HOWARD.

Let us confront our Thanksgiving bird gratefully, remembering beforehand that we live not wholly unto ourselves and striving to earn the blessing that surely goes to him who "considereth the poor."—Stockman and Farmer.

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

The union prayer meeting this evening will be held in the United Evangelical church.

A Special Census.

At the meeting of our local Ministerial Association Monday morning almost the entire time was occupied in completing, so far as could be done at that time, arrangements for the taking of what may be properly called a religious-preference census of the town, and vicinity, to which attention was called a few weeks ago. In so far as the scheme has been worked out, it may be definitely stated: First, the work is to be conducted jointly by all the denominations represented in the ministerium, and will be distinctly inter-denominational; emphasizing and developing the fine spirit of unity in church work which now prevails in the community. Two of the census takers will be asked for from each of the congregations of the town. The borough and contiguous portions of the township will be divided into districts of such size as will allow two or more of these workers, all chosen by their respective denominations, will be assigned. Their duty will be to visit every house in their district, without reference to any knowledge they may have of religious affiliations or leanings of the inmates, the purpose being to make the canvass a complete record of the facts as they may find them by actual inquiry. It is planned to accomplish this work in the afternoon of Saturday, Dec. 13th, and that this may be done the community will be divided into small districts and enough canvassers engaged in the work to enable them to do it easily. To the satisfactory execution of this important work the active, cheerful co-operation of every citizen is essential, and will, we are sure, be gladly given. Further details will be given in this paper and column upon each of the two issues which will appear in the afternoon, and the day set, and the entire citizenship of the town is requested to study them and carefully arrange to let the canvassers have the desired information in the shortest possible time. One essential point to be borne in mind is to have some one member of the family, with a full knowledge of the religious affiliations or preferences of each of the members of the household, at home on that afternoon, and to remain there, expecting the canvassers, until after they shall have passed. Understand, once for all, that this is not planned as a matter of curiosity, or for any purpose whatever, other than to give the pastors and congregations of the town the accurate knowledge which will be thus gained, for use in their church work. Why not make this chosen afternoon of Saturday, December 13th, a sort of local holiday, and each citizen give the time in a cheerful, courteous way to this very practical piece of local christian work for the good of the whole community?

Union in Thanksgiving. As announced in former letters, last Sabbath evening was selected as the time for a Thanksgiving service which should be better representative of the entire community than the one which has heretofore been held, in compliance with the suggestions of our magistrates, upon a New Year appointed by them and warranted by the usages of the early days. The innovation was suggested, planned and carried into execution by our local ministerial association, and the success of the meeting is an additional evidence of the increased interest in christian observances which now characterizes our whole community because of the "get-together" spirit of the members of the association and the churches which they represent. The audience filled the Methodist church, the largest in town, almost to its capacity, and numbered nearly, if not quite, three hundred; being at least three times as many as has been found in any similar service held upon the Thursday appointed, within the memory of the writer. The ministers of the four congregations represented in the association were all present and all took part in the service, the address being delivered by Rev. Walter Fay Carson. It is not too much to say of this address that it was of broader gauge, more comprehension and more practical than is the usual Thanksgiving service. In so far as comment upon this union service, and the change of time from a Thursday, as appointed by the authorities, to the Sabbath evening of the same week, has been heard, the consensus of opinion seems to strongly commend it.

License Protest.

At the close of the Thanksgiving service Sabbath evening Chairman Dunning requested the audience to remain for another short meeting, giving time for all who did not feel like staying to leave without disturbing those who remained. Probably two-thirds of the company remained, and listened to an appeal from the County and local W. C. T. U. voiced by Mr. Dunning, for signatures to a protest against renewal of the liquor selling license of our local hotel. No charge whatever was made, or even suggested against the present proprietor, but the appeal was made in consonance with the county-wide effort to prevent any license whatever being granted at the approaching license court. Blank remonstrance forms had been sent by Mrs. John P. Harris, county chairman, and were circulated through the audience, after announcement had been made that none but voting citizens among men, and no women under twenty-one years of age, should place their signatures upon them. Thirty-eight men and forty-five women recorded their names upon the petitions; and the following day they were taken through the town and enough additional signatures were obtained to make the total sixty men and eighty-eight women, the same restriction as to citizenship being carefully observed.

D. A. Irvin, who makes his business headquarters at Ebensburg, arrived in town Saturday morning, to remain through Thanksgiving week. He was accompanied by Mr. E. M. Burns, of Ebensburg, who, like Mr. Irvin, is interested in real estate, and they had just returned from a trip through Virginia where they had been looking over some propositions.

The Methodist people have had their church wired and handsome fixtures placed in it, and the first public use made of them was Friday evening, at the Y. M. C. A. meeting. The central chandelier is plain but of quiet elegance and the light from it reaches the most distant part of the room effectively, and the desk and choir lights are great improvements upon the old ones. Current is supplied by the Centre Electric Company.

The meeting for young men held in the Methodist church Friday evening was a decided success in point of interest and progress though the number might have been greater. About sixty-five were present. Mr. Buchman's address was calculated to arouse an interest in the effort being made to organize a club of the Y. M. C. A. at this point, and was well adapted to the purpose. The accomplishment of this project is brought much nearer by the meeting, and there is reason for hoping that an organization may soon be effected. Every interest of the community would be benefited by it, and the business men of this town should improve the opportunity to give it a good start.

"Well, perhaps not; but then I have something else here that will certainly interest you. It is a phonograph that retails for the small sum of $11. There isn't another phonograph in the world that—" "I won't buy a phonograph on a bet!" growled the business man, getting red in the face. "Well, I am surprised! But, then, I have here a camera which sells for $27. It will take the widest scope—" "No camera to-day!" yelled the business man. "Well, then I have a $423 automobile, which combines all of the necessary points of the higher priced machines and—" "For the love of Mike!" screamed the business man. "I'll take that glass cutter. Here's your quarter. Now, get out!" "Thank you," said the agent. "That's all I had to sell in the first place."
