

Points for Mothers

Giving Your Child a Book. "What kind of a book shall father bring you?" a small girl was questioned the other day.

"Oh, any book," came the reply with a happy nonchalance, "as long as it can be my very own and stay up in my room."

She voiced the craving of every child, says Carolyn Sherwin Baily in the Delineator. Your child needs his very own "five foot" bookshelf which he may grow up with and which will meet the needs of his developing and expanding imagination.

But each book that we put on this nursery bookshelf should be selected having in mind what it is going to do for the child.

Will it frighten him? Will it hurt his appreciation of beauty by its rude colors and poor art? Will it give him warped, twisted ideas of his world?

Rather, will the book that you put into your child's hands make him happy? Will its illustrations help him to love good pictures? Will it teach him something?

If a child can have only four books it will be possible to give him between the covers of these four all that he needs in child literature during his earlier years.

One book should be very beautiful pictorially. Every baby loves color, and a good colored picture of one of his Mother Goose friends, his pet animals, his toys, will be a feast for his soul almost. He should be taught care in handling it, and turning its beautiful pages will be his happy privilege.

One book will answer the queries of our dear little "question mark." It should furnish material to be read to the child to help him understand his environment. Every child is wonderfully, buoyantly interested in animals and stars and trees and waters and the land of little creatures down under his feet.

Too often we let his questions in regard to nature phenomena pass unheeded. Let us give him a book that will answer them.

Our third book will be a big, magical collection of child stories—those stories that take a child out of himself and into the places of fancy, stories that make children brave, happy, unselfish, good.

One more book, a doing one. It will be perhaps more a mother's book than the child's, for it will give hints and helps for keeping small hands active, child eyes wider open, child brains busy. It will be a book of games, of suggestions for child hand work, of a book of child busy-ness.

With these four books or many books of each of these four classes a child will begin his home education in an efficient, result making way.

Rules for Rearing Babies. Rules for rearing babies, accompanied by the statement that children are not to be regarded as luxuries by the poor, were given out recently by Mrs. George Herrick of Boston, who four months ago became the mother of a boy declared by a number of eugenic authorities to be the finest physical specimen that has come within their experience. Mrs. Herrick's directions are as follows:

"Three essentials are fresh air, light clothing and plenty of good nourishment."

"Society women should forego society's obligations and nurse their own children."

"Every mother should nurse her own child."

"Kissing and fondling of baby should not be permitted for one minute."

"Don't toss baby up in the air like a bouncing ball."

"One great secret of household economy is making your own and your children's clothing."

"Race suicide is the greatest evil of the day."

"The father contributes as much to the health or ill health of a child as the mother."

The Toys of 1913. Modern toys for children are marvels of ingenuity. The latest is a model yacht about three feet long which runs by electricity with a motor and storage battery with a speed of 188 feet per minute. The motor is reversible, and it is steered from the wheel on the bridge. There are searchlights and running lights, which are operated by a switch. Naturally there are no sails and only one deck. There are two little lifeboats, and on the deck a small velvet seat with three miniature chairs and three wee cushions lend a suggestion of realism. A moving picture machine for home use, sold with an arrangement with the store to exchange the films, is another source of unlimited delight to the active child.

Comfort For Baby. Elderdown fannel booties for the baby are excellent for very cold weather. They are silk lined with pink or blue and ornamented with a small design in ribbon work. They are hand made and are washable. Booties for the baby may also be had now made of corduroy, but either of these kinds should be exchanged for something of a lighter weight in a warm room or on mild days. A hot water bottle for the baby to hold and play with, so that its hands may be kept warm, is dressed as a rabbit doll called "Peter Rabbit." It holds one pint of hot water and is priced at $1.

THE SUMMER GIRL.

Elaborate Bathing Suits Will Rule This Season.

BATHING SUIT OF RED FOULARD.

Such a bathing suit as this would hardly stand a daily dip in salt water and keep its festive appearance all summer, but every woman who spends the summer at the seashore likes to own one attractive suit, keeping a simpler model of mohair for ordinary occasions.

The pretty suit illustrated is made of satin foulard in a pattern of brilliant red shades, and the tucked bodice gives length to the waist, while the sleeves protect the upper arm from tan, freckles and other blemishes caused by sun and wind.

The model is a good one to carry out in less expensive materials.

CONVENIENT DARNING BAG.

All Its Contents Can Be Exposed to View at Once.

To banish the necessity for turning out everything that was in her stocking bag when she wanted to find an especial pair in a hurry an ingenious woman contrived for her "hosen" a bag which was not really a bag at all, but which proved so thoroughly fitted for its useful purpose that it is being copied by friends and relatives in all sorts of materials and for many differing uses.

