TEMPERANCE ELEMENT ARL NOW UP IN ARMS

WILL FILE REMONSTRANCES AGAINST HOTELS.

IN THE BOROUGH OF BELLEFONTE

Movement Started at Bob Jones' Meetings—Seek to Make Bellefante a "Dry" Town—Canvassing for Signers to Remonstrance.

One of the results of the ten days campaign of Rev. Bob Jones in the Army at this place has been to thoroughly arouse the temperance element in this community with the result that they have taken a determined stand and will wage a red hot fight to make Bellefante and possibly Centre county "dry." The movement received its first impetus at the men's meeting held by Bob Jones, the last Sunday he was in Bellefante, when he showed up the many dark spots in our otherwise fair city and plainly stated what he thought was the duty of every Christian citizen in the community. At the last meeting held by Rev. Jones the following Wednesday evening he asked all those who were willing to sign remonstrances against the granting of any of the liquor licenses in Bellefante borough to stand up and the majority of the men in the audience arose to their feet. The temperance people take this as an indication that a great majority of our people are opposed to liquor licenses and that the court is bound to listen to their wishes.

Dr. G. E. Hawes, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. Dr. E. H. Yocum, of the Methodist church, both discussed the matter with their pulpits and urged their members to join the movement to make the town "dry." On Monday evening of last week a meeting was held which was attended by the pastors and members of all the churches in town, at which it was decided to take definite action in the matter. The plan in hand it is said, is to file with Judge Orvis a general petition against all six licenses and also individual remonstrances against each one. They also claim to have evidence against three of the hotels of direct violations of the law, and this phase of the question will be looked into. Dr. A. M. Schmidt, of the Reformed church, was appointed as chairman of a committee to secure counsel. They will be represented by a local attorney and by one from a distance. C. C. Shuey was made chairman of a committee to raise funds to carry on the fight. The town was divided into sections and committees were appointed for each section whose duty it is to solicit every voter in their bailiwick to sign a remonstrance petition. The committee claim they are meeting with good success in the work and a large number are signing the petitions.

For some weeks past representatives of the "dry" movement have been examining the names of those who have signed the petitions for license which are on file in the court, and it is alleged by them that only about one hundred people have signed the six different applications and that many individuals have signed all six petitions. The temperance people argue from this that these one hundred people have been granted license for years to grant license and that the court has done so, without a chance for the balance of the citizens to be heard from.

The matter is stirring up considerable excitement in the town, as while the no-license advocates are making a hard fight there are many who do not agree with them. Some who are in favor of local option are opposed to signing petitions against license. Take it all through it promises to be a very pretty fight. Present licenses will not expire until April 1st, 1914, but the license court will be held about the middle of December, when the fight for a dry town will be put up to the court.

It is understood that similar movements are being started in Milesburg, Howard and Philipsburg. The names of all those who signed petitions for a liquor license in the county we understand will be put up in a temperance paper published in Ohio, and the paper will be circulated throughout the county. The Women's Christian Temperance Union of the county are back of the move to publish the names of those signing the license petitions and this has not yet been connected with that in any way.

Prosecutor Did Not Appear.
A hearing, scheduled to come before Squire Mussler on Wednesday, was delayed by reason of the prosecutor failing to put in an appearance. The case was that of John Brusa vs. the poor overseers of Huston township, in which the former brought suit for payment for keeping an aged person of that township. Owing to the non-appearance of Mr. Brusa, District Attorney Fortney, who was present, ruled that the defendants be discharged, but this did not meet with the approval of the Squire and he ordered the case continued. It is now a matter of who's who and why for those concerned.

Will Lecture at Woodward.
Rev. J. H. Zinn, D. D., of Osterberg, Pa., will deliver his popular lecture, entitled "Through Confederate Prisons and Home Again" in Woodward, Pa., Wednesday evening, December 3rd. Dr. Zinn is one of the most interesting lecturers on the platform today and his lecture is an unwritten history of personal experiences in Libby, Belle Island and Salisbury, N. C., prisons. It is thrilling, pathetic and humorous. The price of admission is adults 20 cents, children under 14 years 10 cents. He is an excellent lecturer and deserves a large patronage.

RUNAWAY ON SATURDAY.

