

Louisa's Letter

Dear Louisa:

The boy who has been going with my best friend is becoming interested in me. He has asked me for several dates and I don't know what to do about it. Do you think I should give him dates or not?

ANSWER:

A great many young people have a martyr complex. They imagine that they are being persecuted and that others in the family get all of the favors.

But even if such 'should happen to be the case it is poor policy on their part to "low rate" the family—as a cook of mine used to say.

The reputation one's family has in a community raises or lowers every member of it in the minds of other people. If children praise their parents and parents their children they are accorded a better valuation as a family. When one back bites one's family one is indirectly aiming blows at himself.

A wife who sings her husband's praises to the outside world helps many a man with his business success. On the other hand, the woman who criticizes her husband to outsiders is a definite drawback in his work. And vice versa. The man who takes digs at his wife in public generally succeeds in lowering both her and himself in every one's estimation.

The same thing applies to brothers and sisters. "Blood is thicker than water," and if the family doesn't stick together whom can they depend upon?

It is a wise thing not to try to gain in stature by pulling some one else down and particularly so if that someone happens to be a relative.

Yours,
LOUISA.

ANSWER:

Whether or not you should give him dates depends on a good many things. If this boy is engaged to your friend or if she is the kind of girl who goes with only one boy and is devoted to him you should definitely not "punch on her preserves."

If he and she should break up and later on he asks you for a date there can be no reason why you should refuse him. But as long as she considers him her "steady" and considers you her only friend you should leave him alone.

It is a very disloyal thing to use your friendship with another girl as a means of stealing her only beau away from her.

LOUISA.

I have a sister who has a very jealous nature. She is always telling people about my faults and even tells things that Mother and Father do which she thinks is unfair to her. I have tried to make her understand that she not only hurts us but herself when she talks such things, but I think she imagines people will consider her a martyr and she won't stop it. I wish you would write something about it so that she can taken it out of the hands of the American people. The Federal Reserve system is supposed to act for the people in general and not for private banks.

SUGGESTS METHOD TO AID BUSINESS

4th—Lend the cities, towns, and townships needed money at 2% interest and save the taxpayer from 3 to 5 per cent. This will also force money into circulation.

5th—Lend the small business man who has struggled through the years of panic, and who exists, money for working capital and needed equipment replaced, at 2% interest. The risk as a whole would be smaller than that of the average taken in the past through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

6th—Lend the home owner and farmer money at 2%, so that the home owner and farmer can pay for and continue to hold the home and the farm.

7th—Establish a government bank branch in each county seat to take care of local government business, which belongs to all of the people. This would get away with the Thrift companies and others that charge from 12 to 40 per cent interest on small necessary enforced loans.

8th—The present monopolies and trusts, controlled by private bankers mostly, derive their enormous profits from fixed prices, while the small business man, who is struggling for existence, and who employs seventy-five per cent of the labor supply, has to pay these prices and like it.

9th—One reason for the above condition is that the enormous banker investments in foreign countries require that they favor trade with certain countries and their representatives work for discriminatory tariffs, all to the disadvantage of the American working man and small business man.

10th—The reason for the demand of the small business man for needed money at 2% interest, is that he knows that the large monopolies and trusts under the present set up, get all the money they need at 2% and less.

"We know that the price of skilled labor in Germany is $1.00 for ten hours, and for the same in Japan is $4.75, but we note that here are some of the imports as well know:

"Hogs, beef, cold storage beef, and pork, butter, cheese, corn, wheat, hay, tractors, trucks, automobiles, oil, coal, sewing machines, rugs, carpet, carpet rugs, dishes, cutlery, hardware, pipe fittings, and clothing, dry goods, and the greater part of the stocks in the 5c, 10c and $1.00 stores. All in competition with American workmen and small business men.

"We hear that Mr. Hull has 1100 different articles to reciprocate with England. We figure that a man who against the interest of the American working man is a traitor to the American people.

"Yours very truly,
A. E. CHAD."

ALTOONA YOUTH GRAVELY WOUNDED IN ACCIDENT

Struck by a high calibre bullet that had first pierced the hand of a companion, Richard Fredericks, 17, of Altoona, underwent an emergency operation Tuesday afternoon at Altoona hospital. The bullet, a slug from a .38 calibre automatic pistol, first penetrated the left hand of Frank C. Hoover, 22, who was inspecting the gun at his home. He was discharged following dispensary treatment, Fredericks was struck in the stomach by the bullet and his condition last night was reported as grave.

The pair, according to Hoover's statement to police at the hospital, were examining the gun which Fredericks had acquired. Both were of the opinion that the weapon was unloaded. Finding that the trigger was stiff, Hoover said at the suggestion of Fredericks, he was manipulating various parts of the gun when he presumably released the safety catch at the same time he squeezed the trigger. Hoover said when the gun was discharged Fredericks was standing in front of him and that he did not know his companion had been struck because of his own injury.

Health and Beauty

Cultivating Facial Expression

People who are intelligent, whose thoughts run upon noble achievements and are benevolent and kind acquire countenances that bespeak superior men and women. As the years pass their faces grow in charm not possessed in youth.

Those who spend their time in the pursuit of shallow amusements, who depend for pleasure upon that which panders to their vanity and affords passing entertainment, soon lose the attraction that they had in youth. Their faces become fat and heavy, with insane, stupid expressions or else they grow thin, sharp and pinched, like their character. Many of them betray the disappointment and discontent that possesses them. Time has been busy etching their emotions and habits on their features.

The girl who is good natured and jolly, whose merry laugh falls pleasantly upon the ear, is sought as a companion far more frequently than one who has only good looks to recommend her.

