

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

The Fiery Fourth of July Happily Passing.

NO LONGER FASHIONABLE.

Firecrackers and Pistols Regarded as Relics of Barbarism by Sensible People—Other Topics of Interest to Little People.

Playing with fire on Independence day is ceasing to be fashionable, and the fiery Fourth will soon be a thing of the past. Doubtless firecrackers, pistols and other relics of barbarism will continue for a few more years to damage humanity and property, but each year the lists of casualties, accidents and fires should continue to grow beautifully less until the "glorious" day's records will no more resemble those of a great battle than those of any other day not so glorious.

INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATIONS.

Young America celebrates the birthday of freedom in a much more sensible and agreeable fashion these days. Parades in costume, with flags and banners, are very popular; then there are picnics and excursions and carnivals, with songs and flowers, cake and ice cream, all much more enjoyable and interesting than fireworks and noise. The two young patriots shown in the picture have the true spirit of Independence day. They pin their faith to the stars and stripes.

A Versatile Dog.

In Tennessee a dog has been discovered that can mimic many sounds. It is a yellow mongrel, answers to the name of Bench and is very unprepossessing, except that in its eyes there are gleams of almost human intelligence.

The dog's owner places him on a chair, and, making a sign, Bench gives an imitation of a Shanghai rooster crowing. Then without further command he follows it with the neigh of a horse, the lowing of cows, the grunts and squeals of pigs and other noises incident to farm life.

Of course the imitations are not so good as if made by a human being, but they are sufficiently accurate to be readily recognized.

The owner declares that nobody taught the dog and that his imitative powers were discovered by accident.

Riddles.

When is a silver cup most likely to run? When it is chased.
Why would a tanner make a good chemist? Because he understands ox-hides.

Why is a field of grass like a person older than yourself? Because it's past your age (pasturage).
Why is a watch like a river? Because it doesn't run long without winding.

Where lies the path of duty? Through the custom house.
What would a man be doing who willed his body to a medical college? Giving himself dead away.
What is the trade of all presidents? Cabinet makers.

Cat and Mouse.

Two players, the cat and the mouse, are blindfolded and tied to a tree or post by two long strings. The mouse is given two pieces of wood, or a nutmeg grater and a piece of wood answers the purpose better. These the mouse grates together occasionally to give the cat a clew as to its whereabouts.

As both players are blindfolded, the cat is sometimes close beside the mouse when she hears the grating and can easily pounce upon her. When caught the mouse becomes a cat, and the cat joins the spectators, while a new mouse is chosen to take the mouse's place.

Mighty Shadows.
Exaggerated shadows of immense size are commonly seen in many places. On the Hartz mountains the so called Specter of the Brocken throws gigantic shadows of mountain climbers into the sky, repeating every movement made by them. The same occurs on the summit of Pambamarca in Peru.

On the tops of Alpine peaks and on the summit of Ben Lomond in Scotland, mists in one case and rarefied air in the other, explain these optical delusions. The same causes also produce colored shadows.

Fourth of July.
There was a small boy with a rocket hidden snugly inside his hip pocket. His ma saw it there.
And said: "I declare! See mustn't touch match to that rocket!"

The Scrap Book

The Run Came In.

Joe Sugden claims that he is the only living rival to John Anderson who made baseball history by stealing second with the bases full.

Joe let a tying run step across the plate while he held the ball in his hand and refused to touch the runner. There were men on second and third one man out, the score 3 to 2 one day at New Orleans, when Charleston was playing there, back in 1893. The game was stopped for some reason, and the coacher at first sat on the sack during the delay. Joe looked over the infield and saw three men on bases.

The first ball pitched when the game was again started was hit to the third baseman, who threw home in worlds of time to get the man trying to score. Joe thought the man was forced out and yelled at Denny Long, the first baseman, to get on the sack to complete a double play, while Long yelled at Joe to touch his man.

The runner stepped nimbly on the plate while Joe swore at the first baseman. They revived Joe with cold water after he had discovered what he had done.

Each to All.