On Saturday Lowery Shope, of Valley View, despite to Bellefante of a rig and tied his horse on Water street, west of the Potter-Hoy Hardware store, while he went about making purchases at the stores. Returning shortly after 5 o'clock to where his horse was hitched, Mr. Shope found a companion attempted to get in the buggy to drive home when the horse bolted and threw the men out, along with an array of groceries, etc., which were scattered about rather promiscuously. There were several other rigs standing at this place and when Shope's horse started the wheels of the buggy struck the rear wheel of Al. Rishel's buggy, swinging it around sufficiently to break off the shafts. Rishel's horse made no attempt to run away, but Shope's horse started diagonally across the High street bridge. Near the Watchman office the buggy struck one of the iron poles supporting an electric light globe, and shattered the center. After running a short distance further the horse was caught. Strange to say, Mr. Shope's buggy was but slightly damaged, and he was able to continue his journey home without further mishap. Mr. Rishel was not so fortunate, however, as his buggy was badly in need of repairs and he was compelled to leave it with a wagonmaker.

Aged Lady Hurt by Cow.

Mrs. Mary Sinker, a well known and highly respected resident of Blanchard, and widow of the late William Sinker, while going through the alley along the residence of George W. Page to the latter's home a few days ago, was attacked by a cow owned by Edward Heverly and foundered under its horns. Mrs. Sinker was struck in the breast and knocked down, whereupon the vicious animal then trampled upon her and broke the bone above one ankle and tore loose the ligaments at the knee. The aged lady was rescued opportunely by William Kunes and Ford Kunes, who rushed to her aid as soon as they saw her plight and prevented perhaps fatal injury. Mrs. Sinker was carried into the home of Mr. Page, where she was made as comfortable as could be desired and this family is taking care of her. Dr. Walter J. Kurtz, of Howard, was summoned and gave her injuries attention. The patient is getting along right well but will be confined to bed for at least six weeks.

Naturalization Court.

On Tuesday there was a Naturalization court held in the Court House before J. S. Beckler, of Philadelphia, United States Naturalization Examiner at which three foreigners who desired to become citizens were examined but all failed of the necessary requirements. The first one examined was John Danita, an Austrian residing at Clarence. He failed to give intelligent answers to the questions in regard to the constitution and laws of this country and his case was continued to June 1914.

Giovanni Fratiziano, an Italian residing in Bellefante and John Baranyok, a Hungarian, of Moshannon, were continued with the probability of being dismissed. The last two could not prove a continuous residence of five years in Centre county. One had gone to Chicago and the other to Westmoreland county within two years and did not have the witnesses to prove their case. They were notified to make application again in two years.

Injured by Premature Blast.

Thomas Barner, a brother of Mrs. Tom Alkey, of this place, was painfully injured about two weeks ago while employed in the Stone quarry at Salona. He was engaged at the time in putting off "pop" shots. Eleven of the shots exploded and when Mr. Barner attempted to light the twelfth one, it went off for some unexplainable reason before he had reached the match to it, and a piece of rock struck him on the jaw, breaking the bone in two places. Mrs. Alkey returned this week from a visit to her brother and reports that he is recovering from his injuries.

Hunter Shoots Doe.

Alvin Poust, of Hughesville, a member of the Schwenks hunting party camped at the Tea Springs, Clinton county, near the junction of four counties, last week saw a buck and two does near the top of the hill, some distance from the camp. He fired a shot of hitting the buck, he shot and killed one of the does. On discovering his mistake, desiring to keep within the law, he walked to Loganton, where he surrendered to Daniel Schrack, a constable. They proceeded to the office of Squire John Marks, where he paid the fine of $100. The deer was sent to the Lock Haven hospital, where the nurses and patients will feast on venison.

Farmer Arrests Trespassers.

Farmer Harshberger, of near Hecla Park, had three young men of that place arrested this week for trespassing upon his land while hunting for rabbits and weasels. The case came before Squire Mussler on Wednesday morning who gave the boys a heart-to-heart talk upon the rights of others who own property and discharged them after exacting costs to the amount of $7.11.

Lycoming Politician Suicides.

John D. Palne, chairman of the Lycoming county Republican committee, committed suicide Monday afternoon by hanging himself in the cellar of his home in Williamsport. The body was found Monday night after the house had been broken into by neighbors. The suicide was undoubtedly caused by despondency.

Bishop Garvey a Visitor Here.

Bishop Garvey, of Altoona, was the guest over Sunday of Rev. P. McArdle and during the day they visited Howard where an interesting service was held and a large class confirmed. He left for home on Monday morning.

Coburn Postmaster Re-Appointed.

T. W. Hosterman, who has served as postmaster at Coburn for twenty years, has been re-appointed by the postoffice department to serve another term.