It was simply a large square of pretty chintz, lined with plain white ("one can find things far more quickly on that than against a figured or colored stuff," says the ingenious one) and with a large white ivory ring sewed securely at each corner. To the lining, before it was finally joined to the outside, were stitched pockets, their top edges toward the corner points. These were to hold needlebook, darning cotton and other necessities. Moreover, along the inner edge of each side was provided a tiny but strong ball and socket fastener, so that the open sides could be closed when the bag was especially full and thereby the falling out of odd articles could be prevented. The four rings can be brought together when the bag is to be hung up, and when it is wanted at hand it can be opened out flat and laid in the lap or on any convenient place. Being entirely washable and with nothing fastened to it other than the pockets and rings and fasteners, it can be "tubbed" with the utmost ease, the rings alone needing to be ripped off for convenience in laundering.

For Spring Fatigue.

To conquer "that tired feeling," of which many of us are complaining with the return of spring, these very simple items of advice may be found valuable.

Squeeze into a tumbler of water the juice of two oranges and drink it before breakfast every morning. Better still would be the juice from one large grapefruit.

At this time of the year, when so little other fresh fruit is available, the juice of orange or grapefruit has potent virtues and helps to tone up the system.

For the circulation of the nervous system an alternate application of hot and cold water is one of the most powerful tonics at our disposal.

For an ideal tonic bath try an ordinary hot shower for one minute, followed by a cold shower for three minutes. Specially bracing for the nerves is a douche over the back of the neck. A nerve specialist says that, in his opinion, a douche over the nape of the neck from a can of hot water, followed by one of cold and a salt rub—that is, a bath towel dipped in sea or salted water and allowed to get dry and used as a dry rub—is worth untold gold.

The Man Who Knows.

"The trouble with your women's business and money making devices," said the man who knows, "is that you do things in too much of a hurry. It is slapping. We're so busy with our social duties that we have no time to spare save the middle of next month. If we hurry we can rush it through."

"The result usually is tableaux, which are all very well, of course, but they are just successful enough to satisfy the managers and to blind them to the fact that they might have made thousands of dollars more by a well organized fair."

TO PICK TEN FARMERS.

Tener About Ready For New Experts In Agriculture.

Appointments of ten experts in agriculture provided by the bill approved by Governor Tener, will be made within a short time.

These men are required to be practical farmers, who will be assigned to districts to advise farmers in regard to cultivation, crops, soils and other details, which are covered by many of the requests which have been received at the department in recent years and which it has been unable to supply.

In addition, the state will assist counties which may avail themselves of the provisions of the new act, allowing appropriation of $1500 a year for agriculture extension work. Many western states have successfully adopted this plan by which they get the benefit of an expert agriculturist's advice. It will take some time until the system can be put in practical operation and the farmers understand how to avail themselves of the service. If the new department can be kept free from the withering effect of machine political manipulation it can be made a success.

Getting Off Easy.—A barber in a downtown shop, having been out late the night before, had a shaky hand the next morning and cut a patron's cheek four times. After each accident the barber said, as he sponged away the blood: "Oh, dear me, how careless!" The patron took all these shaves in grave silence. But when the shave was over he filled a glass with water, took a mouthful of water, and, with compressed lips, proceeded to shake his head from side to side. "What is the matter?" the barber asked, "You ain't got the toothache, have you?" "No," said the customer, "I only wanted to see if my mouth would still hold water without leaking."

LION SHOT AS IT CROUCHED.

Thrilling Experience of Animal Trainer at Altoona.

Her own coolness, together with the promptness of her employer, saved the life of Mile. Florence, female animal trainer with the Ferrari Carnival company when she was attacked by a large African lion in the arena at Altoona last week.

Mile. Florence had gone into the cage to rehearse the beast, which had been acting strangely several days taking away the smoothness of the performance, and it was necessary to use the lash on him frequently. As she stooped to pick up the riding whip she used, the lion sprang upon her, bearing her to the floor. Realizing that sharp fangs would sink into her flesh if she made the slightest movement, she closed her eyes and made her body rigid.

The scream of surprise when she was struck down was heard by Colonel Ferrari in the office across the tent. Seizing an automatic pistol, he rushed to the cage, jerked open the door and fired five bullets into the lion as it crouched over the prostrate form of the trainer. It rolled over dead with its claws still entangled in Mile. Florence's dress, which was torn to tatters. Her body was slightly scratched. The animal was worth $2,000.

Charters were issued to two corporations which expect to do business in State College. The one concern is named the Tussey Gas Company. The other is a Steam Heating Company. Both have a capital stock of $5,000 named.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema with the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged. This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.

We have sold other remedies for skin GREEN'S PHARMACY CO.

But none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D.D.D. stops the itch at once. We just want you to give D.D.D. a trial. That will be enough to prove it. Of course all other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute. But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not think it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.
