

MAJ. HASTINGS MOVED TO TEARS AT TRIAL

JUDGE'S REMARKS TOUCHED AGED MAN'S EMOTIONS.

WIPED EYES IN COURT ROOM

Brother of Governor Hastings Gets Long Term for Shooting Nephew, Ross Hickok, and Policeman—Held Fancied Wrongs.

William H. Hastings, the 71-year-old brother of former Governor Daniel H. Hastings, who shot and wounded his nephew, Ross A. Hickok, at Harrisburg, several weeks ago, was moved to tears when sentenced from nine to fourteen years in the penitentiary by Judge Kunkel last week.

"We are satisfied," said the Judge in pronouncing sentence, "that you fully intended to shoot Ross Hickok. From all the facts in the case as we have heard them, instead of being here on these five charges of felonious assault, you might have been here on as many charges of murder. It was not your fault that you did not kill some of the men. You are a dangerous man to be at large," ended the Judge, and proceeded to give out the sentence. As Judge Kunkel made several remarks about facts in the case, Hastings tried to say something, and at one time pulled out his handkerchief and wiped his eyes. With bowed head the aged man listened in silence until the last word of the sentence, "and you are in the Sheriff's hands to carry this sentence into effect" fell on his ears, and was in the same sense lead away to jail.

Hastings, when brought before the court late in the afternoon, wore a pair of dark glasses to shield his eyes from the daylight. As he stood before the bar he held his head erect and soldierly and every word he spoke was carefully chosen and precise. He held his hand to his ear several times as if he did not hear well. At one time, as Judge Kunkel was talking to him, he pulled out his handkerchief, wiped his eyes. When asked if he had anything to say, Hastings told his story of the shooting. He said he had been supporting himself while in Harrisburg by teaching foreign languages and a little insurance. His statement of the shooting at the Hickok home was made in a softly modulated voice. He told of the trip to the Hickok home and the shooting there. He claimed that the police had opened fire on him without warning, and said he would have surrendered if they had asked him. "I had no criminal intent," he said, "and didn't try to kill either Mr. Hickok or the policemen."

He was asked then by District Attorney Stroup why it was he took the guns with him to the Hickok residence. His answer was: "I was much inflamed and I had heard that they had a gallery in their cellar and a caricature of 'Uncle Will' which they used as a target for gun practice."

Attorney Bergner then took up the quizzing. "Didn't you know that Mr. Hickok was not the administrator of the Hastings estate, but that the Commonwealth Trust Company was appointed by the court?" Hastings answered, "No." "Don't you know that Mr. Hickok notified you that he intended presenting the account of the estate to the court for confirmation and that if you had any objections you should express them at that time?" Hastings answered that he had never heard of it. He answered in the negative when asked whether he had not said to Mr. Hickok that he knew he had no legal claim on the estate, only a moral one.

Mr. Bergner presented to the court certified copies from the records of the court of Philadelphia county, in which Hastings was indicted on a charge of false pretense and three charges of forging invoices of rubber which was sent to Australia and had discounted these invoices at a bank in Philadelphia. He was sentenced to a half year in the Philadelphia county jail in 1909, he said.

Attorney Metzgar, Hastings' counsel, tried to have the facts on which Hastings claimed the $50,000 brought before the court. He held in his hand a circular letter issued on November 18, 1912 by Hastings. He said this set forth Hastings' demands. The court ruled it out because it did not bear on the case, as it would have been no justification for the shooting.

After a conference between Judges Kunkel and McCarrell, Judge Kunkel pronounced sentence.

Farmer Creasy's Observations.

"My observations of crop conditions throughout the state," remarked State Grange Master William T. Creasy, "is that the grass crop will be light. The wheat and rye look good and we should have a good crop of both these grains. The oats crop, however, doesn't seem to be shaping up properly, and it's too early to tell much about the corn. The season has been so backward that it's hard to tell just what the crop will amount to but present indications are that it will measure up in the end. The crop of apples will be one in sections only for the trees on the lowlands show little indications of anything like a crop although those standing high look better. Much of the strawberries were frozen out and I have seen in different parts of the state field after field of tomatoes and beans ruined by the frost. Taken as a whole, the peach, apple and pear crop will be fair on high ground and below the average on the low lying land. The cherry crop, as a rule, was a failure."

Old Building Razed.

Last week one of the oldest landmarks in Loganton was removed, says the Journal, when a crew of carpenters razed the old log house on Mrs. J. H. Musser's lot. The log house was erected about a hundred years ago by a Mr. Bower, who died fifty years ago, it being the second house built in Loganton. John Berry acquired the property from the Reber estate. A crew of builders are now at work erecting a new and modern two-story dwelling house on the premises.