Will Discuss Temperance Question.

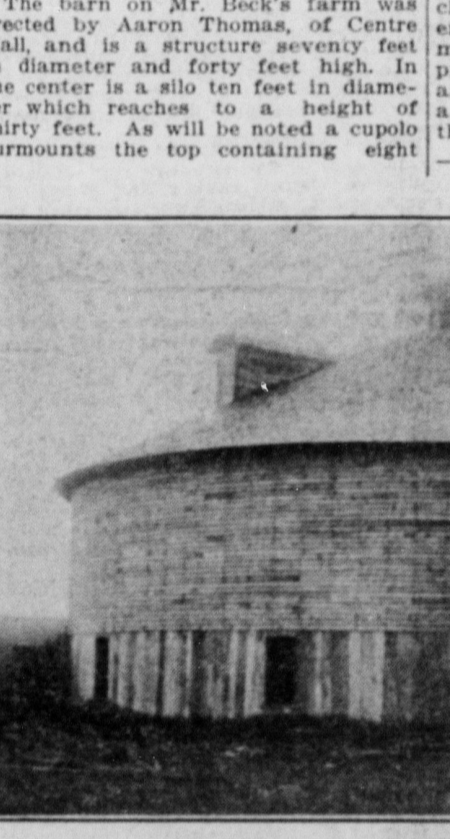

By the unanimous request of the session of the Presbyterian church, the pastor, Dr. Hawes, will preach Sunday morning on "The Local Temperance Situation."

MODERN METHODS IN BARN BUILDING

ADOPTED BY JAMES BECK, OF GREGG TOWNSHIP.

ROUND IN SHAPE AND FORM

A Large and Roomy Structure That Is Said to Be Superior to the Old-Style Barn—Is Clean and Sanitary—Costs No More to Build.

The accompanying illustration is that of a round barn recently erected on the farm of James Beck, one and one-half miles east of Penn Cave, Centre county, and shows one of the modern ideas in the housing of stock and feed that is rapidly coming in favor with farmers. Not so long ago the round barn was an experiment and a curiosity. Its unusual shape brought forth many questions regarding its durability, its claims of economy and numerous other good points, all of which have been proven to the advantage of the circular barn. It is a known fact that it costs no more than barns of square shape, and has the advantage of more floor space.

The barn on Mr. Beck's farm was erected by Aaron Thomas, of Centre Hall, and is a structure seventy feet in diameter and forty feet high. In the center is a silo ten feet in diameter which reaches to a height of thirty feet. As will be noted a cupola surmounts the top containing eight ventilators. This cupola is eight feet in diameter and five feet high. In addition to this, there are four dormer windows which provide an abundance of light and give further ventilation when necessary. Five windows below give plenty of light on the lower floor, and in addition to this there are numerous doors. There are three lower doors 8x16 feet, one in front of the barn 4x12 feet, and two large doors at the barn bridge, 12x15 feet, with a 12-foot space between. It will thus be seen that sanitary conditions have been carefully looked after in the erection of the barn and that light and ventilation facilities are nearly ideal.

We regret that the interior cannot be shown, as here is where the economic features of the round barn are found. The barn is capable of accommodating twenty head of live stock with six stalls for horses and fourteen for cows, besides having fifteen feet of open space all the way around, used as a manure shed, which could be converted into stalls if necessity demanded it. The entry is five feet wide around the silo and is only intended to use when feeding grain. The coarse feed will be fed from the barn floor by horse racks and cow managers, and later the owner intends to install stanchions. The mows extend all the way around the barn and are ten feet in width. Hay is stored on top of the silo. The granary is placed around the silo, the bins being five feet long. The barn floor is fifteen feet wide and one can drive the entire way around in it.

We are indebted to Charles Beck, son of Mr. Beck, the owner of the barn, for the picture herewith shown. The young man is an amateur photographer of considerable ability and teacher of the Mountain school in Gregg township. As will be seen, the windows have not all been placed in the barn, and there are a number of finishing touches needed to complete it. Visitors are welcome at Mr. Beck's home at any time, and he will be glad to show them through his new barn, and give any information desired.

DEER PLENTIFUL.

From all sections of the state where deer are to be found, comes reports that the number is unusually large and many fine bucks have been shot. However Bellefante hunters do not seem to be among the fortunate ones. In the Seven Mountain regions back of Centre Hall a large number have been killed. Register J. Frank Smith, of Bellefante, is one of the most fortunate hunters hereabouts. He is with the Bradford party from Centre Hall, who are in the Seven Mountains, and they already have six big bucks, one of which was killed by Register Smith. The party expects to break up Saturday.

