

POTATOES REIGN AT FARM SHOW

not. How else can you account for the fact that during Farm Show week the booth sold a total of 30,773 potatoes at 5 cents each? Anyone who has ever picked a potato bug from a plant that didn't look worth the bug's effort will tell you that 30,773 potatoes is a lot of potatoes. Put up in bushel lots, it would require 340 measures to hold them. They would weigh 20,400 pounds, and when sold at 5 cents each would bring $1,020.00.

When you bought a potato at the booth, one of the 13 persons who were employed cooking and serving them just didn't give you a hot baked potato and take your money. No sir! They put it on a paper plate, split it in two and put a big chunk of creamery butter inside. During the week a total of 810 pounds of butter, costing $324.00 went this way. Then, too, salt cakers were provided, and Farm Show potato eaters consumed 105 pounds of this important accessory to satisfactory potato preparation. While we personally never favored the use of pepper on baked potatoes, it is only fair to mention that persons who do like pepper on them used 23 pounds of it at the booth.

The booth itself is nothing to write home about. It is only 10 by 20 feet in size, and most of the space is taken up by three gas baking ovens which were on continuous duty during the show. At one end was a refrigerator where the butter was kept trim and fresh. The thirteen employees filled the space between this equipment and the counter, where during one day just 15 persons less than 9,000 bought themselves a baked potato.

Under pressure Mr. Bower did admit that there is one difference between the potatoes sold at the Farm Show and the ones you buy at the grocery. "Suppose," he said, "you walked up to the counter, paid five cents, and got a 6-ounce potato while the man next to you got a 12-ounce potato for the same money. How would you feel?" Well, for that matter, how would you feel?

To eliminate arguments over the relative size of baked potatoes sold, Mr. Bowers explained that spuds selected for the booth are carefully picked, so that all are about the same size. "We try to get a 7-ounce potato," Bower said. In order to do this the Association often has to pay a premium price, for a tremendous pile of potatoes has to be gone through to find 340 bushels of 7-ounce ones.

Potatoes reigned in more than one place in Harrisburg during Farm Show week. Mr. Bower reported. The Association held a banquet at the 5th Street Methodist church, Harrisburg, on January 18, and like the postman who goes for a walk on his day off, potato growers at their big annual banquet ate potatoes. There were 300 potato lovers at the banquet, and among them they managed to eat a total of 420 pounds of potatoes, which is nearly two a pound and a half per person. Reduced into other terms, the banqueters ate a total of 7 bushels. R. U. Blasingame, head of the Department of Agricultural Engineering at the Pennsylvania State College, was toastmaster, while the principal speaker at the banquet was Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel, president of Penn State. We're taking a guess that the subject of Dr. Hetzel's talk was "Potatoes."

Earlier in the day the Association held their annual meeting, in connection with the Farm Show program. Officers elected for the coming year were: Walter S. Bishop, of Doylestown, president; J. A. Donaldson, of Venango County, vice president, and Ebon B. Bower, of Bellefonte, secretary, treasurer and general manager.

Directors elected for the year were: Walter S. Bishop, Doylestown, Bucks County; P. Daniel Franks, Coplay, Lehigh County; L. O. Thompson, New Freedom, York County; Robert Winton, Pennsylvania Furnace, Huntingdon County; John D. Schrack, Logan, Clinton County; Edward Fisher, Coudersport, Potter County; Evan D. Lewis, Johnstown, Cambria County; J. A. Donaldson, Emmenton, Venango County; and J. C. McClurg, Geneva, Crawford County.

The Saturday, January 29 issue of the New York Packer, a trade newspaper, carried an article by a staff correspondent on the Potato Association's activities at the Farm Show. The article reports that Miss Erma H. Sloop, of Bellefonte, assistant secretary of the association, spoke on the organization's viewpoint in regard to marketing potatoes and answered questions as to the organization's operations. She is quoted as having stated that careful grading, trade marking or labeling, and packing were the most important features of successful marketing. The article says Mrs. Millie M. Keeler, a grower from Pine Grove Mills, was to speak on "The Viewpoint of the Grower, Packer and Shipper," but was unable to appear as scheduled.

Dr. E. L. Nixon, of the Pennsylvania State College, the final speaker at the meeting, and one of the best known potato authorities in the State as well as a national figure on growing, packing and marketing farm and orchard produce, spoke on "The Philosophy Underlying the Development, Production and Advertising of Pennsylvania's Potato Industry." Dr. Nixon stressed the importance of marketing potatoes in clean, trade-marked bags, illustrating the difference between such packages and the usual feed, fertilizer and plain bag packages customarily used, by having samples of all kinds on display at the speakers' table.

Add Blinds Man While Jack Roun, 24-year-old shirt manufacturer was walking from his office to his home, an unidentified man stepped up to him and said, "I have a job for you."