Who lives pure life and doeth righteous deed
And walks straight paths—however others stray.
This is the better way.
No drop but serves the slowly lifting tide,
No dew but has an errand to some flower.
No smallest star but sheds some helpful ray.
And man by man, each giving to all the rest,
Makes the firm bulwark of the country's power.
There is no better way.—Susan Coolidge.

Branded Him.

Dr. Norman Porritt, the consulting surgeon of the Royal Infirmary at Huddersfield, Yorkshire, England, does not mind telling a story against himself. He says that on one occasion he was called to a butcher's shop to examine some meat that had been condemned by the medical officer of health as being unfit for human consumption.

When the case came on for hearing in the local police court one of the witnesses, a butcher, was asked, "Who were present when the meat was examined?"

To which the witness answered quite seriously, "Dr. Porritt and a number of other butchers!"

A Scot's Tunes One Scot Didn't Like.

A new admiral—a Macdonald—had succeeded Admiral Campbell in the command of a British squadron. The band had been in the habit of playing "The Campbells Are Coming" when their former admiral had a dinner party, and they did so in honor of Macdonald.

The first time the chief of the Macdonalds heard it (tells Admiral Fitzgerald in "Memories of the Sea") he was very angry and sent for me—the captain being on shore—and the following dialogue took place:

"What do they mean by playing 'The Campbells Are Coming'?"
"It has been customary to play it, sir, as a compliment to Admiral Campbell, and, being a Scotch air, no doubt the bandmaster thought it would be agreeable to you."
"Agreeable to me! Don't you know the next line of the song, 'The Campbells are coming, the Macdonalds are running'? Never let me hear that tune again."

And the bandmaster was ordered to teach the band "The Garb of Old Gaul" instead.

"Granny Vic."

The subjects of Queen Victoria held their sovereign in veneration and respect. It was only among her own family circle, where she was "granny" and not "her majesty," that any criticism of her character and disposition was ever heard. There is one amusing incident in point told by Mrs. Hugh Fraser in "The Reminiscences of a Diplomatist's Wife."

Miss Elizabeth C. Berdan was an intimate friend of the young princesses and was in great request at the palace as a playmate for the young girls.

One day one of the princesses gave Miss Berdan a ring. It was a pretty little trinket, but simple and inexpensive. "I would like to give you something much finer, Bessie," said the princess apologetically, "but you know Granny Vic is so stingy!"

"Shifting Sands."

Scoop had been assigned to cover the lecture of a noted French orator. The hall in which the lecture was delivered was very warm and comfortable, and Scoop went to sleep. At the close of the lecture he woke up with a start and as he pulled himself together his hazy mind caught the words "shifting sands." That was sufficient for Scoop. Arriving at the office, he straightforwardly proceeded to the "dope room," where he spent a good half hour reading about shifting sands.

When the French orator opened the paper next morning he found himself credited with having given a long talk on shifting sands the night before. Jamming the paper into his pocket, the Frenchman went with long strides to the editor and demanded an explanation for the story.

"What is the matter?" asked the editor. "Doesn't the article cover the subject fully?"
"Cover so subject, indeed!" replied the Frenchman. "I said nothing about shifting sands, except that I would be so subject on which I lecture next week!"—Judge.

BATHING CAP IN NEEL ROSE.

Two long ends of Neel rose silk cross at the back of this cap and are drawn snugly around the head and tied in front in a perky bow, the cap being held firmly thus over the hair. In front is a visor flap of silk, which may be turned down over the eyes.

Concerning Women.

Mrs. Waldorf Astor, whose home is now in England, but who was born and brought up in Virginia, is said to be immensely popular with her husband's constituency in Devonshire. She made five speeches in two days recently and is quite a queen in Plymouth.

Mrs. Frank B. Tracy, who recently resigned the presidency of the Shut-in society of Boston, has been engaged in the work for fifteen years. She was presented with a gift in gold in appreciation of her faithful services. Mrs. Tracy is the wife of the editor of the Boston Transcript.

