UNIONVILLE.

Mrs. Ella Holt was the first citizen to spray her lawn and garden by means of hose attached to her hydrant since the inauguration of our new water plant.

On next Sunday morning at 10:30 the Rev. H. K. Ash will preach the annual sermon to and for the benefit of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in the M. E. church. All Odd Fellows are requested to meet in their hall at 10:15 o'clock, to march to the church in a body. Let there be a full turnout.

If you see Harold Fisher acting queer like, don't think he is daffy and suggest an asylum; oh, no! He only is boiling over with happiness because the stork left a fine boy at his home on last Monday morning. It's boy No. 2.

Dr. and Mrs. Holland with their accomplished daughter, Adaline, auto-mobiled from DuBois to this place on last Saturday afternoon for the night and the most of Sunday with Mrs. Holland's mother, Mrs. Malissa Bling, leaving here on Sunday at 3 o'clock, p. m. for their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewellyn James, of Lake Helen, Pa., arrived here on Saturday evening on the 8 o'clock train. They expect to spend the summer here.

Frank Peters engaged to take Miss Mary E. Griest and Mrs. Alice B. Worth to Phillipsburg for a day's outing but when he got to Fort Matilda his machine balked and they could go no farther. The ladies then boarded the 1 o'clock train and returned home.

And now, if you ask them, "How are the folks in Phillipsburg?" they just "look dazed" at you and won't even smile a little bit. Harry Lindemuth was telephoned for and he went up in his own car to help him out of his trouble.

Mothers' day was celebrated on Sunday in the M. E. church at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. Ash preached a fine sermon with special reference to the occasion. The Junior choir furnished the music. Miss Eloise Buck manipulated the organ while Harry McElwain played the accompaniment on the violin. There were 44 mothers, about 18 grandmothers and 6 great-grandmothers present. The church was exceptionally well filled—nearly all wearing white carnations.

If there's anything more interesting or entertaining than to hear two old veterans of the civil war in conversation, each telling of his many thrilling experiences and incidents of those times that tried men's souls, we would like to have some one stand up and tell what it is. A few days ago William Resides and I. G. Alexander, two of the best and bravest soldiers of the war, the first 82 years old, the latter 87, were having a test—a test of which the reminiscences of the war formed the subject with the writer for an audience, and for two hours yarns, thrilling, amusing and pathetic, were exchanged by those old heroes. I would have paid a large sum of money for the services of a stenographer for those two hours, so as to have recorded those incidents in full. Gee! what a budget it would have made. Billy Resides, among the many things he related, told how he was concealed at the battle of Fredericksburg; how he picked off the gunners as fast as they replaced them till finally the rebels discovered the direction from which the balls came, and fired a volley in that direction, and poor Billy fell with his left arm shot off and a severe wound through the thigh; how he lay on that battle field two days before he was picked up, suffering and bleeding from his wounds, thinking of home and mother, and when at last he was picked up his one hand was frozen to the ground. And he lived, and is living yet. Marvellous, indeed. Among the many things related by Mr. Alexander was one incident of a pathetic nature. His regiment, (The 6th P. V.) was lying in front of Petersburg expecting any minute to be ordered to fall in line. Orders were given to make coffee and make it quick, but before they had this done orders were given to "fall in." He had for a messmate, another brave soldier whose name was William Cramer or Kreamer, of Rebersburg. He said to Alexander, "I am afraid we are going to have a hard fight to-day; there'll be many who will never get back alive." The Rebels had a powerful army and his arms were determined to win. Alexander and Kreamer fought side by side and very soon after the fight commenced, Kreamer was shot in the forehead and killed instantly. He had a very fine watch in his pocket which Mr. Alexander wanted to get to send to his (Kreamer's) parents, but the fight was too hot. Some weeks after the battle was over he was in conversation with a soldier of a New York Regiment, who took a watch out of his pocket to note the time when Alexander recognized it as Kreamer's watch, his initials having been engraved on the back. He told the Colonel of this fact who demanded the watch from the New York man and he gave it very willingly. Mr. Alexander sent the watch home to Kreamer's sister at Rebersburg, and now he wonders whether she is living yet or perhaps some of the relatives will remember of the circumstances; if so, he would like to hear from them. Mr. Alexander participated in every battle in which his regiment was engaged and never received the slightest wound. Once he was shot through the hat, the ball just grazing the scalp; at another time a ball just grazed his neck—both very close calls. He was in the three days fight at the battle of Gettysburg. A braver soldier never carried a musket than Irvin Gregg Alexander.

A VIEW OF SUNDAY'S FIRE.

