REORGANIZING MINING STUDIES AT PENN STATE

The department of mining engineering in the School of Mineral Industries at the Pennsylvania State College is being reorganized, Dean Edward Steidle announced. "Under the new plan, the work of the department will be carried on under three general classifications: mineral production, safety and health and miners' preparation," he said.

The primary function of the department is undergraduate instruction, and it must be done well, but this is only a part of the job. Other important divisions of service are extension, correspondence instruction, and research. Members of the mining engineering staff will take active part in this work and contribute from time to time to the technical literature in the respective fields of study.

The college has already announced the appointment of David R. Mitchell as professor and head of the department of mining engineering effective at the close of the academic year. John W. Bush will join the staff of the department Feb. 1.

Snake Farm Wedding With snake entwined about their necks, Hazel E. Carpenter of West Palm Beach, and Joseph S. Brantley, of Arcadia, Fla., were married in what they called a "modern Garden of Eden ceremony." The scene was a snake farm on the outskirts of Tampa, Florida. The bride wore street clothes, and for a neckpiece a six-foot Indian snake. The groom used a de-fanged rattlesnake about his collar.

OLDEST CITIZEN IS FETED AND DINED

Evening dress, with a smile on his lips and with his keen eyes acutely alert to the evening's activities. He ate heartily of a roast turkey dinner and afterwards personally greeted the more than one hundred prominent Bellefonte and Centre County citizens who had gathered to honor him at the birthday dinner.

Mr. Hamilton has no formula for long life, but holds that he probably owes his longevity to the fact that he comes from a family noted for reaching ripe old ages. His great-grandfather lived to be more than 100; his grandfather died at the age of 85; his mother was 90 and a brother was 82.

The birthday dinner, arranged by a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Thompson, Major and Mrs. H. Laird Curtin, and Burgess Hardman P. Harris, was featured by the presentation of baskets of flowers and messages of felicitations from great and small, and by a few brief addresses.

The Rev. Father William E. Downes, rector of St. John's Catholic church, who escorted Mr. Hamilton to the dinner, stated: "We honor ourselves when we come to show our honor and admiration for a man who has lived a good and worthwhile life for 100 years." Continuing, the speaker said: "I have attended banquets on all kinds of occasions, but this is the first time I ever was present at a banquet for a person 100 years old; I never before have known a man 100 years old, and the least I can say in tribute to Mr. Hamilton is that it has paid to be good."

John G. Love, Esq., of Bellefonte, read messages of congratulation from President Roosevelt, Senator James J. Davis, the Equitable Life Insurance Company, G. E. Gray, Mary M. Rankin, who expressed regret over the fact that her father, W. B. Rankin, was unable to attend the dinner because of illness; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Bullock, Jr., Rebecca Kluge, Francis Mary Childorf, Alfred E. Smith, Herbert Lehman, and Harry B. Scott, and presented flowers from the County Republican committee, the V. F. W. Post, Bellefonte, Brooks-Doll Post American Legion, and 101 roses from the Chamber of Commerce.

At the honor table, in addition to Mr. Hamilton, were near relatives; Clarence Hamilton, Bellefonte; Thomas B. Hamilton, of Long Beach, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Broderick and son and daughter, of State College; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Riley, of Cranston; and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Potter, of Johnstown. Also at the table were the Rev. Father Downes, the Rev. Father John B. Hackett, and Burgess Harris.

During the banquet three musicians, Mrs. Paul Beaver, piano; Ralph Toner, violin, and Jack Yeager, tenor, played and sang some of Mr. Hamilton's favorite numbers.

Born in Bellefonte in 1838, Mr. Hamilton was employed on the first canal boat ever to operate in this section, then enlisted with the Union army four days after the Civil war was declared.

Later he entered the grain business with Hancock and company at Philadelphia, held a seat-on-the-New York produce market, edited a grain trade at Williamsport and in 1900 helped organize the Locomotive National bank.

Four years ago he was honored by an (Equitable) insurance company in a dinner at New York as one of the two men then living who have outlived an 'ordinary life' insurance policy. He is the company's oldest policy holder.

Although he walks with the aid of a crutch and a cane, because of a hip broken several years ago, Mr. Hamilton moves about with apparent ease.

He lives with a nephew, J. Clarence Hamilton, and a housekeeper. His wife died in 1922. She was Irene McKicken, daughter of the Locomotive county sheriff, when they married in 1865.

HUNTERS MUST SUBMIT REPORT

have failed to comply with the law. Failure to mail the report makes the negligent hunters liable to a fine of $2.00 and costs of prosecution.

Game Protector Woodward urges that negligent hunters forward their reports to the office of the Game Commission at once in the hope that this county may be one of those with the highest percentage of game kill reports submitted.

FIRST RECORD OF LOCAL PLANNING CAME IN 1632

Just 306 years ago, says the Pennsylvania State Planning Board, the first step toward local planning in America was taken when the townspeople of Cambridge agreed "by a joint consent" that "ye town shall not be enlarged until all ye place be filled with houses."

This preceded by 60 years the first recorded instance of zoning in America which the Planning Board recently said occurred in 1692 when the "good villagers" of Boston, Charlestown and Salem, Massachusetts decided that slaughter houses and their accompanying odors could well be restricted to special localities all their own.

Two Die to Aid Boy

While playing, Guy Percy, 15, of Wynne, Ar., struck a wire across a power line. His screams attracted his mother and her sister. They were instantly killed when they grasped the wire, trying to free the boy. Emmet Capshaw, 12, rescued him by slipping a rock beneath the wire and severing it with an axe. Guy was so severely burned that he may die.

THREE NEW ELECTRIC LINES PLANNED FOR CENTRE HALL

Three extensions of electric light and power lines in the West Penn System in the Centre Hall vicinity are under contemplation. A line beginning at the Zuber farm, west of Spring Mills, is under construction. It will give service to farmers west of the Zuber farm to and including the former Runkle farm, now owned by Charles E. Foust. Others who may be served include Hobart Barber, Ernest Homan, Lee Brooks, tenancy on the Lather, Royer farm, Wilmer Grove and Thomas Grove.

The second line under construction is to be extended from the Henshall (former Dewiler) farm, southward and then along Sinking Creek. Farm owners and tenants to whom this extension would offer service are Robert Peacock, Arthur Holderman, John H. Knarr, John Snavely, Earl Frazer and Paul Wasson.

The third extension comes from the west, from Tusseyville, into the Centre Hill area, and will give a considerable number of farmers an opportunity to obtain light and power.

The extension of a line from Centre Hall beginning at the Harry McClenathan place westward was given service within the past ten days. The farms served are the Bartholomew farm, tenanted by Dan Blount, the John Heckman farm tenanted by Harry Burris, the Clyde Dattros farm, tenanted by Raymond Walker, the M. A. Burkholder farm, and the Guy Brooks farm.

Richard Brooks signed a contract for a further extension of this line to the Brooks Dairy farm to the west of the Guy Brooks farm.

C. OF C. MOVES INTO NEW QUARTERS

These folders, which will include nearly a score of photographs of local scenes and places, will also outline four routes motorists may use in reaching them with a minimum of time and effort. Maps of Pennsylvania and Centre County and other information of interest to motorists will find a place in the folder.

Folders will be available at cost to any local merchant or business man who wish to distribute them for advertising purposes. A space will be left on which the name of the donor and the nature of his business may be stamped before distribution. Additional hundreds of the folders will find their way into hotels, tourist homes, train and bus depots and other places where tourists congregate throughout the state.