The famous girls' school at Ogontz has at last acquired the estate upon which the school is located. It was the property originally of Jay Cooke, the financier. It passed into the hands of the members of the faithful, who were never willing to sell it until it has now passed into the hands of Miss Abby A. Sutherland, who has conducted the school for a number of years. The price paid was $500,000 for 200 acres. The co-eds of the Ohio State university have decided that they will use no more slang. Miss Caroline Breyfogle, dean of the women, and several other members of the faculty are in favor of the campaign, which has been started in earnest. The hall in which the girls meet is called the "grab room," and the dean has offered $5 for a name to substitute for this slangy one.

Summer One Piece Frocks.

A liberal supply of one piece frocks of thin cottons and linaes should be included in every summer wardrobe, and such frocks are to be had in pretty materials in the shops at surprising low prices, or they may be made up by the home seamstress at even smaller expense.

Sheer cotton crepes make ideal dresses of this kind for hot days, and a charming model seen recently was of embroidered marquisette, which formed the bodice. On the blouse at the waist line in front were two little pointed tabs, which extended below the waist line, giving the effect of a bolero. The edges of the bolero were outlined in heavy embroidery. The skirt of the frock was formed of cotton crepe. A delightful model of a more elaborate character is illustrated, which would be especially pretty for a garden party.

Starch For Laces and Muslins.

Mix a small quantity of corn flour smoothly with cold water. This will be found excellent for lightly stiffening all delicate and lacy fabrics, including veils and neckwear of sheer materials.

HOW TO CLEAN LAST SEASON'S STRAW HAT.

The last year's white hat may be cleaned till it looks like new at a cost of 5 cents. Get that amount of oxalic acid and dissolve it in a pint of water. Remove all bands and trimming from the hat and apply the acid with a toothbrush, rubbing around and around. When the straw is clean, rinse well in several waters to wash off all the acid, which would surely rot the straw if left on.

Then place the hat on a flat surface in the bright sunshine, which, in combination with the acid treatment, bleaches it. If the hat is a sailor turn it upside down when partly dry and put a weight such as a small flatiron in the crown to prevent it from sagging in.

Great care must be taken in using and disposing of the acid, as it is a deadly poison.

TRY THESE RECIPES.

How to Prepare the Good Things Grandmother Made.

Mother's Corn Muffins.

Mother was certainly famous for her corn muffins, which were made after this recipe: Mix together one cupful of cornmeal, two cupfuls of flour with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder mixed through. Melt some butter, enough to measure three-quarters of a cupful; stir this in and also a fourth of a cupful of sugar and one cupful of sweet milk; stir in a little salt and three eggs well beaten. Bake in muffin or gem pans.

Baked Ham With Cider.

Select a ham of medium weight and fat and wash it well in cold water; cover with fresh water and cook for twenty-four hours; place in the kettle and cover with fresh sweet cider; put on the fire and let come to the boiling point, then simmer gently fifteen minutes to the pound or till tender. Remove from kettle and carefully take off all the rind; sprinkle lightly with sugar, put in a baking pan and cook in a moderate oven till nicely browned, basting with cider from time to time.

Meat Roll.

One quart of beef that has been run through the grinder twice (in seven times they chopped it very fine); one quart of bread crumbs moistened with one pint of milk and three eggs beaten together, adding one round teaspoonful of salt, one of pepper, one tablespoonful of fine sage and two teaspoonfuls of butter. If there is much fat in the meat the butter may be omitted. Mix the meat lightly with the softened bread, shape into two loaves in a pan and place in a hot oven to form a crust, then pour a little hot water in the pan and bake one hour. Make this the day before it is needed.

Floating Island.

Make a soft custard, using one quart of milk; beat it slightly and add the yolks of four eggs and two of the whites well beaten, with a heaping tablespoonful of sugar and a flavoring of vanilla. Cook in a double boiler, and as soon as it begins to stick a little on the side remove from the fire and pour it in the dish in which it is to be served. Just before tea time beat the whites of the two eggs very stiff with powdered sugar and make dots over the top of the custard and put a bit of currant or grape jelly in the center of each island.