Madame de Sevigne, who lived during the reign of Louis XIV, exercised great influence upon the political and social world. She was extremely popular on account of her brilliant mind, gracious manners and kind heart. Her daughter, though much more beautiful than her mother, was greatly disliked because she was so selfish and indifferent to the interests and happiness of those about her.

Madame de Staël of the First

French Empire was really ugly; but so brilliant was her intellect that her wit stimulated and enlivened any conversation in which she took part. One of the great writers said that when he heard her talk he listened with transport. In her features there was a charm superior to mere beauty—it came from her gifts of mind and spirit.

To prove that the expression is moulded by environment and habits of thought, we have but to contrast the habitual crook with the philanthropist.

The eyes of the former are shifty and crafty. He is practiced in the art of looking for opportunities to carry on his nefarious work, or to make his escape from the clutches of the law. His expression betrays a life of crime. His very features are often distorted with malice, cunning or revenge. He plans and executes crime. He lives in fear and is always planning wickedness, or seeking means of escape from the consequences of his misdemeanors.

What a contrast is presented by the man whose life is honest, open and upright, who is helpful and considerate of his fellow men. Even a little child or the dog on the street will trust him, while they shrink in terror from the criminal who preys upon society. Thus people show in their faces what they are. Their lives are written upon their countenances. So we create or destroy beauty as the years pass by, by our thoughts and habits.

Walker P. T. A. To Meet

THOMPSON, GINGERY SEEK RE-ELECTION

didate for the office of State Committeeman of Centre County. Up to this time he is opposed for the nomination.

The County Chairman so far has developed no promise of a contest since only one candidate has entered the field to date. He is Ralph H. Shoemaker of Spring Mills, an active and substantial member of the Democratic party. Mr. Shoemaker is employed as an assistant superintendent of Highways in the County and is widely known.

John W. Decker, of Spring Mills, who is rounding out his second term as Centre County's representative in the General Assembly, yesterday reported that up to this time he has not decided whether or not he will be a candidate for re-election. His decision in the matter is expected to be announced within the next week or so.

Congressman Ginery seeks re-election in the district comprising Centre, Blair and Clearfield counties. His home is at Clearfield, and he is completing his second term as representative of the district in the Lower House. Since becoming a public official, Congressman Ginery has consistently worked for the best interests of the people of the three-county district and has been an able representative at Washington.

Senator Thompson, of Phillipsburg, is completing his first term as State Senator and his record during the four-year term has been one which is seldom equalled by a first-timer. During his career at Harrisburg Senator Thompson has won state-wide recognition, and is generally conceded to be one of the most active and prominent Senators in Harrisburg. He has held numerous important committee posts and was a member of a committee which last year studied the State relief set-up.

The primaries will be held on Tuesday, May 17.

BUILDING PROGRAM TO BEGIN AT COLLEGE

U. Philadelphia, eight Pennsylvania broadcasting stations will carry descriptions of the ceremonies beginning at 1:45 p. m. and ending at 2:30 p. m. Other stations which will participate in the broadcast include WLEU, Erie; WEGW, Altoona; WGBI, Scranton; WHP, Harrisburg; WGAL, Lancaster; and WERE, Wilkes-Barre.

Governor Earle and Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel, president of the College, will be heard during the broadcast. Penn State's Blue Band, one of the finest collegiate musical organizations in the East, as well as the College Club and other musical organizations, will take part in the program. The actual ground-breaking will be described by an announcer.

Because of the uncertainty of the weather, the ground-breaking will be symbolic and will be held indoors. It is planned to have earth from each of the sites upon which buildings will be constructed on the stage of the Recreation Hall, which seats 6,000 persons. Governor Earle and President Hetzel will each turn a spade of earth to open the great project of building expansion in the history of the College.

Ten major buildings will be added to the 50 structures on the campus at Penn State by the General State Authority's program, which is scheduled for completion in two years' time.

They are a new College library, a central unit for the present Liberal Arts group, a building to house the School of Education, an Electrical Engineering, a Chemistry and Physics building, a Biological Science building, a new Mineral Industries unit, a Forestry building, an Agricultural Engineering building, a poultry building and additions to the poultry plant.

In addition to these buildings the General State Authority's program includes a service building and additions to the power and water supply systems of the College.

troughs, taking up the larger part of the center of the building. At one end will be located the shipping room. At the other will be offices and a boiler room. At present there is a garage, erected in 1934, next to the side of the hatchery. Mr. Tanner's office at present is across the road near the entrance.

There are 16 rearing ponds of the circular type near the hatchery building with four raceways. There are four more raceways near the 17 trout rearing ponds at a greater distance. Near the hatchery nine bass ponds, each about an acre in area, are being constructed by the CCC boys, whose aid, Mr. Tanner says, has been invaluable in the development of the hatchery. The CCC has been using two bulldozers and four or five trucks with an average crew of 25 working five days a week.

Construction Soon

However, when the foundation is completed, skilled workers will be employed to erect the actual hatchery building. Once the full program with buildings, ponds and other equipment is completed, there will probably be about three or four employed most of the time in addition to Mr. Tanner.

FARMER FINDS TRAPPED 'COON IN APPLE TREE

smith to turn the animal loose, but when freed, the coon showed no disposition to leave, probably because of its weakness. So Mr. Smith built a pen and prescribed a course of feeding.

Since then the animal has lost its injured foot, but has been gaining rapidly in weight and in spirits. Last night Mr. Smith, whose regular trade is blacksmithing, proudly reported that the coon is ready to return to the woods anytime, and he's figuring on giving it his freedom as soon as the snow has entirely melted.

The trap was described by Mr. Smith as being a heavy steel affair, and one which was probably set for fox or bobcat. After being caught, the raccoon had pulled the chain loose from whatever it had been fastened to and managed to drag trap and chain into the tree where it was found.
