Study Low Cost Housing Project

Commissioners Discuss Plan For Establishment of County Housing Authority

Possibility of a low cost housing program for Centre County was discussed at a meeting of the County Commissioners and other interested persons at the Y. M. C. A. here last Thursday night.

The discussion was led by Charles V. Boyle, executive director of the State Board of Housing, and E. J. Hart, the Board's publicity director.

The plan proposed by the Board representatives, it is reported, is not without its drawbacks, in view of the fact that any homes which would be built by a County Housing Authority, would be replaced only, and the buildings they replaced would have to be destroyed. Such a procedure would not make available additional housing facilities, it was reported.

If the County Commissioners should decide to go ahead with the proposal they would apply to the State Board for permission to establish a County housing authority. If the State Board granted the application, the Commissioners would name a board of five members, serving without pay, to survey the County's housing needs.

The County authority would then ask for federal funds to build homes.