The Howard Hunting Club have three deer and three bear to their credit. They are encamped in the Alleghenies. Robert Mann's party have three nice bucks.

Willis Shuey, Robert Baney and William Saxton of this place, who are encamped in the Bear Meadows, have a deer and a wild cat as their trophies of the hunt.

Fire at Nanty-Glo.

Originating in the engine room of the Springfield Coal Mining company's plant at Nanty-Glo on Saturday afternoon, fire partially destroyed a coal tipple, engine room and boiler house, entailing considerable loss. Repairs will be started at once and operations will be resumed within a few days.

A SAD ACCIDENT NEAR MIFFLINBURG

HERBERT A. SCHAFFER SHOT AND KILLED BY FRIEND.

WAS MISTAKEN FOR A DEER

Died With His Head in Father's Lap and His Brother's Arms Around Him—Only Twenty-Two Years Old—Friend Crazed by Grief.

A sad accident occurred near Mifflinburg, Saturday morning, about 8:30 o'clock when Herbert A. Schaffer was shot and killed by his companion, James Culp, who had mistaken him for a deer and fired a high-powered automatic rifle into the woods, where Schaffer had disappeared in the hunt, fatally wounding the victim, who staggered from the forest and died twenty minutes later. Both men reside in Mifflinburg, Union county, and the shooting occurred seven miles from that town in the mountains.

Young Schaffer was a nephew of L. A. Schaffer, of Bellefante, and a grandson of Benjamin Schaffer, of Nittany. The party of which he was a member consisted of ten hunters, including his father, brother and brother-in-law. The men were engaged in making a drive of deer, and the two principals in the shooting had found and examined freshly made tracks of a big buck several minutes prior to the accident. Culp pleaded with the members of the party to save the buck's life and was prostrated when their efforts were in vain, since Schaffer died within a half hour.

The hunters left Mifflinburg early Saturday morning and began their day's hunt from the camp located on the side of the mountain. The men spread out and young Schaffer and Culp worked together. When they had made their way along the mountainside Culp discovered imprints of a big buck's hoof and called Schaffer to the spot and the two stooped and made an examination. Schaffer left suddenly and walked into the woods twenty or thirty feet away and disappeared. Culp remained where he stood had been found and completed his efforts to find other tracks. He had forgotten about Schaffer leaving the scene, so interested had he become.

The freshness of the hoof prints indicated that the deer had passed that way but a short time previous. Suddenly Culp was surprised to hear the crackling of brush and deadwood in the forest and grasping his gun, waited a moment and then the instrument of death spoke. In its wake there came a scream. A few seconds later young Schaffer staggered into the open stretch and sobbed, "My God, Jim, you've shot me." His face was bloodless and his hands were tightly clasped over his abdomen, futilely endeavoring to quench the fiery pain within his body.

Culp stood looking on in horror and almost crazed with fright, ran forward to help his unintentional victim. The shot had brought the other members of the party from other parts of the woods. After Schaffer had staggered about seeking to find some manner of easing his terrible agony, his father and brother came upon the scene. The brother ran to the wounded man and caught him in his arms before he fell, and carried the young hunter to a moss-covered section of ground and laid him down.

An investigation of the victim's wounds was quickly made and several others of the party ran to the Forest house, which is not far distant, where they secured a team to take the wounded man to Mifflinburg, where the nearest physician is located.

The scarlet hat and coat were laid off young Schaffer for the last time and his grief-stricken father readily recognized from the nature of the wounds that his boy could not live.

The bullet had entered the left arm above the wrist, passed through and forced its way in and out of a cartridge belt and finally entered the abdomen. The left abdominal wall was rent apart, the path of the bullet tearing and ripping open the bowels. The wound bled but little outwardly, and Schaffer's death is attributed to internal hemorrhages. After he uttered his cry of distress to Culp he did not speak again. With his head pillowed on his father's knee and his brother's arms about him, young Schaffer breathed his last, just twenty minutes after his shooting. Men with the team ready to start for Mifflinburg, were halted and the wagon was used to convey the body to Mifflinburg.

Young Schaffer was highly esteemed and possessed the friendship of hundreds of residents of that vicinity. He was aged 22 years and unmarried. His parents and several brothers and sisters survive.