How to Remove Stains.

Iron mold and dry ink stains may be removed by placing the stained material in a hot solution of salts of sorrel or salts of lemon and leaving it to steep until they disappear or by placing the stained part over a basin and pouring boiling water through to moisten the stain, which enables the chemical action to take place more rapidly.

Then a small quantity of salts of lemon or salts of sorrel should be placed on the stain and rubbed firmly in and boiling water again poured through. If the first application does not remove it the process must be repeated. If the iron mold is due to old iron rust neither of the above mentioned chemicals may remove it successfully.

A pinch of oxalic acid, which is a stronger chemical, may then have the desired effect. It is used in exactly the same manner as salts of lemon, but it must be used with great care, as it is injurious to fabric.

How to Start a Fortune.

Save a little every week and when you get an increase of wages or salary continue to live within the former limits and save the increase. If you find it difficult to save go in debt for a home or undertake some other obligation in the way of investment that will compel you to save. In these days, of course, the average man or woman has better opportunities to win success in salaried positions in individual enterprises. The big enterprises pay big salaries at the top and close application will win promotion toward these bigger rewards. It is not necessary for a man or woman to get a big salary before he or she begins to put money aside.

How to Wear the Modish Sash.

Sashes may be tied at the side of the back with short ends or may hang from a flat bow directly in the middle of the back with long, side pleated ends, caught at the bottom by hem stitched bands of ribbon or silk. Picced ribbon sashes have tasseled ends. Small sashes tie directly in the middle of the front with three inch loops edged with five inch fringe.

How to Clean Rugs.

To clean Smyrna rugs brush through the velvet surface a mixture of coarse salt and cornmeal, slightly dampened.

FATAL FIRE.

One Dead and Others Severely Burned at Monument.

The Lock Haven Times contained the following details of the fatal fire at Monument: The little village of Monument Centre county, was thrown into a state of wild excitement Sunday night about midnight when the house of Joseph Hanley was burned.

It appears that Mrs. Hanley had gone away from home for a short visit and her sister, Mrs. Nora Hale, a widow, whose home is at Port Matilda, with her two children, Frances, aged 3 years and Willie, aged 4 years, had gone to keep house during the absence of her sister.

At the time above stated the little boy was an alarm and his mother was the first to awaken. The entire downstairs was in flames and the smoke in the upper rooms was beyond endurance. However, Mrs. Hale managed to awaken little Frances. Then she hurried to Mr. Hanley's room and after considerable difficulty succeeded in arousing him from sleep and stupor, caused by the dense smoke. Rushing back to her own room she managed to get the little boy out of a window unharmed. At the same time the flames had entered the door and in her endeavor to reach her mother, little Frances fell into the flames and was terribly burned and inhaled the hot flames. Notwithstanding the excitement, Mrs. Hale managed to extricate the little girl and with much difficulty was able to reach the outside, but not before she was also badly burned.

In the meantime Mr. Hanley was having a terrible experience. He being in somewhat of a dazed condition was unable to find the window for a time and when he did locate it could not raise the sash. Just as the floor sank beneath him he made one desperate lunge for the sash and carried it with him to the ground. The house was totally destroyed with its contents. It was with great difficulty a physician could be secured but a Beech Creek doctor finally arrived on a freight train and gave Mrs. Hale and little Frances all possible attention. The little girl lingered in the throes of agony until some time Monday afternoon when death came to her relief.

The mother, who was practically paralysed from head to foot, was able to accompany the remains of the little girl to Port Matilda, where funeral services were held and the remains laid to rest in the village burying ground.

Well Known Engineer Dead.

James A. Hollogan, one of the best known engineers on the Pittsburgh division, died at his home in Altoona, Monday morning of nephritis. He was identified with the service of the railroad for many years. He is survived by his wife and one son. He also leaves several brothers, one of whom is conductor William Holligan, of Tyrone, a conductor on the Bald Eagle Valley. He was a member and St. John's Catholic church of Altoona.
