of God, we enjoy an abundant entrance into "the inheritance of the Saints in Glory."