Culp, who fired the fatal shot, is regarded as a careful huntsman and has been a member of the same party for many years when the annual hunt

PAROLED PRISONERS TO BE BROUGHT HERE

WILL BE PUT TO WORK BY WAR-DEN FRANCES.

TO BE GIVEN FREEDOM LATER

Planned to Have the Men Gain Health and Strength Before Turned Out—Will Be Employed on Building Operations at Rockview.

During this week the board of parole of the Western Penitentiary will pass upon applications for upward of 200 prisoners. Of this number 150 applications are made by prisoners under the new parole act in 1913, which was passed by the last legislature and signed by Gov. John K. Tener, July 19. This will be the first official action taken by the board under the new parole act.

When the prisoners have been recommended for parole by the board, and their paroles have been passed by the State Board of Pardons and signed by the governor, it is the intention of Warden John Frances of the Western Penitentiary to bring the men to the new penitentiary site near Centre county, where they may recuperate from prison life until such time as they desire to leave. This latter course is an innovation, and is being inaugurated personally by Warden Frances.

Under the general parole law of 1911, a supplement to the 1911 law, and allows these older prisoners a chance. The supplementary act provides that all prisoners who were sentenced prior to July 1, 1911, who have served one-third or more of their sentence or three years, are eligible to parole.

The prisoners whose applications come up before the board of parole at this time are those who have 15, 20, 25 and as high as 30-year sentences. These men have served one-third and in some cases much more of their sentences.

It is Warden Frances' intention to have the prisoners obtaining parole brought direct to the new penitentiary site at Rock View, Centre county. Here the warden believes the men will get a chance to lose their prison pallor in a few weeks. They will be put on their honor, and not placed under strict restraint.

They will be allowed to work on the improvement of the grounds and in connection with the erection of the new penitentiary buildings. Besides the temporary penitentiary, a large stone house at Rockview, Warden Frances has arranged to give up his personal quarters to the paroled men. While work will not be started on the penitentiary building until the men come probably before spring, there will be plenty of labor to be done on the new site this winter. Mr. Frances will provide opportunity for the employment of the paroled men, that will be conducive to their physical betterment.

After the men have worked outdoors for a time and have had plenty of exercise and been given the best of food and attention, they will be given their freedom, but some of their responsible person must report regularly to the warden's office and whether they are obeying their parole promises.

Since the 1911 parole law went into effect, over 400 men have been paroled from the Western Penitentiary. But 60 have violated their parole. Fifteen have been returned to the penitentiary from other states, and but three and a half per cent are at large, their whereabouts being unknown to the prison officials.

The inspectors of the western penitentiary have recommended the following for release:

Patrick Sheehan, Indiana, two to 10 years; Kent Smith, Washington, two to 10 years; burglary; A. W. Williams, Mercer, three to 12 years, manslaughter; Peter Yasovitz, Somerset, three to 12 years, voluntary manslaughter; Chambers O. Templeton, Blair, three to 12 years, forgery; Miles McIntosh, Clearfield, one to three years, larceny; Irvine Cole, McKean, one to three years, forgery; Michael Giampietro, Beaver, one to seven years, assault and battery; Thomas Mervine, Somerset, 15 months to two and a half years, larceny; Edward Putnam, Somerset, 15 months to five years, assault; Dominick Marabita, Clearfield, one to two years, aggravated assault; John Hodak, Clarion, nine months to three years, felonious assault; Paul Martzak, Fayette, one to seven years, murder second degree; Dominick Scardamaglia, Warren, nine months to three years, aggravated assault and battery.

Freshmen Have Hilarious Time.

Several hundred members of the Freshman class from State College raised merry hell at the Lyric theatre on Saturday evening when they stormed the place and compelled the patrons of the house to leave or remain and listen to the wild orgies that would have put to shame a band of Comanches. Someone may yet have to pay for the fun.

Enforcing Cigarette Law.

Probably the first attempt to enforce the anti-cigarette law in Bellefante was made by Squire Mussler on Saturday when he caused the arrest of a young man of this place who had caught smoking one of the tobacco pipe-sticks. It cost the relatives of said youth 150 to settle the case, which should be a warning to others who persist in breaking the law in this respect.

Hunter Gets Large Bear.

J. A. Withrow, a prominent business man, of Erwin, Pa., was in Bellefante Saturday between trains on his way back from a hunting expedition in Jack's mountain, near Wilkett, Union county. They had a fine black bear which Mr. Withrow shot and which he was very proud of, and an abundance of small game, but no deer. They saw several but they were all does.