Editor Centre Democrat:
The fire of Sunday will undoubtedly be an object lesson to the strenuous water kickers on the present raise, particularly those living in the outskirts of the borough. The council have for some time been scheming to make our water system as nearly perfect as possible, and to do so and give proper fire protection the water systems on the various streets should be looped. That is a somewhat expensive job, using a large lot of expensive pipe, but as the illustration shows on Sunday morning the damage to the house burned would have been much smaller by several thousand dollars had a loop system been in vogue at that time. This raise in tax will net about $2500.00 with which council have planned to loop the system on several of the streets as far as they will have money enough to do so, and they have also in contemplation the purchasing of an Auto Fire Engine which would have been of the utmost value on Sunday and the long delay in getting horses would have been obviated and the immediate work that an auto engine would have been able to do would have considered the fire to a mere couple of hundred dollars' damage. They are not of much use until you want them but when you want them you want them quickly and they save money and the cost of themselves several times over. In the matter of using the water tax for other purposes, complained of by many; the fact is that most of the time it is the other way and in one instance there was nearly five thousand dollars of the borough expended when the large main was laid from the reservoir to the spring around by High street and which has proven of such great benefit since. At the present rate the council is not laying within ten per cent of what they have license to lay and what they call the base of assessment according to ordinance. In former years the greater part of the exonerations of the poor was made by the water tax, that is the water tax was the largest amount of all the taxes which would reduce the net duplicate considerably. When the water tax was lowered a few years ago on account of an exceptionally lucky year with the water, it was made too low and the department has been paying for it ever since in a shortage. It is thought that the new rate would only need to be levied for the one year and that it will then be dropped to a lower level. The property owners pay the tax now and in any event it comes off the same ones.

Another thing not taken into consideration is the fact that of our one hundred thousand dollars debt, about eighty-five thousand dollars was caused by the water dept. in building the reservoir, financing the streets and equipping the fire protection such as plugs, etc.
Many a city would gladly pay triple our prices for our spring with its pure clear cold water and give thanks besides for the beneficent act of Providence for so treating them.

REBERSBURG.
Pappy Cole left Monday for Le-mont to assist a carriage builder.
The Monday morning frost at 23 degrees left havoc in its train. Ice was frozen from one-eighth to one-quarter inch thick. Fruit turned black by ten o'clock, except where protected.
Dan Royer has a weather gauge which beats the U. S. bureau. He can tell from the way the bill and coo when it is going to rain.
John W. Harter no longer has any faith in the use of kerosene on apple trees. Some of his best trees at Smullton were ruined.
Mr. Krape, authority on organs, has an old violin which was purchased by the great Ole Bull, for a Mrs Simpson in Lock Haven, who presented it to Krape.
The early corn got nipped Monday night for its forwardness.
The woods are now beautiful and fragrant with "whip-poor-will" bloom. Nothing has been seen lately of the seven wise men of the altitudinous Alleghenies.
The new road bills before the legislature are all based upon the assumption that the patent asses will vote $50,000,000 to Toner, Penrose and Bigelow. Here is an old Pennsylvania saw: "Better hob him short als grick him much."
There is a paucity of gossip now. "Well, perhaps."
The following poem was written some years ago by Dr. Alfred Bierly, about the old home at Madisonburg:

MY WILD-WOOD HOME.
My wild-wood home I've ne'er forgot,
Though far I've roamed from that dear spot;
No lovelier scenes on earth are found,
'Tis nature's own enchanted ground.
How pleasant are thy brooks and rills,
Thy verdant vales and sylvan hills;
Entrancing thought! how they unfold
As all in fancy I behold.
Oft 'mid youth's pleasure-seeking hours
I sauntered through the beauteous bowers;
O peerless boon, now craved amiss,
To bask in thee was priceless bliss.
I roamed its paths, through glenn and dell,
Where gnomes and elves and fairies dwell;
Vast nature's splendor, how it thrilled
Each nook my heart with rapture filled.
'Mid craggy rocks and purling brooks,
By cooling streams and shady nooks,
Where wild-bird notes ring true and clear—
There, there I fain would linger near.
Back would I haste to cooling shades,
To my dear home-land 'mong the glades,
Ah! life was then a blissful lot,
A haven that sweet contentment brought.

Just consider these facts for a minute. Isn't it reasonable to suppose that the man who wholesales an article to other merchants and sells it directly to the consumer can afford to sell it for a lower price than the dealer who must pay the manufacturer a profit, and then add another profit for himself.
You'll admit this to be true, we know. Well, this is an exact explanation of the clothing situation in Bellefonte. We wholesale all the clothing we sell, and we sell it directly to you, with but one small profit added. And you are not only sure to save money at Clasters, but you are just as sure to get absolute satisfaction in every particular. No better clothes than ours are, or can be made, and no other store offers such a wide scope of choice, in new styles, patterns and color effects. It will pay you to look into the matter carefully and that is all we ask you to do. Just now we make it especially worth while to investigate our offering because

Every Dollar you spend at Claster's for Clothing brings you bigger returns for your money than you can get any where else.
Just consider these facts for a minute. Isn't it reasonable to suppose that the man who wholesales an article to other merchants and sells it directly to the consumer can afford to sell it for a lower price than the dealer who must pay the manufacturer a profit, and then add another profit for himself.
You'll admit this to be true, we know. Well, this is an exact explanation of the clothing situation in Bellefonte. We wholesale all the clothing we sell, and we sell it directly to you, with but one small profit added. And you are not only sure to save money at Clasters, but you are just as sure to get absolute satisfaction in every particular. No better clothes than ours are, or can be made, and no other store offers such a wide scope of choice, in new styles, patterns and color effects. It will pay you to look into the matter carefully and that is all we ask you to do. Just now we make it especially worth while to investigate our offering because
