POINTERS ABOUT TURKEYS.

The passage of a law by the legislature imposing a penalty of $25 for shooting or killing a wild turkey during two years from May 8 last, has aroused discussion of various questions pertaining to turkeys. A recent issue of this law Ex-Sheriff Woodring contributes these pointers to the Democrat:

"Sixty years ago there was not one wild turkey where there are 100 today. Why the increase since the modern killing gun is used to hunt them with? As we suppose, the reason is that the country, becoming more thickly settled and the forests cleared up, made more or better grazing for them. Then, again, there have been flocks and flocks of tame turkeys which roamed off and became wild. This is a common instinct of the bird.

"Again, the rural farmers have helped the wild turkeys through the severe winters by feeding them, where they roosted. Under the present law they will not be apt to continue this policy, and in two years the wild turkeys will almost become a thing of the past, as farmers will not feed turkeys for city sports to come out and roam over land, upon which they pay the taxes to keep up the schools, roads and poor, and slaughter the game preserved and kept from starving by them."

This raises a point for discussion. The theory of the state gamewasters is that all the game belongs to the state. This was not the view taken by "the fathers of the Republic." At the Common Law all game, animals and birds, wild by nature, belonged to the people who could take it. It was only when the ownership of lands concentrated in the lords, dukes, barons and opulent class, that the game laws were passed in England and "the poor became poachers," liable to be shot down like dogs, for hunting a little venison on the very lands their ancestors may have once owned. This lordly system was not adopted in Pennsylvania, until recent years, and now it has grown into an oppressive system, as pointed out by Ex-Sheriff Woodring.

Another question, less serious, has been raised: How long is the natural life of a turkey gobbler? Some are of the opinion that a gobbler may live five years, naturally; others, only two. If the latter are right, none of the gobblers now gobbling in the woods will be alive on May 8, 1915, when his immunity expires. In the meantime, another query arises: What will be done with the eggs? This last penal fruit of the brooder makes no mention of the eggs!

Hints for Housewives.
Do not throw away your old banana skins. Save them until you have about 200 of them. Then scrape them carefully and sew them together. They make beautiful and inexpensive rugs. Housewives ignore the useful scrubbing brush and neglect it until it becomes an eyesore. Glid the old scrubbing brushes and paint flowers or landscapes on the handles. Tie a bow of pink ribbon at each end and the brush becomes ornamental as well as useful.

Woman Is As Old As She Looks

No woman wants to look old. Many in their effort to look youthful resort to the "beauty doctor's" prescriptions. Their mistake is that they visit the wrong department in the drug store. Beauty depends upon health. Worry, sleepless nights, headaches, pains, disorders, irregularities and weaknesses of a distinctly feminine character in a short time bring the dull eye, the "crow's feet," the haggard look, drooping shoulders, and the falling step.

DR. PIERCE'S Favorite Prescription

This famous medicine strikes at the very root of these enemies of your youthful appearance. It makes you not only look young, but feel young.

Your druggist can supply you in liquid or tablet form; send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce's Invalids Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and trial box will be mailed you.
