A Case of Small Pox in Bellefonte. On Thursday of last week the reg dence of Jack Caldwell in Brown row was quarantined for small pox, Mr. Caldwell himself having developed a full fledged case. Just where he contracted this disease seems to be a mystery. He was taken sick while at ork on George Meek's farm near Axe Mann, and as there were a great many cases there earlier in the year, it may be possible that the disease had not been entirely stamped out in that community. Every precaution is being taken to prevent the further spread of the disease and it is earnestly hoped it will end here.