FARMERS' DAY AT STATE.

Educational Meeting of Grangers Held Last Week.

State grange day for farmers' boys at State College Wednesday, presented another opportunity for the farmers of Pennsylvania to see for themselves the work of the state's greatest educational institution.

Among the prominent grangers who were on hand for the trip over the college grounds were: William T. Creasy, master of the State grange; Moses Bond, of Danville; Dr. Hannah McK. Lyons, of Lincoln university, Chester county, and Leonard Rhone, of Centre Hall, past master of the State grange. Delegations were also present from Clinton, Centre, Cambria and other counties.

The visitors were met by college conveyances, and a complete tour of inspection, planned to emphasize the instructional work of the college, rather than simply the practical side, was made. Practically all of the 1,100 acres of the college plant were inspected, the 860 acres under cultivation being thoroughly demonstrated.

In the morning, the Spring Creek farm of 350 acres was visited and the experiments in hog-feeding and breeding and in beef cattle breeding, effect of lime on clover and of pasture fertilization were explained. At the Thompson farm of 200 acres, the experimental orchard was visited. Here an experiment of the comparative effects of the seed mulch, of clover crops and of cultivation is carried on in an orchard twenty acres in extent.

Another interesting experiment seen there was that of crop rotation, where the usual Pennsylvania's four-year rotation of corn, oats, wheat and grass is being compared with a six-year rotation of corn, small grain and alfalfa, with the object of building up worn-out soil.

At the Mitchell farm of 100 acres was seen the application of the principle worked out in small plot experiments to actual farm practice in building up a soil which three years for cultivation.

In the afternoon the visitors were given an opportunity to inspect the work in home economics and chemistry, the equipment of the school of engineering shops, laboratories and experiments station, where are being carried on investigations of the utmost importance in regard to concrete, smoke consumption and refrigeration, three subjects concerning which America is far less well informed than many European nations.

Lastly came the inspection of the school of mines, with its wonderfully complete and interesting museum, containing the most thorough demonstration of the courses of Pennsylvania's mineral wealth in existence.

Eighty Young Girls Burned.

The report of a terrible outrage perpetrated among the peasantry of Russia comes from St. Petersburg. According to dispatches received in that city, it is said that enraged at the importation of girl laborers to do cheap work in the sugar fields in Southern Russia, the Russian villagers burned 80 young girls to death. The report states that the girls were put in a barn, all exits were shut off, and while they were asleep the building was fired. All are dead.

Members of the immediate families and a few intimate friends were present. After the usual felicitations had been extended the bride and groom started on an overland journey to northern Pennsylvania, where they will spend their honeymoon amid the forests of that section of the state. Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel will be at home to their many friends after October 1 at State College, Mr. Bechtel having been retained by the college, from which he graduated last week, as instructor in the department of horticulture. ANTY DRUDGE

Mr. Newlywed—"Yes, we've got a fine little dovecot. But it's one of those swell apartment houses, and they don't allow any washing done. Won't stand for the smell and muss."

Anty Drudge—"Poor boy! You must be nearly bankrupt with big laundry bills. But, get your wife some Fels-Naptha Soap and she can fool the janitor. Won't need boiling water. Just use it cool or lukewarm. Rub the clothes lightly and they'll be like snow."

Fels-Naptha cleans things more thoroughly in cool or lukewarm water, in little time, than if they were boiled till Doomsday.

All that's needed is cool or lukewarm water, and even a bowl or basin will do for a few things.

If you live in a room, apartments or occupy a whole house, remember this:

Boiling and hard rubbing is unnecessary when you use Fels-Naptha Soap.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

Big Prizes in Gold Ready for Successful Contestants.

The solution of picture puzzles is always an interesting pastime, but it becomes more so when the added incentive is a prize in gold coin for those who are successful. With a view to learning just how keen-witted the readers are, The Pittsburgh Gazette Times has started a street puzzle contest in which $5,000, in gold will be distributed as follows: First prize, $1,000; second prize, $500; third prize, $250; five prizes, each $100; 10 prizes, each $50; 20 prizes, each $25; 50 prizes, each $10; 250 prizes each $5.

This contest has none of the subscription-getting, vote-securing features of so many things of the kind, but is simply a test of the discerning powers of the reader. The pictures will conceal the names of Pittsburgh thoroughfares. There will be 90 puzzles in all and as a guide to the solution The Gazette Times will publish from time to time a list of streets in which are contained the winning names.

The Gazette Times guarantees the genuineness of the contest; it always meets its promises and assures those who enter the contest as fair a deal as was ever given by any newspaper. Full particulars will be sent by addressing the Contest Manager, Gazette Times, Pittsburgh, Pa.
